TESTIFIES—William Turnblazer, above, onetime United Mine Workers union official, testified that he was present when former UMW president W. A. "Tony" Boyle ordered the assassination of Joseph A. Yablonski.

Boyle jury deliberations under way

MEDIA, Pa. (AP)—A jury was to begin deliberations today in the murder trial of former United Mine Workers president W. A. "Tony" Boyle, accused of the 1969 assassination of union rival Joseph "Jock" Yablonski.

The case goes to the jury of nine men and three women after the charge by Common Pleas Judge Francis J. Catania.

Testimony against the 72-year-old Boyle wound up Wednesday, and opposing lawyers summed up their versions of the evidence produced by 58 prosecution and nine defense witnesses.

Special Prosecutor Richard A. Sprague, frequently pointing an accusing finger at the defendant, demanded a first-degree murder conviction which carries an automatic sentence of life imprisonment.

But chief defense counsel Charles F. Moses asked for acquittal on grounds there was insufficient evidence and a "reasonable doubt" as to Boyle's guilt.

The Yablonskis were slain Dec. 31, 1969, as they slept in their rural Clarksville home in southwestern Pennsylvania. The killings occurred three weeks after Yablonski lost a bitter battle to win the UMW presidency from Boyle—an election later set aside by a federal court as fraudulent.

The styles of Sprague and Moses in their closing remarks to the jury was a study in contrasts:

—Sprague was loud, strident, hammering, outraged by the "willful, deliberate premeditated murders" of Yablonski, his wife and daughter which Sprague claimed Boyle originated to retain his tight grip on the 200,000-member union.

—Moses was soft-spoken, philosophical, Bible-quoting, insisting that lies by confessed murderers, embezzlers, burglars ware the backbone of the prosecution case.

Sprague has pursued the Yablonskis' killers almost from the day their bodies were discovered on Jan. 5, 1970, and, so far, has wrung guilty pleas or convicted eight defendants. Now, at the end of the line, he wanted Boyle.

Council eyes storm alerts

Discussion concerning a disaster alert warning system for Washington C. H. and the immediate vicinity of the city took the spotlight during the regular semi-monthly meeting of Washington C. H. City Council Wednesday night.

Council members also approved four pieces of emergency legislation and heard a number of miscellaneous reports during the meeting which lasted just over an hour.

City Council members, in light of the tornado which devastated the neighboring community of Xenia just a week ago, have become concerned with the ability of Washington C. H. to respond in the event of a similar disaster.

City Manager Dan Wolford informed Council members that the city purchased a large wailing warning siren in 1962. The siren, which is located in the bell tower atop the Courthouse building, apparently is in proper

Subpoena set for tapes; solons angry

Impeachment confrontation readied with White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House today made a last-minute offer to provide some of the tapes requested by the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry, but it appeared to come too late to head off a subpoena for all the tapes requested.

"It's a little late to make a deal," said Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., after committee counsel John Doar told of a last-minute telephone call from President Nixon's counsel.

Doar said James St. Clair said he would be willing to give the committee within the next few days a number of specific conversations between President Nixon and his chief aides that the committee believes relate to the Watergate cover-up.

However, St. Clair's offer did not cover a number of other tapes the committee asked for.

As soon as Doar completed his discussion of St. Clair's phone call a resolution authorizing the committee to issue a subpoena for everything covered by the request was put before the committee. It appeared to have solid support of the Democratic majority.

Doar said that in his talk with St. Clair the White House lawyer did not indicate whether Nixon would comply with a subpoena.

The confrontation that has been building since Feb. 25 when the request was made, became all but certain Wednesday after the White House said it would not decide until after April 22 what it would give to the committee.

The White House position, spelled out in a letter from James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's counsel, antagonized committee members of both parties and a wide segment of the House.

"I think it was offensive to the House," said Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., the senior Republican on the committee.

"It was insulting in every paragraph," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., a committee member.

After a party caucus Wednesday to consider the letter, the Republican members launched a last-ditch effort to persuade the White House to comply at least in part with the committee's request.

"It looks as if the committee will issue a subpoena if the White House will not yield," said Rep. Robert McClory, RIll.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes said he hoped the committee would make another request for the tapes before issuing a subpoena. "Mr. St. Clair would have to reconsider and there might be some change in his answer," Rhodes said.

But most committee members said they thought the committee had been patient long enough and had no alternative now but to subpoena the tapes, which cover conversations between Nixon and his aides that the committee thinks relate to the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

Even among those who support issuance of a subpoena, however, there is concern over the consequences if Nixon refuses to honor it.

The committee, claiming its authority from the Constitution to subpoena evidence, is determined to avoid turning to the courts for enforcement.

Some members feel the best course of action would be to let an unanswered subpoena become an article of impeachment when the committee finally makes its recommendation to the House.

Arab terrorists seize village; Israelis slain

TEL AVIV (AP) — Three Arab terrorists slipped across the mountain frontier from Lebanon early today, seized an Israeli apartment building and opened fire on men, women and children, but Israeli forces wiped the guerrillas out, the military command said.

The state radio said at least 10 Israelis were killed, mostly women and children, and 10 soldiers, police and civilians were wounded in the frontier settlement of Qiryat Shmonah, less than a mile from the Lebanese border.

Military sources said Israeli troops blasted the guerrillas with heavy recoilless rifle fire aimed at the captured apartment building. But the guerrillas' command said the terrorists blew up themselves and hostages they had taken in accordance with instructions.

The Israeli radio reported that the Arabs had thrown children from the windows of the apartment building, but the report was not confirmed.

It was the most daring guerrilla mission inside Israel since the Tel Aviv airport massacre 23 months ago.

The Arabs first seized control of an empty school and then moved to the apartment building. The state radio said they fired submachine guns and threw grenades into the apartments as they shot their way up to the fourth floor in a trail of blood.

Israeli troops and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan rushed to the mountainside town, and just over four hours after the raid began a military source said, "It is all over." Heavy explosions shook the building as the Israeli troops stromed it.

The bodies of Israeli civilians were found in the doorways of their apartments and childrens' bullet-torn corpses lay on the stairway of the building, the radio said.

The guerrillas were carrying explosive charges with their Russian-made assault rifles, and the room where they barricaded themselves exploded when the Israelis opened fire and rushed the building, the radio said. The blasted bodies of the three guerrillas were found inside.

The group's command in Lebanon said, "Our men carried out their instructions. They set off explosive belts they wore for the operation when the enemy tried to storm the building they were holding. They died along with their hostages."

The group, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine General Command, earlier demanded the release of 100 guerrillas from Israeli prisons, including the Japanese Red Army man who survived the massacre at Israel's international airport.

Political uncertainty spreads in Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel faced months of political uncertainty today in the wake of Premier Golda Meir's resignation, and there was no indication of the government that would emerge.

Officials of Mrs. Meir's ruling Labor Alignment said she would stay on as head of a caretaker government until new elections, or until a replacement cabinet could be formed. Either one could take months.

The political upheaval and the fragility of a lame-duck government could weaken Israel's hands in the negotiations with Syria for a withdrawal of Israeli forces on the Golan Heights, political analysts suggested.

Worn out by increasing controversy over whether Defense Minister Moshe Dayan should share the blame for Israil's initial setbacks in the October war, Mrs. Meir, who will be 76 in three weeks, told the leaders of her party Wednesday night: "I can no longer bear the burden . . .I have reached the end of the road."

Mrs. Meir officially tendered her resignation today to President Ephraim Katzir. The meeting with the ceremonial head of state followed a special session of Mrs. Meir's cabinet.

Katzir praised Mrs. Meir for "her work and devotion to the rise and development of the state."

He told reporters he thought Mrs. Meir would remain as head of the caretaker government but would not try to form another cabinet.

The president said he would immediately begin calling in party leaders to discuss the formation of a new government.

It was the second time in 39 days that Mrs. Meir announced she was quitting, but this time it was generally believed that she meant it.

"Don't try to change my mind, it won't help," she told the party caucus, and complained about political rivals "who say I am only driven by lust for power."

Noting the wave of dissent following the loss of more than 2,500 men in the October war, she warned: "We cannot ignore public feeling...The atmosphere created around the government has made it impossible for the government to handle all the problems facing us."

A member of the immigrant Establishment that has dominated Israel since its birth in 1948, Mrs. Meir has led the government since 1969.

The future of Dayan, the onetime public idol, was unclear. The charge that he, Mrs. Meir and other Labor leaders were to blame because the Arab attack in October took the armed forces by surprise was the major factor in the setback the ruling party suffered in the general election Dec. 31.

President Katzir could designate a political leader to form a government, but Labor party leaders said new elections were inevitable.

Steel pact agreement said near

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the usual 11th-hour frenzy of previous negotiations missing, steel industry bargainers indicate they are near agreement on a new three-year contract for 350,000 workers.

Sources close to the talks between the United Steelworkers and the 10 major steel companies say the negotiators have agreed "to try and wrap it up" today.

Although the sources caution that some problems remain, the union has called its Basic Steel Industry Conference with representatives from 832 locals to a 1 p.m. EDT meeting for a report on the negotiations. The 600-member conference has authority to ratify a tentative agreement or recommend turning over unresolved issues to a panel of arbitrators.

A historic bargaining agreement signed a year ago eliminated the possibility of a nationwide steel strike this year.

In return for giving up the right to strike, the USW was guaranteed wage increases of at least 3 per cent in each year of the new contract.

Demolition work starts at Xenia

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — With the initial cleanup of debris from main streets and state property completed, 800 Ohio National Guard troops pulled out of tornado-stricken Xenia and nearby Wilberforce today.

They were replaced by 178 fresh troops of the 323rd Military Police Co. at Napoleon and Defiance who will help law enforcement agencies maintain security and control traffic at least through next Sunday.

Meanwhile, demolition of the most badly damaged buildings here was scheduled to begin today. Officials said the first buildings to be torn down would be those that presented a hazard to the public.

Tom McCatherine, information director for the city manager, said 1,237 buildings had been judged damaged beyond repair during a first-phase inspection of 3,357 structures.

He said inspectors found 439 buildings were satisfactory, 1,174 suffered minor damage and 507 received major but possibly repairable damage.

McCatherine said residents need not fear that "they're going to lose their homes without being informed."

He said demolition will be negotiated if an owner disagrees with the city's assessment of the damage. "The only exception would be where there is eminent danger to public health, welfare and safety," he said.

A list of properties marked for demolition will be prepared by Friday, McCatherine said.

Costs of the demolition work are being paid by the federal government, McCatherine said.

More than 100 insurance adjustors are at work in Xenia and 100 more will arrive within two or three weeks, according to a spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute, the industry public relations group.

The spokesman said the adjustors are coming "from across the country, from anywhere the companies can lay their hands on one."

The Xenia City Commission has authorized the city's tornado relief fund to use cash offerings of $45,000 for direct relief.

Mayor William L. Wilson said a local board of directors to administer donations will be established within 30 days. The Xenia National Bank and Citizens First National Bank of Xenia are accepting donations to the fund.

And a group of ministers and prominent citizens in Xenia scheduled a meeting today to organize a non-profit corporation to administer donations.

Storm victims at Pisgah, Mason and Middletown in southwestern Ohio also will be getting some government help this week, it was announced.

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration said a fourth FDAA one-stop service center will be open Friday and Saturday in Pisgah with counselors from various federal agencies on hand to help disaster victims.

Passman group offers million for Nixon papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., says a former Louisiana governor is among a syndicate of businessmen who have offered President Nixon $1 million for his controversial vice presidential papers.

Passman disclosed Wednesday that the one-time governor, James A. Noe, had wired him asking to be included for $100,000 in any syndicate being formed to buy the papers.

The congressman said the syndicate has offered to provide at once a cashier's check for $100,000 and pay the balance of the $1 million within 15 days after acceptance.

Passman himself is not among the syndicate but said the group had approached him through a special assistant at his home office in Monroe, La.

April storm hits nation

By The Associated Press

An April storm that buried the Salt Lake region under 2 feet of snow swirled into the northwestern Plains today.

While only 2 inches of snow fell in parts of Wyoming during the night, winter storm warnings advised that cold rain and wet snow would spread across the northern and west-central Plains.

In the Salt Lake region, one death was attributed to the storm Wednesday when a Clearfield, Utah, woman was electrocuted as she backed her car into power lines downed by the heavy snow.

School classes were cancelled, and there was a possibility of flooding today when temperatures were expected to rise.

To the south of the storm, a tornado watch for the southcentral Plains was in effect through the night after one twister was spotted in the Texas Panhandle near Wellington.

There were no reports of damage or injuries.

Strong winds in Southern California gusted up to 70 miles per hour in the Tehachapi Mountains, while winds up to 40 m.p.h. blew through Utah, South Dakota and Texas.

Meanwhile, rain fell in the Pacific Northwest and the Upper Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes regions.

Fair but cool weather was the rule from the Appalachians to the Atlantic Coast.

'Quiet youth' slays parents

WINONA, Miss. (AP) — A 14-year-old boy said he shot and killed his mother and stepfather because they wouldn't let him watch a television gangster movie, authorities reported.

"I knew the boy," said Grenada County Deputy Sheriff Doyle Nail. "He was very quiet...one of the finest kids you'd ever meet in your life. He was polite and friendly in every way.

The boy, Charles Forrest, was in jail today pending charges in the Tuesday night deaths of his stepfather, Charles Windfield, 47, and his mother, Mary Jane Windfield, 39.

Former Nixon aide gets 30 days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert L. Porter, who handled the surrogate speakers program in President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, was sentenced today to serve 30 days in a federal correctional institution for lying to the FBI in its Watergate investigation.

Porter, who will be 36 on Saturday, is the fourth former White House aide who has been sentenced to prison but the sentence was the lightest of any.

The charge carried a maximum five years in prison and a $10,000 fine but a lawyer from the office of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Porter's involvement in the Watergate cover-up was "less in degree than others who pleaded guilty to felony charges."

Porter, who now works in his father-in-law's small construction business at Laguna Niguel, Calif., had admitted to the Senate Watergate Committee that he also gave perjured testimony to the grand jury and at the 1973 Watergate break-in trial.

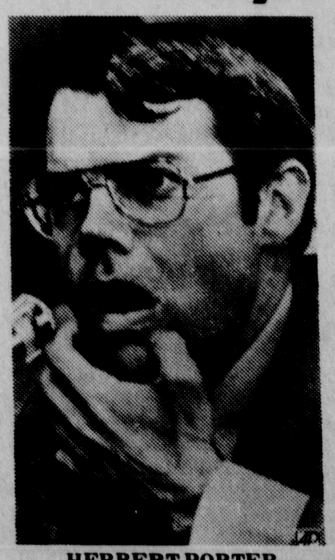

He said he agreed to the lie "because of the fear of group pressure that would ensue, of not being a team player."

The false story concerned money he gave to G. Gordon Liddy, the alleged mastermind of the Watergate break-in. Porter said deputy campaign director Jeb. S. Magruder had ordered him to give money to Liddy for "dirty tricks," and that he turned over some $35,000.

At the end of June 1972, some 11 or 12 days after the break-in at Democratic Party headquarters, Porter said Magruder told him that "dirty tricks" would sound bad to investigators and asked that they concoct a cover story.

Porter said he agreed to say he gave Liddy $100,000 for hiring 10 college students for 10 months at $1,000 a

See party reform faulty in practice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seeking insurance against future Watergates, political reformers are urging 1976 presidential nominees to do their campaign business through the Republican and Democratic national committees.

The theory is that management, or at least supervision, by regular party organizations and leaders would guard against the kind of abuses that marked President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

But there is a flaw: the way the system works, in a presidential year a party's nominee for the White House decides who is going to run the party organization anyhow.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford has proposed that 1976 GOP candidates agree in advance that they will not set up special campaign committees without specific approval of the party.

A House Republican study panel has said that "a strong national party would help curb some of the excesses that have been witnessed during the past few years and would make it easier for the public to isolate responsibility for illegal actions..."

But presidential candidates build their personal political organizations as they campaign through the primary elections, seeking White House nomination. At that stage, the regular party organization is theoretically neutral. The pattern has been for the personal organization of the winner to take over in the fall and run the national campaign.

The presidential nominee traditionally chooses the top leadership of his party's national committee. Committee members from the 50 states elect their chairman — but in practice, they ratify the choice of the presidential nominee.

Neither party committee had much to say about the 1972 presidential campaign. As always, the clout was where the presidential nominees put it. And as usual, there was friction between state party organizations and the campaign committees set up by the candidates.

In an era of political specialization and increasingly lengthy and expensive presidential campaigns, the pattern has been one of management and control by the candidate's men, not the permanent party structure.

All of this suggests that a long term solution to the problem of presidential campaign control is going to take more than persuasion aimed at candidates.

One proposal is part of the public campaign finance bill now before the Senate. It would allow a presidential nominee to set up his own organization to run the campaign — but the chairman, or someone he designates, would have to endorse every expenditure of over $1,000 in public funds.

Banknote numbers contradict story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Banknote serial numbers appear to contradict the sworn testimony of Texas attorney Jake Jacobsen about a $10,000 fund earmarked for former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, according to sources familiar with the case.

Two sources said the serial numbers indicate the money was not in circulation at the time Jacobsen swore it went into a bank safe-deposit box.

Jacobsen has pleaded innocent to a perjury indictment that charges him with lying to a Watergate grand jury by saying the money stayed in the box for 2½ years, until taken out in the presence of an FBI agent last Nov. 27.

Watergate investigators suspect the money may have been intended for Connally in return for his help in getting President Nixon to raise milk price supports in 1971.

And columnist Jack Anderson reported this week that FBI agents working for the Watergate special prosecutor have evidence that Connally pocketed the $10,000, then hastily returned it after the dairy group came under investigation.

Connally has denied receiving any bribe.

The original $10,000 was taken from the corporate account of Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairyfarmer cooperative, a few weeks after Nixon raised the support level in March 1971. Jacobsen said it was offered to Connally not as a bribe but for use in making political donations.

Jacobsen said he offered the money to Connally twice but that Connally refused it and the $10,000 lay untouched in a safedeposit box.

Sources say the banknote serial numbers indicate it is impossible for Jacobsen's account to be true, because the bills are too new to have been in circulation when Jacobsen says they went into the box.

Consequently, Jacobsen's lawyer is reported ready to bargain with prosecutors for a reduced charge in return for a guilty plea and cooperation in giving future testimony.

But chances for such a bargained misdemeanor plea, which might allow Jacobsen to continue practicing law, are thought to be dim because the law provides nothing less than felony charges for lying under oath.

2nd-class citizenship seen for targets of IRS audits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Internal Revenue Service options for dealing with taxpayers deny them due process and condemn them to second-class citizenship, a former IRS attorney says.

Clyde R. Maxwell of Newport Beach, Calif., testified Wednesday before a Senate appropriations subcommittee.

Maxwell, who was an IRS attorney for 13 years, said a section of the Justice Department maintains a list of persons who allegedly participate in organized crime.

If a name goes on the list, the person's affairs come under an IRS strike force's scrutiny, including an examination of his tax returns, tapping of telephones and surveillance.

"In effect, he becomes a second-class citizen whose affairs are not private. The usual reviews of criminal tax cases by (IRS and the Justice Department) are aborted in 'strike force' cases and often a taxpayer has no chance to explain his innocence before he is indicted and jailed," Maxwell said.

Individuals "somehow" get onto the list who merely know or have spoken to some figure linked with organized crime, Maxwell said.

Under questioning by Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., Maxwell said there are "many people on this list (who) have never been convicted of a crime. We don't know how that list is made up."

He also said individual tax returns are available to any government agency upon request despite the fact they are supposed to be confidential. He said all it takes for an agency to get a tax return is a presidential declaration.

Spring temperatures are returning to Ohio but there is cloudy weather and showers in the weather picture for the state.

Night time temperatures readings were generally in the 30s and 40s as compared to the teens and 20s Wednesday morning. A heavy blanket of clouds covered the entire state but no precipitation was reported.

A spring storm centered in the southern plains Thursday morning will move northeastwards towards the upper Great Lakes and spread clouds and some showers into Ohio Thursday and Friday. Rather brisk southerly flow will push afternoon readings into the 60s and the 70s today and Friday.

Some scattered showers and a few thundershowers will invade the western counties during the day and spread slowly eastward into the remainder of the state on Friday.

Some showers are expected to continue into Saturday and end over most sections of Ohio by Easter Sunday with cooler temperatures.

Showers are forecast Saturday, ending Sunday. Skies will be fair Monday. Highs will range from the 50s to 60s. Lows will be in the 40s and 50s Saturday, but will drop to the 30s and low 40s by Monday.

Dunlop sees inflation worsening

WASHINGTON (AP) — Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council says the lifting of economic controls could appreciably offset Nixon administration forecasts of slowed inflation.

"I don't want to be associated in any way with predictions for the second half of the year," Dunlop said Wednesday when asked by reporters whether he concurred with the administration prognosis of a slower rate of inflation during that period.

He noted that lifting of all controls on April 30 would release suppressed costs of some major products, including copper and steel.

"The impact of that in June or July is going to be appreciable," Dunlop said.

He warned again that costs in the health and construction industries, which Dunlop had hoped to keep under controls after April 30, will increase sharply.

Dunlop said the lifting of controls may come at the same time Congress is considering a national health insurance program which would include cost-restraining provisions and also tend to promote a major surge in demand for health services.

He said this would "fuel the fires of inflation enormously."

Stock list takes dip

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market retreated slowly in very quiet trading today as a 10 per cent prime interest rate spread through the banking industry.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.89 at 840.82 at midday, and declines outnumbered advances by about 4-to-3 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said most investors were waiting on the sidelines to see if the recent surge in interest rates, as mirrored by the rise in the prime, would continue.

Texas-gulf, down 1½ at 28⅛, was the Big Board volume leader. The issue is one of several with Canadian mining interests which have been declining since the Ontario government called for increased taxes on mining concerns.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was down .31 at 93.95.

The Amex volume leader was Champion Home Builders, unchanged at 5.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks stood at 49.09, down .15.

Campaign reform measure pushed despite delays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Operating under a tight limit on debate but with a batch of amendments still to be voted on, the Senate is striving to complete action on a campaign reform bill.

The first amendment at today's session would require that income tax returns of all members of Congress be audited annually just as President Nixon's recently were.

The amendment, by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., provides that "an intensive inspection and audit" be conducted by the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

This is the panel which held that Nixon owed $476,431 in additional taxes.

Solar heating, cooling expensive

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Engineers at Battelle Memorial Institute peg the cost of heating and cooling homes on power from the sun at some $8,000 higher than conventional systems.

But by 1985, the figure could be trimmed to $5,000, said James A. Eibling, manager of the institute solar energy program.

"It may be a close proposition," Eibling says, if prices continue to soar for commonlyused fuels.

Looking conservatively at the growth of solar heating for residential use, he says in the next decade demonstration projects probably will be limited to federally funded programs.

A bill cosponsored by U.S. Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Ohio, passed in the House Feb. 14 to fund projects collecting sun power.

The experiments will have to result in some improvements in the solar systems now on the drawing boards, the manager said.

"Even if you show a homeowner that in 20 years he gets his money back from solar heating, it won't make much difference," he said.

If solar systems are on the mass production lines by 1985, a favorable cost difference could exist, the Battelle expert said. Cost-cutting will have to be in materials, he said.

In those sun-powered houses of the future now in design at Battelle, water circulates in tubes through a light-absorbent section of the roof.

About 1,000 gallons of water heated at 200 degrees would be routed into storage tanks. In cool seasons, a fan blowing air through a radiator fueled by the warm water would heat the house.

Cooling systems would operate on an absorption unit using heat from the water — a principle already employed in propane-fueled refrigerators.

Eibling says chemical substitutes could extend the power of the system since water retains heat from the sun only three to four days.

And he said the system could be more efficient with perfection of a solar heat pump. When skies are clear and solar energy plentiful, a pump could generate additional electricity to light a home.

Eibling, also head of U.S. participation in the International Solar Energy Society, says in the next century solar systems will be common unless nuclear fusion is harnessed sooner than expected.

working condition, according to Wolford.

WOLFORD, who was one of these activated by the Ohio National Guard unit in Washington C. H. to assist at the disaster site, said the master control switch for the operation of the warning siren is located in the Washington C. H. Fire Department. He said the siren's blast can be heard ever most of Union Township and as far away from Washington C. H. as Bloomingburg.

He said a test alert will be conducted jointly by city and county officials soon. The test and the meanings of the number of blasts will be published prior to the test. Wolford said he will meet with the Fayette County Board of Commissioners Monday morning in an effort to schedule the test alert.

Alternate warning systems were also discussed. It was pointed out that the city has six mobile radio facilities which could be employed as base stations should the power be knocked out of the city police and fire departments. The Washington C. H. Police Department has five mobile radio units with public address systems mounted atop the crusisers and the Fire Department has another which is in the fire chief's car.

WOLFORD ALSO pointed out that the city police have the LEADS computer monitoring system in their Fayette Street headquarters and that the system is connected directly with the National Weather Service. Weather bulletins are constantly received over the computer monitoring system.

Police Chief Rodman Scott said the National Weather Service had predicted the tornado last Wednesday well in advance of the actual sweep through Xenia. He also said that city police are obligated to report unusual weather conditions such as sighting of funnel clouds or high winds over the computer in order that the National Weather Service can begin tracking possible tornadoes.

It was mentioned that the city should explore the possibility of acquiring a mobile generating system so that communications systems in the city police and fire departments could be connected in the event of a long-term power outage. Scott and Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen said mobile communications equipment within their departments would serve as base stations.

LEGISLATION

Council umanimously approved an emergency ordinance assigning a classification and pay range for the position of assistant fire chief in the Washington C. H. Fire Department.

The position of assistant fire chief was formerly held by Denen until he was promoted last year to replace the retiring George Hall.

Approval of the ordinance permits the city to legally advertise that a test will be conducted to fill the position. The test will be conducted by the Civil Service Commission.

The city's legislators also approved an emergency ordinance authorizing the city manager to enter into a contract with the Washington C.H. Board of Education for a comprehensive city summer recreation program. The recreation program, which will be supported financially by the city, will be conducted under the auspices of the new Community Education program. Hank Shaffer, director of the Community Education program, will serve as the recreation program's head.

AN EMERGENCY ordinance formally accepting the plat of Developers Diversified, of Cleveland, for a K-Mart plaza addition on Columbus Avenue and confirming the dedication of streets and easements was approved.

City Solicitor Gary Smith pointed out that the city will receive a quit-claim deed from the Cleveland-based development firm for an addition of a turning lane on Columbus Avenue in front of the shopping area. Smith said generally warranty deeds are granted in similar situations, but a quit-claim deed has been authorized by him as a courtesy to the developers.

Council members also approved an emergency ordinance for improvement of signing at all Washington C.H. railroad crossings. The city has qualified for the improvement project and only state funds will be used. The project requires no funds from the local level. The improvement of approach and railroad crossing signs will be handled through the Ohio Department of Transportation, Wolford said.

The city's lawmakers also endorsed by resolution support for the preliminary planning study of the proposed Rattlesnake Creek Watershed project. A public hearing on the proposed watershed project will be held April 18 in Sabina.

Wolford explained that the watershed project deals primarily with field drainage for farm crops and it has been estimated that implementation of the watershed project would increase farm revenue in Fayette County by about $5 million per year.

He said the city's only relationship in the proposed project is one of economics because of the estimated increase in farm revenue.

CALL TO COUNCIL

Council chairman John E. Rhoads in fielding a question from the audience said the finance and personnel committees met recently to consider a pay increase for all city employes. Councilman Donald E. Wood had presented a proposal at the last meeting for a pay hike for city workers.

Rhoads said the committees are in the process of designing a wage increase package. He said it will be presented to Council at a later date.

Orville Dixon, superintendent of the sewage treatment plant, said sludge facilities have been in operation at the plant for the past 10 days. The installation of sludge facilities is a part of the temporary improvement project at the sewage treatment plant.

Wolford said the community should notice a significant difference in odor this summer because of the installation of the new temporary facilities.

Bill Duncan, general foreman of the city street department, reported on two street repair projects. They were the Circle Avenue improvement and the sealing of streets on Kenskill Avenue in the city's Industrial Park.

Councilman Joseph O'Brien questioned the repair of a leaky roof over the city police and fire department headquarters. He said some water damage has resulted and the communications system in the police department has also been damaged. Rhoads said he feels repair of the roof would not be too expensive and Wolford said the roof would be repaired immediately.

Rhoads reported to Council on a meeting of the proposed multi-county solid waste collection project he attended in Waverly recently with Charles Funk, county sanitarian, and Dr. William E. Covert, county health commissioner.

He said representatives from Pickaway, Ross, Scioto, Pike, Lawrence and Fayette counties attended the meeting. Officials are attempting to establish a pilot program and means of possible financing. Circleville has been mentioned as the pilot city for the project, according to Rhoads.

McDonald's gets city building permit

The spring building boom is continuing in Washington C. H.

McDonald's, nationally known food chain with Mid-East headquarters at 4435 Fountain Square Dr., Columbus, has been granted a city building permit for the construction of a 39,066-cubic-foot restaurant on Elm Street at Olive Street.

The building, to be constructed of brick and block, will have a serving area and kitchen facilities on the ground floor, plus basement offices and storage space.

The location is across Elm Street from the Fayette County Bank on land acquired from Fayette Center partners. More than 50 parking spaces will be provided.

The cost estimate for the building, which will be erected by the Miller Construction Co., Columbus, was not given with the application, although the outlay is expected to be well up in six figures.

Other new building permits have been issued to:

Donald Blair, 432 Van Deman St., new residence and attached garage on Lot 21, Dayton Ave.; cost estimate $32,000;

Richard Maughmer, 643 Warren Ave., room addition to residence; $5,000;

William L. Wilson, 1114 Vine St., patio at rear of home, $350;

Mrs. Wilma Campbell, patio between house and garage at 520 Wilson St., $150.

Meanwhile, four of the seven defendants charged with conspiring to obstruct justice in the investigation of the Watergate cover-up filed motions Wednesday asking that U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica be disqualified from the case.

Sirica assigned himself to the trial, scheduled for September.

Opinion And Comment

No great credit to Nixon

No matter how one looks at the presidential tax case, President Nixon does not come out of it very well.

The most favorable thing to be said in his behalf is that he has forthrightly kept his promise to abide by the findings of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

Both the committee's highly respected staff and the Internal Revenue Service itself came to the conclusion, on going over Mr. Nixon's income tax returns filed during his presidency, that he has a liability of close to half a million dollars in tax and interest as a result of impermissible deductions.

Fraud is ruled out by both IRS and the committee, but the overriding fact remains that the President owes — and undertakes to pay at once — an amount which the White House says will leave him "almost totally wiped out" financially.

This may occasion sympathy for the President. It does not foster a very high regard for his role in this matter.

Either he relied wholly on his tax lawyers and had no knowledge of what was done, as the White House contends, or (as the tax attorney Frank DeMarco Jr. maintains) he did go over the returns himself with some care and knew what was in them.

In the first case he might be charged with careless delegation of authority; if he did oversee the returns one might deem him insensitive to the concept that a president should take exceptional pains to take no questionable deductions.

In either case, the President does not emerge from the situation with great credit in the eyes of the public.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

The President's tax mistake

WASHINGTON — Why does the President have so many incompetent advisers?

This question was put rather wistfully by a Republican still holding office in the administration when it was revealed that Mr. Nixon must pay $476,000 for tax deficiencies.

That is not the real question. Why, it must be asked, has the President surrounded himself with so many misfits and incompetents, with the tax judgment only the last of a series of damning revelations?

In the final analysis the responsibility is his and this will surely be taken into consideration by the House Judiciary Committee in their deliberation over a bill of impeachment.

Every single step the President took with respect to his taxes over a four-year period was in error. He himself is a lawyer and he should have given more than a cursory look at his returns showing such a huge deduction for the gift of his vice presidential papers.

Those papers, including a number of newspaper clippings, seem to have been a kind of catch-all of uncertain value.

HIS ANNOUNCEMENT on Dec. 8 calling on the joint tax committee of Congress to review his returns with a promise to abide by the committee's finding was a cardinal mistake. That was a privilege open to no other taxpayer.

If he had simply let the reviewing process of the Internal Revenue Service take its course, as it would have with any other citizen in the same situation, he could have contested the finding of IRS before the tax court. Once he had publicly pledged to follow the congressional committee's report to the letter, this option was foreclosed.

The President's personal misfortunes to one side, the blow to the integrety of the tax system is of real concern. If it had not been for the revelation by the Providence Journal that the President for two years paid only miniscule amounts of tax on an income well over $200,000, the whole matter might never have come to light.

The IRS was in the first instance only too happy to play shut-eye with the Nixon returns. After what must surely have been a perfunctory audit, a high IRS official wrote the President complimenting him on the care shown in the preparation of his tax returns. That official, William D. Winters, has since been promoted.

THE INTEGRITY of the income tax system has been a rock on which many crooks have foundered. They might get away with their criminality in the courts or by bribing officials.

But if they failed to pay federal tax on their ill-gotten gains the chances were close to 100 per cent that they would end in prison. Such prohibition ear overlords as Al Capone were found guilty of failing to pay their tax and got stiff jail sentences.

If the system cracks in cynical disbelief, one of the remaining strong points of law enforcement will go with it. Wthout conviction of honesty and unflinching enforcement it will not be workable since even an army of enforcing agents could not police 70 million or 80 million returns.

This week you and I and 81 million others will file individual income tax returns. The report persists, despite IRS playing the possibility down, that taxpayers this time will squeeze out every possible deduction and revenue will fall below expectations.

They will be following the Nixon example with his return showing claimed deductions for flowers sent to funerals and other such petty business.

LET'S FACE IT, the income tax is a curse making us into a nation of bookkeepers. But at least it has been kept honest unlike the tax in France and Italy where the taxpayer is assessed a certain amount and he then proceeds to bargain with the collector to get the best possible deal. With political pull, this can mean zero.

My own returns have been audited for four years running. Because I was on the enemy list I thought it might be political reprisal. My tax attorney says this is unlikely.

In that vast storehouse in West Virginia computers scan each return and under certain circumstances the red light flashes and an audit is ordered.

That is the impersonal turn of fate as millions of ordinary taxpayers, Presidents excepted, have learned.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

She's off to college

Somewhere along in 1943 or 1944, I developed the habit of awakening just before the bugle sounded "First Call" at 5:30 a.m. It was a curious custom, and led me to wonder if we all don't have an internal clock that, after a while, sets itself.

But the odd thing was that for about six months after I was discharged, that clock kept going off: about half-past five I would awake and wait, foggily turn the matter over in my mind, then chuckle and go back to sleep.

In the last six months I have had a recurrence of this eccentric behavior and — much to my surpirse — discovered my wife was suffering the same symptoms. The source can be traced to busing.

Not that dreadful kind of busing you hear so much about, where tender children are dragged away from their friendly neighborhood school, but good busing that takes happy children from all over town to an excellent set of schools.

During her four years in high school — located some seven miles from home — our daughter caught the bus at roughly 7 a.m. (And usually got home around 5:30 p.m. — a fact that led me to sneer at the attacks on daylight saving time. In the winter she left in the dark and got home in the dark without peril to life or limb.

AT THIS POINT a few words on the local geography are in order. We live at the top of a quite steep hill. (Indeed, often after a snow storm the town sand truck backs up our street, spreading sand ahead to provide further traction!) The steepness of the incline always forced the school bus drivers to gear down, making a horrendous racket.

This was the bugle that would suddenly send our daughter into convulsive activity: doors would slam, and she would tear downstairs. Usually she forgot something, so she would roar back up, then down again. Then the back-hall closet door would slam, the back door would slam, and she would do the 100-yard dash to the bus stop.

Meanwhile, as the bus, in first gear, was laboriously ascending the hill, my wife and I would be lying in bed mentally figuring the odds on Jo's missing the connection. The bus would stop, then gear up, and we would wait five minutes to find out whether she had made it, or whether somebody had to climb in the car and make the school run. . . before breakfast.

As we consider breakfast and dinner the serious meals of the day, this taxi duty was thoroughly obnoxious. I, for instance, do not consider the day begun until I have finished my second cup of coffee and read two newspapers.

In all fairness to our daughter, her track record was spectacular. How she did it I will never know: I would swear that on numerous occasions the house door slammed just as the bus began to move away from the stop. But somehow or other, the taxi service was seldom required, and we blessed her.

Now we are suffering from what some saccharine phrasemonger styled the "Empty Nest Syndrome": she is off to college. We are holding up under the strain better than I had anticipated. It's nice, for instance, to have our phone back. (She, perhaps to my secret annoyance, seems to be thriving without the wise and patient guidance of her loving parents.) Yet we both have the same habitual daily response.

EVERY MORNING as the bus grinds its gears for Mt. Everest, my wife and I wake up and wait for the bowling ball to go rolling downstairs, the heard of elephants to come rushing back up, then the bowling ball again, and finally the cannon shot of the slamming door.

The first time nothing happened, I started automatically to go wake her up, on the same wavelength, said, "Maybe her clock didn't go off." Then, suddenly, the truth dawned on us, and we laughed.

So now, when we both wake up on cue, we just look at each other and chuckle. But it's a sentimental, not a derisive chuckle: if the awful truth be told, we both miss that bowling ball bouncing downstairs.

Those incredible sound effects were an integral part of our life, a part we can never experience again. But then, on the other hand, she will never again miss the bus and launch one of us, coffee-less, on a dawn patrol.

To paraphrase St. Augustine, in this world you take your breaks where you find them.

Central State classes resume

WILBERFORCE, Ohio(AP)—Classes will be resumed Monday at tornado-damaged Central State University, officials announced.

"We had originally thought we could call back only seniors, but because of progress in cleaning up the campus and opening offices, we are calling back all students," said Ed Chamness, public information director.

He said students are being told to report back on campus by Sunday.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR RECORD-HERALD:

Today I visited Deer Creek State Park to go fishing. When I arrived there I found that half or more of the park was closed off. I asked one of the park rangers about it, and he just laughed at me and said there wasn't anything I could do about it.

The only place I could get to fish without a boat was in the spillway and it was already crowded.

They have signs everywhere that say "NO VEHICLES BEYOND THIS SIGN". They are placed so that one cannot get within a mile or more of the parks water. Some of the signs are alright because they keep everyone from driving through the fields and tearing them up, that is except one of the so-called game protectors who thinks he is immunne to the restriction when he is off duty. Some of the signs are on good lanes that are graveled.

On television where were commercials advertising to stay in Ohio and use the state facilities. No one can fish in these parks if they are closed. The only place one can fish is where, as I was told, "We can keep an eye on you."

I have even been told to be careful where I park my car because if part of it is past one of their signs I would be fined. Sometimes you have to pass the sign to get off the roadway since the only roads that go through it are Old State Route 207 or county roads.

I have lived in this area for around 17 years. Before the government bought the land it was more accessible than it is now. Almost anyone could hunt of fish along Deer Creek without any problems.

Since the government took the land the restrictions on it have been getting tougher and tougher. Soon on one will be allowed to walk on the land.

The kids around here don't have anything to do since most of the park is closed. Some of them are going to get in trouble trying to find something to do.

Please tell me why this park is almost always partially closed up and inaccessible.

I have written the governor, the director of the Department of Natural Resources, William B. Nye, and have yet to receive an answer.

Ohio newspapers receive awards in competition

ATLANTIC, CITY, N.J. (AP)—Two Ohio newspapers and an Associated Press photographer won awards in the 40th annual National Headliners competition, it was announced Wednesday.

The awards will be presented April 20 at the Headliners banquet here. Presidential speechwriter Patrick Buchanan will speak at the dinner.

The Athens Messenger was cited for a series on highway construction and William Hickey of the Cleveland Plain Dealer won an award for feature columns.

Steve Pyle, of Columbus, Ohio photo editor for The Associated Press, was recognized for his picture of a returning prisoner of war and family.

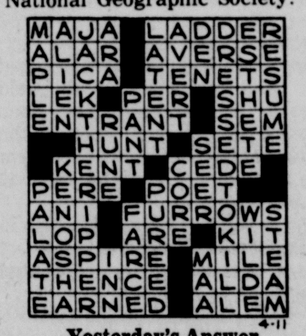

The first ice skates were deer or ox ribs, strapped onto hide boots with leather thongs, according to the National Geographic Society.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: THE TELESCOPE MAKES THE WORLD SMALLER; IT IS ONLY THE MICROSCOPE THAT MAKES IT LARGER.—G. K. CHESTERTON

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Hey! Doesn't hubby have rights

DEAR ABBY: You're the best in your field, but every now and then even you make a mistake. Example: Woman engaged to man who wants to buy a farm. She refuses to live on farm. He gives in. They live in city 28 years.

Now, with retirement approaching, he wants to buy a modest 12 acres, where he can (presumably) raise a little garden, plant a few trees, and perhaps keep a few chickens. He wants to spend his latter years in healthy, happy, productive environment; a most commendable and wholesome idea certainly.

The wife had her way for 28 years. Yet you tell her, "Don't give an inch or you'll wind up with 12 acres!"

Doesn't the husband have any rights? I say he should buy his little retirement plot and move on it, and if she doesn't want to go along-good ridance!

DON BUCK: GIRARD, KAS.

DEAR DON: When you put it that way, I'll have to admit you make a lot of sense, so after thinking it over, I surrender, dear.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest (and envy) the letter from the woman whose husband wanted to share her with his friends. I should be so lucky!

Twelve years ago I married a man who was so effectively taught in his childhood that sex was dirty, that after 12 years of marriage he still thinks sex is sinful.

Need I tell you what kind of bed partner he has been? I have had a lot of time to think about it, and if I had to choose between promiscuity and abstinence, believe me, I'd choose promiscuity.

DOING WITHOUT IN GAINSVILLE

DEAR DOING: I don't envy you, either. But remember, "promiscuity" is no pass to paradise-if you can believe my mail. And I do.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is almost perfect. We've been married for three years and get along fine, but there is one problem. When we are with people Norton is very quiet. I am forever making excuses for him, like, "Oh, Norton is tired tonight," or, "Norton isn't feeling well."

When he and I are alone together he is fine, but when we're in company, he clams up. People keep asking me if he's mad.

Have you any suggestions for him? Or for me?

NORTON'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell Norton that silence is sometimes mistaken for unfriendliness, so please try to be more sociable. But don't nag him about it. He's probably shy, and too much pushing on your part will make him even more self-conscious.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HEART-BROKEN PARENTS: From your letter I would say that you did your best. Now, quit punishing yourselves. Some parents "train up a child in the way he should go," and out of sheer spite and rebellion, the child deliberately departs from it.

Underground phone line undamaged

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said Wednesday its new $100 million underground cable system escaped damage in last week's Midwest tornadoes.

Some of the system's major operating facilities are located underground near Xenia, Ohio, which was heavily damaged by the twisters.

"The system, itself, is buried four feet underground and nothing happened to it," an AT&T spokesman said.

The spokesman said the company temporarily adjusted its Ohio telephone system last week to give priority to outgoing calls from tornado-struck towns.

"Thousands of worried people trying to call into the area after the disaster were jamming the lines, so we adjusted some controls to keep lines available for outgoing calls," he said.

The Ohio system is part of AT&T's newest and biggest cable network for long distance calls. Opened March 6, the network services long distance calls in a five-state area from Pittsburgh, Pa., to St. Louis, Mo.

The company said the new system is the largest capacity cable system now operating in the United States. It is capable of transmitting 108,000 long distance phone calls simultaneously. Eventually, it will be able to handle 132,000 calls at once.

Big profit on wheat reported

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A firm that has been engaged in grain sales to the Soviet Union and China has reported profits for a recent nine-month period were up 339 per cent.

However, company officials said dealings with the two Communist powers were not the main reason for the record profits reported Tuesday.

Cook Industries Inc. said earnings were $12.90 per share, compared with $3.80 per share for the same period a year ago. After-tax net profits for the nine months ending Feb. 28 were more than $39 million, up from more than $11.5 million.

Bill Barksdale, a Cook spokesman, said the rise in profits was more the result of the Cook Transportation Division cornering the market on shipping than on trading with the Communist nations.

The division controls more than 1,500 rail cars and 200 barges. It is therefore able to move grain to customers while other companies find themselves without a means of delivery.

Since the 1972 Russian sale, Cook Industries has launched a massive expansion campaign — acquiring grain elevators, constructing storage facilities at ports and forming the transportation division.

Lower chamber wins fights

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — They may call the House the lower chamber of the Ohio legislature—but it came out on top twice with the Senate last week.

House members enjoyed the victories immensely—even cheered.

One standoff, which had raged for months, resulted in a House victory and three former senators being taken out of a $600,000 measure paying sundry claims against the state.

The three had tried to collect salaries for two years remaining in their terms after they were reapportioned out of their seats in 1966. The amount involved was $16,000 each.

After the House rejected two conference committee reports that included the former senators, the so-called upper chamber relented so others claims in the bill—some of which had been pending for several years—could be paid.

Among the unpaid claims was that of a widow and six children whose husband and father had been killed in a traffic accident involving an erring state employe.

Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo, helped persuade the senators to go along with the House by pointing out the hazards one must accept when embarking on a political career.

"Reapportionment is something that can affect us all," he said. "I'm living in an apartment on a road I didn't even want to live on while our family home is standing empty."

Cook's district was reshuffled by Democratic reapportionment in 1970.

A cheer went up in the House when the Senate's backdown was announced.

"They just didn't have a leg to stand on," said one House member.

In the other victory, the House succeeded in taking out of a new campaign financing bill a provision that would have reinstated Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, as an eligible political candidate.

Lukens was ruled off the ballot for five years for failure to file his 1972 personal campaign financial statement on time.

In the second case, the Senate divided. Democrats remained united and Cook joined them in opposing the so-called Lukens amendment. The vote first time around was 16-15 with a constitutional majority of 17 required.

After a conference committee agreed to remove the amendment, the bill went back to the Senate and received 27-3 approval.

Local women to be honored Hospital Day

Three area residents will be honored for their service to the veterans hospitalized at the Chillicothe VA Hospital on Hospital Day, Sunday, May 5. A special awards program planned for 11 a.m. in the hospital recreation hall is open to the public.

Mrs. Fred Rost, 922 Briar Avenue, will be recognized for serving over 1750 hours. A member of the Fayette County Chapter, American Red Cross, Mrs. Rost has been a volunteer at the hospital since 1957. She works in occupational therapy with the patients and has also been active in the sports program. Because of her knowledge of the hospital, she assists with special activities, such as the Christmas Gift Shop, and acts as a tour guide for visitors.

To be honored for 300 hours of service, Mrs. Margaret Cokonougher, 2902 SW Armbrust Road, spends each Sunday at the hospital, acting as a receptionist on one of the busiest building. Mrs. Cokonougher is a member of the Auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4964.

Also a volunteer serving under the auspices of the American Red Cross is Miss Elizabeth McDonald of 226 South North Street. Miss McDonald took her hospital volunteer training in 1972 and has now served over 100 hours in nursing service.

Couple exchange vows in Bowersville church

Altar vases of yellow and white gladioli with starburst pompoms adorned the altar and yellow and white bows with greenery marked the aisles in the Bowersville United Methodist Church for the marriage of Miss Relna J. Kelly, and Steven D. Morris on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Candelabra with palm leaves and bows completed the setting.

The Rev. David Dayton performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Kelly, 7129 Zimmerman Rd., Sabina, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Morris of Jeffersonville.

Mrs. David Dayton, organist, presented organ selections, "Impossible Dream," "This Guy's in Love with You," "We've Only Just Begun," and "Oh Promise Me."

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Kelly wore a formal gown of white chiffon over slipper satin. Venice lace and pearls accented the mandarin collar, empire waist and the seven buttons on the cuffs of the long full sleeves. A chiffon bow trimmed with matching lace at the waist held the detachable train. She carried the lace gloves that her maternal grandmother wore on her wedding day. Her flowers made a cascade of white roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Rita Kelly, sister of the bride and matron of honor, wore a formal gown of yellow chiffon with floral bodice and matching hat. She carried a cascaede of starburst pompons centered with a yellow cattleya orchid.

Mrs. Kelly, the bride's mother, chose a light peach knit dress with matching accessories. The groom's mother wore an aqua knit dress with matching accessories.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The certainty NBC will make a series based on nine books about frontier life on the prairie is causing a gentleman farmer in Charlottesville, Va., more joy than a record crop this week.

"I'm beaming all over," says Roger L. MacBride, who said he's learned that "The Little House on the Prairie," a made-for-TV movie NBC aired March 30, will be a regular series next fall.

The movie, which drew extremely high ratings, starred Michael Landon. It was adapted from one of the classic "Little House" books written by the late Laura Ingalls Wilder, who died at age 90 in 1957.

Where does MacBride fit in? He's her great-grandson by adoption. And he owns the rights to the books, which chronicle the struggle of Mrs. Wilder's youth and her family in the Midwest of the 1870s.

"I've just heard that the NBC lawyers are writing our lawyers out in Hollywood that they've picked up the option and that it will be a series," he said in a telephone interview.

"Isn't that terrific? I've been up all night, as you can imagine, talking to people."

MacBride, 44, had just stepped out of the shower to answer the phone. Although a Yankee by birth, raised in Mt. Kisco, N.Y., he was as courtly as a native Virginian about his unexpected caller.

NBC, when called, said it couldn't comment about new series until it unveils its new fall line next week. But knowledgeable industry sources said "Little House" definitely will be among those wares.

MacBride, a lawyer, said he now specializes in Canadian land development deals in addition operating his farm. He was asked how the whole TV deal came about.

"It's odd how these things work," he said. "Walt Disney for years wanted to do it, but he couldn't ever persuade any of his production men to agree.

"All of a sudden, about 2½ years ago, there was a mob descending — through the publishers — on me, wanting to buy the rights."

From these supplicants, he said, he chose producer Ed Friendly. How'd he know of him?

"Didn't," he said. "He was a complete stranger, but I liked his style ... he impressed me as an extremely intelligent fellow whom I thought could do a good job of keeping the book's spirit."

MacBride, who said he'll be a part-time consultant on the series, is himself an author. He's written one book on treaties and the U.S. Constitution and another on the American electoral college.

Mud deposits form islands in Istanbul's Golden Horn

ISTANBUL (AP) — The stagnant waters of the Golden Horn are silting up rapidly, and in the higher stretches low mud island are appearing and forming stretches of dry land.

Kamil Bakkal, a local dealer in animal intestines, has built himself a hut and drying-sheds for his unsavory wares on one of them, and now lives and works right in the middle of the once beautiful waterway.

Experts warned some years ago that the Golden Horn would be solid ground by the end of this century. They blame not only the industrial areas of Alibeykoy and Kagithane at the head of the five-mile long estuary, but also the three bridges which now span it. The uppermost of these, being built as part of the ring-road complex attached to the Bosporus Bridge linking Europe to Asia, is not yet complete.

The bridges, the experts say, slow down the already sluggish currents in the estuary, which are incapable of carrying their alluvial load down to the point where the Golden Horn flows into the Sea of Marmara.

THE STREAMS that feed the estuary were once known as "the Sweet Waters of Europe." Now they too are laden down with industrial and human wastes, and robbed of their ability to enter the estuary with any force.

The experts have suggested the construction of a canal right round the north of the Old City, which stands on a peninsual between the Horn and the Marmara, to flush out the dirty waters trapped in the estuary.

The cost, however, would be prohibitive, municipal authorities say.

In some sections of the Golden Horn the deepest water is now only a few feet deep, and only thick mud prevents wading from one bank to the other. Wildlife is nonexistent.

Kamil Bakkal, who buys intestines from nearby abbatoirs and dries them for sale to sausage-makers, has not yet given his island a name, according to a Turkish journalist who braved the stench to visit him.

Scores of other islets and mud-banks in the stretch north of the new bridge may well attract other squatters trying to beat Istanbul's rapidly rising rents. Municipal authorities say they have not yet decided what attitude to adopt on the problem.

Glenn withdraws from debate with Metzenbaum

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — John Glenn says he is withdrawing from a scheduled May 3 debate at the Cleveland City Club unless his opponent for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, makes a full financial disclosure.

Glenn told a news conference Wednesday that except for an April 25 debate scheduled to be aired over WEWS-TV, Cleveland, he will not meet Metzenbaum unless the senator makes public his income tax returns and debts.

Metzenbaum called Glenn's decision "incredible," adding: "I would never have thought that a man with his Marine Corps background would have walked away from a direct confrontation."

Referring to the disclosure issue, he said it was a "total copout to argue this has some relevance as to whether we should debate."

A Metzenbaum aide said the senator will stand on the financial disclosure made earlier, which listed his financial holdings and summarized his earnings and taxes for the years 1967 through 1973.

The aide charged that Glenn is "really afraid to debate with the senator on the issues...He probably feels he can't hold his own on the issues and has chosen this way out...The reasons he's given just don't hang together."

Glenn said he is excepting the April 25 date because the commitment was made before he laid down conditions under which he would debate Metzenbaum.

But the former astronaut raised the possibility that the WEWS-TV debate might be canceled also if he finds the format unacceptable.

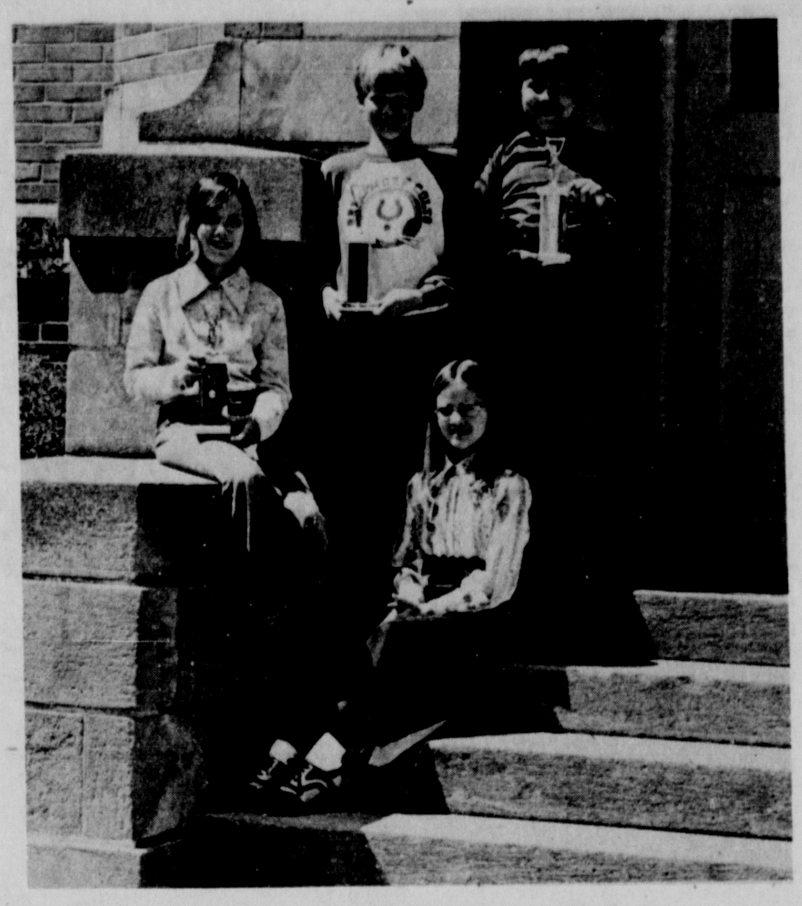

He said he wants a format in which both candidates would be interviewed by a panel of newsmen.

City Club President Sidney D. Josephs said he was "shocked" by Glenn's withdrawal after his aides had given a commitment that he would appear.

"We've had Senate candidates appear for as long as I can remember," Josephs said.

He said if Glenn holds to his decision, Metzenbaum will have the platform to himself on May 3.

Glenn says he considers financial disclosure a major issue and has issued a statement listing his net worth, liabilities and also included copies of his income tax returns.

Youth scores as marksman

A Washington C.H. youth has received word from the National Rifle Association that he has placed in all four individual matches of the annual DeMolay International Rifle Match.

Stephen Six, master councilor of Fayette Chapter, Order of DeMolay, placed 12th in a 33-feet match and was in the top 20 in the 15 and 25 feet classes. There were 405 DeMolay participants this year.

Six, the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Six, 8 Heritage Court, and other local DeMolay members to be chosen will represent the Fayette chapter in the 1974 state matches at Akron University in August.

Hugh Rea is advisor of the Fayette chapter.

$200 loss reported in automobile fire

A car fire did $200 damage at 12:36 p.m. Wednesday.

Firemen were summoned to the southwest corner of Market and Fayette streets where the car, owned by Mrs. Ralph Gibson, 211 Gardner Court, was burning. They put out the blaze with water and carbon dioxide extinguishers.

Cause of the fire was determined to be a faulty fuel line which spilled gas on the motor.

Nixon, Kissinger hold talks with Algeria's Boumedienne

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger are opening talks with Algerian leader Houari Boumedienne in an effort to gain influence with the increasingly important Arab leader.

The two administration officials scheduled a morning meeting at the White House with Boumedienne, who is making his first visit to any Western nation.

The Boumedienne meetings takes on extra importance because of the jolt given U.S.Mideast policy by the collapse of the Golda Meir Cabinet in Israel.

The United States and Algeria have not had diplomatic relations since the Israeli-Arab war in 1967 and President Nixon asked for today's meeting as a prelude to resumption of formal contacts.

There were several reasons for the American effort, including wider access to the extensive natural gas fields in Algeria. But international politics was a major motivation.

Kissinger has been trying to increase American influence among the major Arab nations in order to strengthen his leverage in arranging a Middle East settlement.

Boumedienne has moved increasingly into a leadership role among the Arabs and Kissinger seeks closer ties to avoid being dependent on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for his influence in the area.

In addition Boumedienne has become a leader among less developed nations generally. He is in the United States to attend a special United Nations General Assembly meeting called at his initiative on pricing and allocating of raw materials held by developing nations.

Boumedienne is expected to resist any quick re-establishment of relations without some direct link to a new phase in the Middle East peace move, particularly another Israeli troop pullback.

It is extremely unlikely that this will happen until Israel's political situation stabilizes and that may take months.

Millions of workers affected by wave of Japanese strikes

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese labor's annual "shunto," its spring wage offensive, reached its peak today with millions of workers on a one-to-five-day strike affecting more than half the nation's 108 million people.

It was the closest thing to a general strike in Japan's history.

The workers struck the railroads, subways, buses, taxis, airlines and commercial shipping.

Also hit were schools; telegraph, government and post offices; municipal garbage collection; forestry preserves; the government printing agency and the mint.

The nationwide labor movement is seeking wage hikes of 30 to 35 per cent to counter the soaring cost of living, which rose 24 per cent last year under the pressure from the increase in oil prices.

Some industries have already given in. But Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka has refused to budge from an offer of an 18.7 per cent increase for government workers, including those on the national railway, and has also failed to satisfy the rail workers' demands for the legal right to strike. Tanaka proposed a two-year study of the right-to-strike question by a special cabinet council.

The transport strikes affected more than 40 million people, or two-thirds of the work force. Those who didn't stay home struggled to their offices and factories on foot, by bicycle, car pool or motorcycle.

The Education Ministry said about 15 million primary, middle and high school students — about 96 per cent of the total — got a holiday as the 500,000-member teachers' union went on strikes ranging from one to eight hours.

The 13,600-member Federation of Civil Aviation Workers, including 3,500 in foreign airlines, declared strikes of from two to 72 hours, causing delays in cargo handling and passenger services.

Music director in the soup

COLUMBUS, Ohto (AP) — A shortage of $1,108.08 has been uncovered in the band activity account held by the Coblentz Local School District in Preble County, state Auditor Joseph Ferguson reported today.

Ferguson held the system's music director, David C. Mowery, responsible for the money.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The annual convention and trade show of the American photo industry is an important barometer of what's ahead for this country's camera fans.

This year it's something special because the Master Photo Dealers and Finishers Assn. were celebrating their 50th anniversary at their sessions in Chicago in late March. For the occasion, major manufacturers and distributors were unveiling new films and equipment that will affect or concern the country's picture takers.

Probably most newsworthy was the announcement of a three-film shakeup. First is the replacement of popular Kodachrome II film by new Kodachrome 25 (daylight) film in all sizes for still cameras and in 8mm and 16mm movie sizes.

Secondly, present Kodachrome-X will be replaced by new Kodachrome 64 (daylight) film. Both new films for still cameras should be available at dealers starting in April.

Thirdly, new Kodachrome 40 movie film (type A) will replace type A Kodachrome II in double-8mm and 16mm sizes. It is scheduled for distribution in July along with new Kodachrome 25 movie film (daylight).

However, movie makers with super 8mm cameras will have to wait till fall this year before Kodachrome 40 (type A) film reaches camera stores.

FOLLOWING a demonstration for press representatives of the differences between the new and present films, these points can be made:

There is no increase in film speed in the changes to new emulsions but there is clearer knowledge of each film's rated speed because it's incorporated in the new film's name.

Thus, new Kodachrome 25 has an ASA 25 film speed. New Kodachrome 64 has an ASA 64 film speed. And new Kodachrome 40 (type A) has an ASA 40 film speed. With a box of new film, you know immediately what to set the ASA rating at without hunting for the instruction sheet.

In comparing new Kodachrome 25 with Kodachrome II, officials acknowledge no improved grain or sharpness but say that these qualities have been maintained at a similar level.

There is a general improvement in tone and color reproduction in the new film but the change is very subtle and takes a keen eye to be aware of it.

The yellows are slightly cleaner and reds, blues and greens are a bit brighter. The sky tone has less magenta and may be more natural although some camera fans may prefer the magenta tone as it is now.

ON THE WHOLE, since Kodachrome II has been considered for many years by top photographers as the standard for color film quality, it's disappointing that a change did not include a faster film speed while maintaining its other characteristics.

That would have been a practical and valuable improvement.

In comparisons between new Kodachrome 64 and Kodachrome-X, the differences and improvement are more readily seen.

The new film has lower contrast; is less grainy and a bit sharper; has more exposure latitude and better color rendition. A noticeable area of improvement is in more pleasing flesh tones.

When scenes taken with new Kodachrome 40 (type A) movie film were compared with similar scenes shot on Kodachrome II (type A), the results showed better color rendition in general with improved flesh tones in particular. Officials reported it is also a bit less grainy.

As the new films become available, present films will be phased out. However, Kodachrome II professional film (type A) will continue to be supplied in 36 exposure, 35mm cartridges for approximately one year. After that a new film of similar speed and color balance is expected to be introduced.

PRICES and processing charges for the new films will remain the same as for corresponding films and services that they replace.

A revolutionary new system of slide projection and a new line of low-profile movie projectors were also introduced at the Chicago trade show.

The projector, designed by Hanimex engineers in Australia, for slides made in 110 pocket-camera format, employs no trays, slide containers or cubes such as conventional projectors now use. Instead it uses an endless nylon belt just over an inch wide, on the outside of which slides are mounted in steel clips.

The loop of slides is dropped over two spindles within the projector which is then capable of advancing them at great speed, more than three a second. The projector can show a belt of 120 slides in just over half a minute, a unique featuer for conveying sequential motion as in a time lapse series, animation or a zoom sequence.

The Rondette 110 projector can be operated conventionally forward, in reverse and also from a remote position. It has an imput for sound synchronization, another feature indicating potential for serious photography in the future by "pocket" photographers. Deliveries to American dealers are scheduled to begin in August.

THERE ARE six new Kodak Moviedeck models in the line of projectors for regular 8 and super 8mm movies with low-profile design, hi-fi decor and innovative features to make exciting viewing.

They eliminate the tradition upright film reels which resemble ferris wheels and put them instead in a horizontal position so that the top 400-foot reel looks like a record on a record player. The take-up reel is hidden below, out of sight.

JUMPING from one thing to another sometimes has its advantages. Like William M. Johannes of Columbus, Ohio. He was on a fire escape trying to photograph clouds when a small boy came along having great fun jumping puddles. Johannes changed his view to the one below him and the picture won a prize in the 1973 KINSA, the Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards.

Folk music fete slated April 17 at Chillicothe

CHILLICOTHE — The sounds of Appalachian folk music and the lifestyles of early settlers and miners will be presented Wednesday, April 17, when Ohio University-Chillicothe hosts the Green Parks Company at 8 p.m. in Bennett Hall Auditorium. Admission is free and area students and residents are invited to attend this musical history of early America.

The Green Parks Company was formed in the summer of 1973 to bring folk music and dance to southeastern Ohio state park campgrounds. The group is a project of the Ohio Valley Summer Theater and the Ohio University School of Theater. They present traditional songs of the Appalachian region from the period between the War of 1812 and World War I.

Impressed by the cultural and educational aspects of the Green Parks program, Ohio Congressman Clarence Miller arranged with the National Parks Service for the group to go to Washington, D. C. In October they performed in Lafayette Park, across from the White House, to a crowd of over 1,000 in DuPont Circle. Government officials and people of all ages, races and economic backgrounds shared the hill traditions with them.

DP&L getting synthetic gas

DAYTON — The Dayton Power and Light Co. announces that the first plant for production of synthetic gas to replace volumes of natural gas no longer available to the company is now in production.

The plant is at Green Springs, near Fremont. It was built at a cost of $44 million and is operated by Columbia Gas Corp.

The plant is capable of reforming petroleum feedstocks into 75 billion cubic feet of pipeline quality gas a year. DP&L has contracted for its proportionate share of 4.8 billion cubic feet per year.

This project is the first completed in a long range program to develop new gas supplies to replace the volumes of natural gas no longer available. While the new synthetic gas will cost much more than natural gas, it is the only way the quantities curtailed can be replaced.

The company's principal gas supplier, Columbia Gas, has informed DP&L it can anticipate increasing curtailments of its contracted deliveries of natural gas from the present 5 per cent to 21 per cent in 1977-78.

DP&L's purchases of the higher cost synthetic gas are to replace these curtailments in order that the needs of the company's existing customers can be met.

C. of C. backs watershed hearing

The Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce board of directors endorsed an April 18 hearing in Sabina concerning the proposed Rattlesnake Creek Watershed project during the regular meeting Thursday morning.

The public hearing is being held in an effort to hasten the proposed watershed project which involves some 177,000 acres of farm land. The directors reached the decision to endorse the public hearing after Clarence Cooper discussed the need for channelization and the economic impact.

Cooper said that Fayette County agriculture presently generates more than $25 million annually and the figure could be increased by 25 or 50 per cent with adequate drainage. Officials from the Ohio Department of Natural Resources will conduct the April 18 hearing.

THE BOARD was also advised that the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce has arranged an April 23 meeting with William B. Nye, director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, to seek expedition of proposed developments at Deer Creek state park. The session will attract officials from the New Holland, Circleville, Mount Sterling, Chillicothe and Columbus chambers of commerce as well as one state legislators. Projections call for lodging and recreational developments similar to those presently in existence at Hueston Woods and Salt Fork.

Board members discussed recent severe weather attacks and agreed to support and encourage Washington C. H. and Fayette County officials to develop and test a warning system for the area.

In other business, the directors reviewed plans for the annual membership meeting to be held Tuesday, June 4; appointed a 1974-1975 budget committee and discussed fund-raising projects; agreed to participate in the Washington C. H. and Miami Trace Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) spring banquet, and established May 2 as a tentative date for an open town meeting in Washington C. H. that is being planned by the Chamber of Commerce's public relations committee.

Board members were also advised that Monday, April 15, is the final day for preliminary balloting for new Chamber of Commerce directors.

High court issues rulings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's Supreme Court has ruled against Richard B. Kay in his bid to oust fellow Clevelander Arthur L. Cain as state chairman of the American Independent Party (AIP).

But the unanimous decision Wednesday was based on a finding that the chairmanship of the party is an internal matter, and that the office is not a "public office" having anything to do with "the sovereign functions of government."

Records showed Kay was elected chairman in 1972 at a meeting called by four newly elected central committeemen. He then went to court to seek the ouster of Cain, who had been chairman.

In another case, the Supreme Court upheld a Board of Tax Appeals ruling that Quaker Apartments of Wilmington, operated by a non-profit corporation, does not qualify for exemption from state sales and use taxes.

Quaker sought the exemption on the cost of materials used in the construction of an 80-unit building reserved for the poor and handicapped, for whom a federal agency pays part of the rent.

In its 6-1 decision—with Chief Justice C. William O'Neill dissenting—the court held that in order to qualify for the exemption, the company would have to meet a qualification that the housing was used "exclusively for charitable purposes."

Quaker does not do this, the court said, in effect, because its tenants are required to pay at least part of their rent.

Grand jury probe of Nixon taxes?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service has declined to comment on a report that the IRS had requested a grand jury investigation of possible criminal conspiracy in the preparation of President Nixon's tax returns.

The New York Times, citing "well-placed sources," reported today that IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander had asked Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski to start the probe, to focus on Nixon's claim of a $576,000 deduction for donating his prepresidential papers to the National Archives.

There was no immediate comment on the story from Jaworski's office. However, a spokesman for the special prosecutor on Wednesday declined to disclose whether any matters connected with Nixon's taxes were under study.

The Times said its sources reported that Alexander had discussed the taxes question with Jaworski last week and had provided the prosecutor with a list of Nixon associates and former aides to be investigated in connection with the matter.

Both the IRS and a joint congressional panel have ruled that the gift deduction was improper because of a back-dated deed that was actually signed after the law permitting such deductions had expired. Because of this and other findings, Nixon agreed to pay $432,787.13 plus interest in back taxes.

Atty. Gen. William Saxbe said Tuesday that material related to California attorney Frank DeMarco had been turned over to Jaworski. DeMarco has admitted back-dating the deed for Nixon's papers.

A spokesman for the Justice Department declined to comment on The Times story Wednesday night.

Bobby Griffith convicted of 4 charges

NEW LEXINGTON, Ohio (AP) — A 33-year-old state prison inmate has been convicted on four charges at the end of a stormy day in court, during which he disrupted proceedings and threw a file at the judge.

Bobby Ray Griffith was convicted Wednesday of armed robbery, burglary, larceny and auto theft by a jury of nine women and three men in Perry County Common Pleas Court.

At one point, while the jury was out of the courtroom and attorneys were arguing a legal point, the defendant shouted, "Why don't you send all of the stuff back with the jurors."

He then threw his attorney's manila file on the case at Judge Robert G. Tague. The papers scattered above and around the judge's head.

Tague ordered Griffith handcuffed and gagged.

The crimes occurred in New Straitsville after Griffith's escape March 15, 1973 from a Franklin County Common Pleas Court, police said.

Great Caesar's ghost town decides to ground Superman

METROPOLIS, Ill. (AP) — Great Caesar's ghost! Superman has been grounded in his self-proclaimed hometown.

The "Amazing World of Superman," a project that was supposed to rival Disneyland and bring Metropolis a supershare of the tourist business, is going into mothballs.

About three years ago, someone got the idea Superman would make a dandy favorite son. After all, didn't the comic book Man of Steel live in a place called Metropolis and work there on the Daily Planet newspaper?

Enthusiasm ran so high that a full-length portrait of Superman was painted on the town water tower, and the local weekly newspaper changed its name to the Planet.

Last spring, to the accompaniment of a Marine Corps band and a chorus of gospel singers, a Superman exhibition hall — Amazing World's first phase — opened in a refurbished roller rink.

Politicians gave their blessings, Superman's creator gave the hall an X-ray vision once over and hopes bounded high.

Then it got very quiet. Nobody came.

James W. Crain, 40, chairman of the board of Metropolis Recreation, Inc., owners of the project, said Wednesday nearly everything has gone wrong — delay in construction of a nearby superhighway, too much rain, the gasoline shortage and rising prime interest rates.

This week, signs were posted announcing an auction of the hall's fixtures. Crain isn't sure whether the exhibits, among them the art work for the first Superman comic in 1934 and the costume worn by George Reeves in the Superman television series, will be sold.

Detroit to host energy meeting

DETROIT (AP) — Experts from 55 nations will meet here this fall to see what can be done to help solve the world's future energy problems.

The Ninth World Energy Conference (Sept. 22-27) will draw some 4,500 persons, including influential government ministers, economists, scientsists, engineers, educators and executives in the energy industry. Specialists from some 45 members nations will prepare some 250 technical papers for advance placement with the registrants. More than 3,000 delegates will come from foreign countries, 20 per cent from various government agencies. The balance will come from utilities and industries involved in the production and transmission of energy.

The world group headquartered in London was founded in 1924 and is composed of national chapters in 69 countries. Its only other conference held in the U.S. was convened in Washington D.C. in 1936. It will cost about $2 million to stage the latest meeting, most of which will come from registration fees and contributions from companies and industries.

Associate attorney general talks himself out of job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe's political friend, J.D. Sawyer, has talked himself out of a top Justice Department job and the fancy new office suite Saxbe provided him.

Saxbe has decided to abolish the $38,000-a-year job of associate attorney general less than three months after he appointed Sawyer to it.

Sawyer said he recommended the move because he concluded "there is really no role for the associate attorney general ...if the department is to function effectively and along traditional lines."

By recommending an end to his own job, he became a rarity in the Washington bureaucracy.

The sudden end of Sawyer's Justice Department career was announced today as part of a plan to scrap a departmental reorganization imposed by former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson.

Saxbe's decision, subject to staff review for two weeks, returns the department to a traditional system Richardson considered fragmented and ineffective.

Sawyer, who managed Saxbe's successful Senate campaign in 1968, said he expects to leave the department in about six weeks and return to his real estate business in Middletown, Ohio, after a Florida vacation.

He told reporters that when he accepted the job, he anticipated staying about a year.

As it turned out, he stayed hardly long enough to settle into an office suite enlarged and redecorated at a cost of $25,500.

Soybeans still top cash crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says soybeans will continue as the nation's leading cash crop again this year despite a prospective buildup in reserves by next fall when the 1974 harvest is ready.

Farmers sold an estimated $8.1 billion worth of soybeans in calendar 1973, the department said Wednesday in a report on the fats and oils situation.

Those sales — cash receipts — included beans from both 1972 and 1973 production.

But prices for 1973-crop soybeans, although down from erratic peaks a year ago, have been relatively stable and are high enough so that 1974 appears to be another top year for the oilseed.

The report emphasized that "cash receipts" refer to that portion of a crop sold by farmers. In the case of soybeans, most are sold for cash. Corn, on the other hand, has a larger "farm value" — more than $13.3 billion for 1973 output — but nearly half is used on farms that produce it.

Farmers have indicated they will plant about 55 million acres of soybeans this spring, which could mean a crop of about 1.54 billion bushels, down slightly from the 1973 record.

Meantime, the USDA report said, the big crop last year plus a small reserve last fall meant a record soybean supply of more than 1.6 billion bushels was available for use during the 1973-74 season.

Total use is estimated at around 1.4 billion bushels, meaning the carryover next Sept. 1 when the 1974 crop is ready will be about 240 million bushels.

"This would be the second largest carryover of record, surpassed only by the 327 million bushels of Sept. 1, 1969," the report said.

"However, the carryover this fall will be composed entirely of free stocks, in contrast to earlier when about 95 per cent of the 327 million bushels was in government hands."

Prices paid farmers rose from a little over $5 per bushel last November to $5.96 in March. The report said the average for soybeans from last Sept. 1 through March was $5.75 per bushel, compared with $4.19 during the same period in 1972-73.

At the same time, the report indicated, many soybean farmers apparently have become a little more wary about market trends. Through February, it said, producers had put 123 million bushels of beans under price support loan protection, compared with 89 million a year earlier.

"Although prices are two and a half times the support level ($2.25 per bushel), farmers are using the loan for interim financing and a means of holding beans for sale later on," the report said.

New construction reports required by county auditor

Fayette County Auditor Mary Morris has issued a reminder that all real property owners are required by Ohio law to report new construction or improvements of existing buildings to the county auditor's office.

Mrs. Morris said under section 5713.17 of the Ohio Revised Code, "all real property owners are required to report to the county auditor the construction or the improvement to any building located on any lot or tract of land within a township or municipal corporation."

The county auditor said problems have arisen since five of the townships in Fayette County are not zoned. These are Green, Jasper, Jefferson, Madison and Perry.

The city of Washington C.H. and Union, Paint, Concord, Marion and Wayne townships are zoned, and building permits are necessary for new construction or improvement of existing buildings.

Mrs. Morris said since building permits are necessary in Washington C.H. and the five townships, the county auditor's office has knowledge of the construction.

IT IS IMPORTANT that all new construction or building improvement be reported to the county auditor in order that the appraisers can value the property.

The Cole-Layer- Trumble Co., of Dayton, which completed Fayette County's last real estate reappraisal, has been in the county each of the last six years since the 1968 reappraisal and has added new construction to the tax duplicate at a fee of $6,000 annually.

Mrs. Morris said upon failure to give notice as provided in the section of the Ohio Revised Code of new construction or an improvement and upon discovery of the work, the property will be appraised immediately and placed on the tax duplicate together with a tax penalty of 50 per cent for each of the years from the date of discovery.

David Vangundy is handling the addition of new construction to the tax duplicate for the county as an associate of the Cole-Layer-Trumble Co., of Dayton

Sport center destroyed by blaze

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Daytona Beach Jai-Alai fronton, valued at $3.5 million, has been almost completely destroyed by a fire that began less than two hours after Wednesday night's games, fire officials said.

Fire officials reported no injuries.

"It's the worst I've heard of here in 15 years with the department," said Assistant Fire Chief Terry Dickerson as the blaze continued, whipped by 14-mile-an-hour winds, toward dawn today.

First reports from pari-mutuel workers in the building when the fire started indicated that the fire broke out in the building's vent system.

The fronton had been open less than two weeks, after the Florida Supreme Court agreed closing it could cost the state $1 million in revenue and cause economic problems in the area.

The state Pari-Mutuel Wagering Division had refused the owners, Emprise, Corp., an operating permit on grounds Emprise was convicted in California of a federal gambling law violation.

The case was headed for a hearing before an appeal court.

Red China upset by trade news

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chinese are upset about news commentaries that trade prospects with the United States have cooled, a China authority and corporate trade negotiator reports.

Officials of the People's Republic, Harned Pettus Hoose said, are anxious that trade relations continue to develop. "I was asked to please make this known to business circles in the United States. They were emphatic," Hoose said.

He added: "They are very disturbed and resentful of such reports and ask what is being done to cope with them."

Hoose, a lawyer who was born and who lived 23 years in China, and who has spent six of the past 24 months negotiating for American corporations there, said he was asked continually in a recent visit to comment on the alleged cooling.

"I told them I saw no evidence of it," said Hoose, who maintains that any such reports resulted, in his opinion, from an inability of some observers to assess a nation as large and complex as China.

"It's like the blind feeling an elephant," he said. "One feels the tail and believes the elephant is cool; another feels the trunk and believes the elephant is hot."

The Chinese, however, aren't inclined to accept such a simple explanation. To them, Hoose said, "reports about cooling off must originate with Taiwan or the Soviet Union or from circles that are enimical to the Chinese."

Partly because they believe the Soviets are a "very real and immediate threat," in Hoose's words, the Chinese are committed to economic expansion through trade.

In Canton, for example, the government has constructed an enormous trade building to replace older facilities. The complex is at least 20 times larger than the existing facility, with hundreds of acres of grounds and buildings.

Further evidence of a commitment to trade, said Hoose, are dozens of new hotels in Canton, Shanghai and Peking, the development of more dock space and even a system for handling containerized cargo.

PEDAL POWER — A new form of transportation called the "People's Powered Vehicle," (PPV) has made its appearance in Washington C.H. All it requires is leg muscles and if you don't have 'em, you soon will! Grove Davis (left) purchased the PPV for his daughter, Janie (middle), to enable her to get around better by herself. Janie was stricken with encephalitis 10 years ago, leaving her motor coordination somewhat impaired. The PPV has three speeds and supposedly reaches a speed of 35 miles per hour with two people pedaling as fast as they can (and maybe downhill.) Mrs. Jerry Green, Bloomingburg, is in the driver's seat ready to go.

Unemployment assistance offered to storm victims

COLUMBUS — Residents of six Ohio counties are eligible for Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA) as a result of killer tornadoes which ripped through the area last Wednesday.

In response to a plea from Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan, Adams, Butler, Greene, Hamilton, Madison and Warren counties have been declared major disaster areas by President Richard M. Nixon,

The Ohio Bureau of Employment Services began preparing DUA payments after the governor directed administrator William E. Garnes to give the situation in stricken areas the highest priority.

Gov. Gilligan, who visited the devastated parts of the state within hours after the disaster, also told the OBES administrator that residents within the area are to be given every consideration possible.

ELIGIBLE for unemployment assistance payments will be those who live or work in the disaster area, either for themselves or for an employer, and who:

No longer have a job or a place to work in the area; can not get to their place of employment, even if the work were outside the disaster area, and those who are prevented from going to work because of an illness or injury resulting from the disaster.

DUA payments are retroactive to the date of the storms.

Gov. Gilligan said individuals recently unemployed, or those completing school or training, may also be eligible if the disaster prevented them from obtaining work.

The governor said that all applications and claims for the assistance are to be filed in the regular unemployment claims offices of the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services, or at Federal Disaster Assistance Centers. He noted that under federal regulations, all applications must be filed with OBES before May 6.

ACCORDING to Garnes, the level of DUA payments — funds for which are provided by the federal government under the Disaster Relief Act of 1970 — are related to prior earnings.

The OBES administrator explained that the minimum amount to be paid will be equal to the average unemployment compensation payment made by the state, or $59. The maximum amount will equal the highest unemployment compensation payment made by the state, or $114.

Garnes said that anyone who believes he is entitled to DUA payments should report to the nearest local claims office or disaster centers as soon as possible.

Applicants should bring their Social Security Account Number, and if possible, any papers showing employment or earnings prior to the disaster. If ill or injured because of the disasters, the applicants should write to the local office and request assistance.

THE OBES OFFICE in Xenia was damaged and remains unuseable, Garnes said. As a result, a special Xenia unit was established in the Dayton OBES office which will permit Xenia residents to file Unemployment Compensation claims by mail under a special arrangement, created at the request of the governor.

Garnes said that only in-person visit per month will be required of Xenia residents. "We will be able to handle their claims by mail for the rest of the month," he said.

Meanwhile, the agency will be moving a mobile unit into the Xenia area to help handle inquiries and employment services.

Americans less mobile than before

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Census Bureau population specialist says Americans may be slightly less mobile than they used to be, but still change homes with great frequency.

A new study shows that 31.8 per cent of all Americans changed their residence during the three-year period ending in March of last year.

The study also shows that more Americans moved away from the nation's metropolitan areas, 4,680,000, than moved in, 3,736,000.

In previous years, Census Bureau surveys showed that the percentage of Americans who changed homes every year declined from 19 and 20 per cent in the early 1960s to the recent historical low of 17.9 per cent in 1971.

There were no separate surveys for 1972 and 1973.

The latest three-year survey is not directly comparable to the previous annual surveys, but Larry H. Long of the bureau's population division says there has been a slight decline in mobility in recent years.

But he noted the volume of people who change homes every year still is much greater than in the past two decades, even though the percentage is lower.

The most mobile age group in the population are persons in their 20s, of whom 58 per cent changed homes in the 1970-1973 period.

Both the South and the West experienced a net inflow of 1.2 million migrants, with the Northeast and North Central regions having an offsetting loss.

The most common element in the universe is hydrogen, which makes up 90 per cent of all matter.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, APRIL 12

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Time is important, of course, but don't let the thought of it rush you into hasty moves, decisions. Confusion will reign if the guard is down.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Rationalize, think things out with logic before making important moves — and just about every move WILL be important now.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

A day which may begin slowly, but one in which momentum will pick up gradually. Many openings for the willing, alert and consistent worker.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

More auspicious influences than for many. Choose the hours for action astutely; choose those for curtailing as smartly. Shun mere guesswork.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Your dynamic energy and general magnetism will carry you far — if you are directing endeavors with thought and foresight.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Though there is a favorable outlook, some not entirely successful operations need an added "shot in the arm" — new methods, tightening up, new data.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Decide early how you must proceed and do not permit others to keep you from pursuing worthwhile goals. You can accomplish a great deal now.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

If others want to make changes, evaluate carefully before dissenting: They may be for the best. If you truly feel they are wrong, don't go along with them.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

To gain confidence and impress, one extends a hand and cooperates willingly — sometimes first, as you must now. Don't expect more than is reasonable.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

You may be faced with some unusual propositions. Investigate them from the point of view of long-range benefits, and consider whether they suit YOUR standards.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Now you have an opportunity to spread your wings a bit, to investigate new areas, devices. But do not drop well-planned activities merely for the sake of a change.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Your senses, perception and spirits should be buoyed now. You can do a great deal with little material, with even less than others to start with. Make the most of a good day!

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a magnetic personality, tremendous ambition and a gift of leadership which is truly extraordinary. Not as impulsive as others born under your Sign, you think calmly and objectively before speaking or acting, so don't get into as much "hot water" as some of your zodiacal brothers and sisters. This ability to analyze and rationalize is a great asset to any one of the many careers from which you have to choose — especially in the law, which, in your case, would probably lead to eminent statesmanship. You are endowed with creative ability, too: Your gift of words makes you an excellent writer; your love of beauty, an outstanding painter or musician and, as a salesman or promoter, you can be tops.

Collection of tips for the home handyman (or woman):

Never use nails that are already rusted. . .Spraying is easier than brushing paint on reed and wicker objects. . .

A wide piece of board will warp quicker than a narrow one. . .In removing wallpaper with water, softener or steam, the scraping should be done from the top down. . .

When you have to work with an acid-water solution, always add the acid to the water, never the water to the acid. . .

Wire screens should be installed at the top of each downspout where it connects with the gutter. . .

Place identifying tags on all shut-off valves throughout the house so that they can be turned off in an emergency by someone unfamiliar with their locations. . .

For painting a window sash, use a special round or oval brush about one inch wide. . .In starting a saw cut with a handsaw, the first few strokes should be upward.

COLORS influence the apparent size of a room, with white, cream, green and blue having an enlarging effect and red, pink, orange and yellow tending to diminish size. . .

In wallpapers, those of large patterns reduce the apparent size of a room, while plain and small patterns enlarge it. . .

Tarnish can be removed from brass and copper hardware with commercial cleaning products made specifically for that purpose, but if one isn't on hand, a fair job can be done with vinegar in which salt is dissolved. . .

Bricks laid end to end, or the long way, are known as "stretchers;" those laid crossways, with only the ends showing, are called "headers". . .

When an old-timer refers to "spirit varnish," he usually is talking about what we know as shellac. . .Regular enamel dries to a glossy finish, but flat enamels also can be obtained. . .

Running boiling water into the kitchen sink drain every couple of days will help to prevent an accumulation of grease. . .

It's only an old wives's tale that dumping coffee grounds into the sink drain will help to cleanse it; the truth is exactly the opposite.

AN OLD, clean paint brush is excellent for brushing dust from the corners of cabinets. . .

Metal tubing can be bent without causing kinks in it if you first fill it with damp sand, then bend the tubing around wood blocks nailed to a bench top or something similar. . .

The most common cause of allegatoring in paint is the application of a second coat before the first has dried thoroughly.

Don't add thinner to paint unless the manufacturer's instructions on the label say you should do so. . .

If nails are driven into wet wood, they will lose more than half their holding power when the wood becomes dry. . .

When wood is referred to as siding, it means that it is intended for exterior coverage. . .

Wax should not be put on a newly finished floor for at least two weeks.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

If your garden is overcroweded with vegetables it is as bad as having weeds. To Dr. J. Lee Taylor of Michigan State University, crowded vegetables are out of place and "any plant that is out of place is a weed."

Thin turnips, rutabagas and other root crops before their taproots become fleshy. Leave onions and radishes in the ground until those to be thinned are large enough to be eaten.

"It is unwise to sow small seeds far enough apart to permit plants to make their best development," Taylor advises. "Thinning is a much better operation."

Summer Bulbs

We pay a lot of attention to spring flowering bulbs. Let's consider the summer bulbs, such as dahlias, gladiolus and lilies.

Pull weeds by hand when possible because surface roots and stems may be hurt by a weeding tool such as a hoe.

Normal rainfall is usually enough for summer flowering bulbs but they'll appreciate a good ground soaking at weekly intervals during dry weather.

Fertilize the plants lightly with 5-10-5 when they bloom, applying a light ring, but keep it off the leaves and away from bulbs and roots, which may burn.

Don't use high nitrogen fertilizers because they may cause bulb decay if you apply too much at one time. Bonemeal is good because it releases nitrogen slowly.

Apply it at flowering time — about three pounds for a 5 by 10 garden bed, mixed into the soil thoroughly.

Cut the flowers off when they fade. This will prevent seed formation, which takes stored food from bulbs.

After leaves yellow, dig the bulbs and store them in a cool place for replanting the following season. Dead stems and foliage should be destroyed since left on the ground they may carry disease to new growth the next year.

New Roses

In addition to All-America Winners, Armstrong has some attractive new roses, including "Jolly Roger," a vivid red floribunda; "Picasso," pink to flame floribunda from Northern Ireland; and a magnificent "Secret Love," dark, red velvet hybrid tea. "Lemon Spice" is a bright yellow hybrid tea with a strong fragrance.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I have an old, large mirror that needs resilvering. Will you please tell me how to do it?

A. — Resilvering a mirror is an involved process requiring the use of strong chemicals. Better have it done professionally.

Q. — A friend of mine recently gave me his old stationary scroll saw when he got a new one. I find that I am constantly breaking the blades. My friend says it never happens to him. What am I doing wrong?

A. — Assuming that you are using the saw on regular wood, the same as your friend, the most probably cause of blade breakage is pushing the work into the blade too rapidly. A scroll saw is made to cut slowly.

The same thing holds true when cutting metal, which is done with a special blade. Feed the metal into the saw too fast and you will wind up with a broken blade.

Q. — I plan to lay resilient floor tiles on a wooden floor. Is an underlayment of hardboard or plywood necessary?

A. — It is not necessary when the floor is smooth, in perfect condition and has boards 3 inches or less in width.

Even then, a felt underlayment generally is recommended. For floors with rough surfaces or with wide boards that may warp or have some open joints, a hardboard or plywood underlayment will avoid future trouble.

Q. — How do I get the grease from the burner grates of our kitchen stove? Is it okay to use soap and water?

A. — Yes. But a better combination is baking soda and water. Soak the grate in the solution. Scour with dry soda if difficult spots remain.

Q. — I am putting some new wood siding on our house. What kind of nails should I use?

A. — Plain steel wire nails may result in rust spots on some paints. Your best bet is aluminum nails.

Q. — Can I paint right over the woodwork in our living room? It's now covered with a varnish that is many years old. I'd like to use the same oil paint on the woodwork as I use on the plaster walls.

A. — Yes, but if there are any glossy areas still remaining on the woodwork, they should be sanded lightly before applying the paint.

If all the woodwork is glossy and the sanding appears like too tough a job, buy one of the liquid preparations that can be used to provide an adhesion base for the paint.

'Ladies Day' under fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Civil Rights Commission says it will investigate a complaint challenging "Ladies' Day" or "Ladies' Night" specials at sports events and businesses.

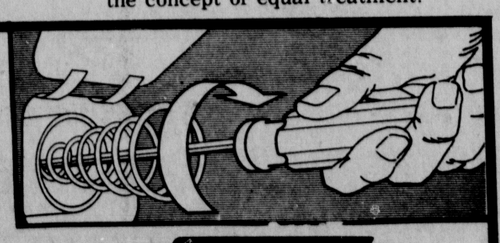

The commission agreed Tuesday there is cause to examine the complaint, which was filed by Gerald P. Wolfe II, an assistant to the commission's compliance director.

Wolfe said he filed the complaint, which named a Columbus restaurant, as a private citizen.

In the instance in question, he charged, ladies are entitled to buy two drinks for the price of one, while men must pay the full price.

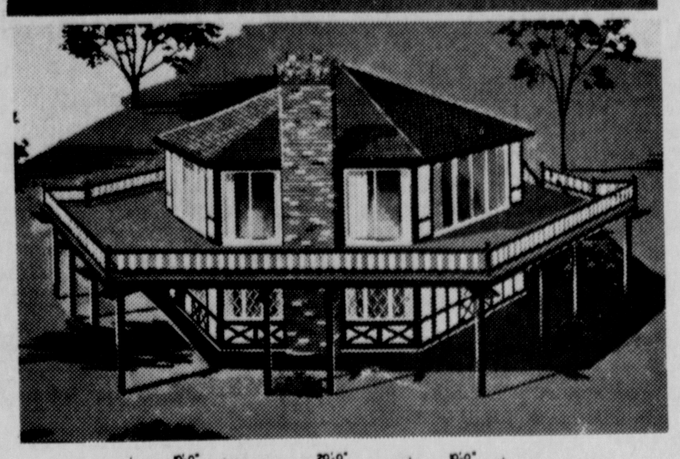

"The practice is an apparent discrimination against men in that it offers different treatment between women and men," he said.

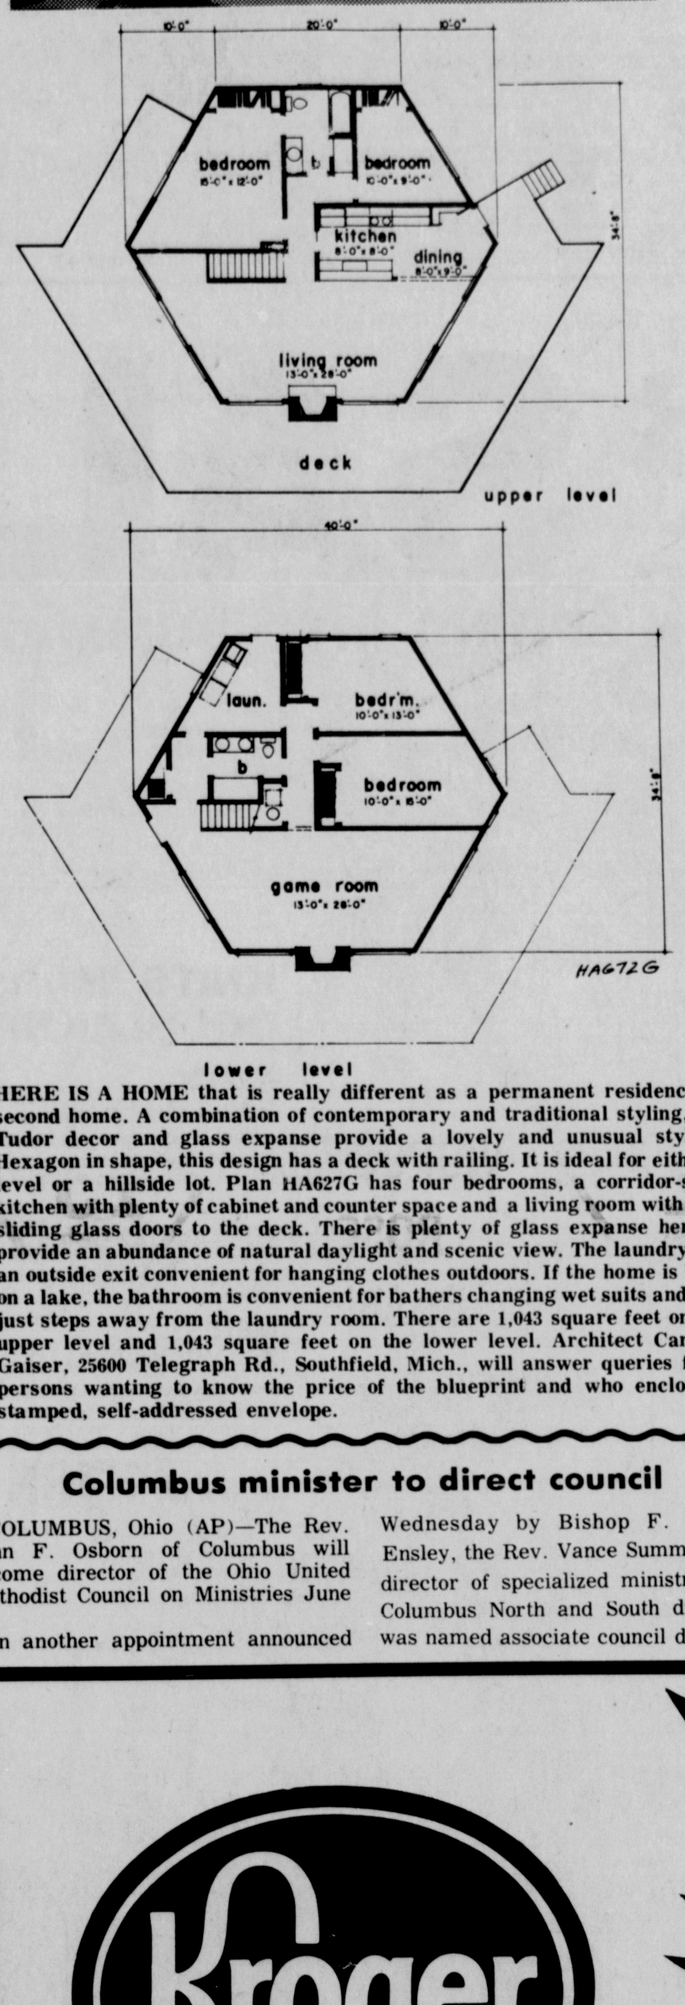

Said Wolfe: "However, the consequences go beyond the apparent discrimination because it perpetuates an attitude toward women that denies the concept of equal treatment."

Radiation leaks noted aboard jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission says it is investigating the possibility that passengers aboard two Delta Airlines flights may have been exposed to radiation earlier this month from an improperly shielded shipment of radioactive materials.

The AEC said preliminary indications were that the maximum possible exposure would not be strong enough to cause any immediate physical problems in the average person.

But the agency said it had informed the Virginia and Georgia health departments of the possible exposures and said it was checking to determine whether any pregnant women or small children were aboard the two flights.

Pregnant women and small children are more susceptible to radiation, an AEC spokesman said.

The AEC said the material — 32 curies of solid Iridium 192 — was shipped from Washington to Atlanta on April 5 aboard Delta flight 311 and from Atlanta to Baton Rouge, La., on April 6 aboard Delta flight 585.

The possible radiation leakage was the second such incident on a commercial airliner in recent years, the AEC said.

The first incident, also involving Delta, occurred Dec. 31, 1971, when a shipment of liquid Molybdenum 99, a medical isotope, leaked into the cargo hold on a Delta jetliner.

The first stell-bladed ice skates were made in 1850. Wearing the new "Philadelphia skate," Jackson Haines of New York dazzled audiences in the United States and Europe by executing intricate figures to music. Called the "Father of Figure Skating," Haines revolutionized the art.

Mitchell denies giving Vesco aid

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has told a federal trial jury he wanted to abet and not obstruct a Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation of international financier Robert L. Vesco.

"On your oath did you do anything during this entire period of time to fix or quash the investigation?" he was asked Wednesday, shortly after he took the witness stand in his own defense.

"No sir," replied Mitchell, President Nixon's first attorney general.

The criminal conspiracy trial of Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans was recessed Wednesday until next Monday, when Mitchell is scheduled to resume his testimony. Stans is expected to follow his one-time cabinet colleague as a witness.

Stans and Mitchell are accused of obstructing the SEC investigation, in return for Vesco's secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

The two are charged with conspiracy, obstructing justice and lying to a grand jury to cover up the scheme.

Mitchell was asked by defense attorney Peter Fleming Jr. if he had believed or intended that by asking then SEC chairman William J. Casey to see Vesco aide Harry L. Sears he was "impeding, obstructing or delaying the SEC investigation of Mr. Vesco?"

"Quite to the contrary, I thought I might further it," Mitchell replied.

As for being motivated by the Vesco campaign contribution, Mitchell testified he never knew of it until six months after he intervened with Casey — in late August or early September.

The government had emphasized in its case that just five hours after Stans accepted the $200,000 on April 10, 1972, Mitchell sent Sears to his long awaited face-to-face meeting with Casey.

"We delivered the $200,000 today," Sears said he told Mitchell, strengthening a government claim that not until the money was in hand was there any action on Vesco's behalf.

Mitchell testified he had no recollection of Sears telling him of the delivery of the contribution.

Mitchell also contradicted the government testimony of former White House Counsel John W. Dean III that he was asked by the defendant to call Casey in Vesco's behalf, and ask for aid in postponing SEC subpoenas against a quartet of Vesco aides.

Satellite photos of Ohio studied

columbus, ohio (AP) — A $7,000 study by a Michigan firm is underway to determine how to use space photographs taken of Ohio.

William B. Nye, director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, said the photos hopefully will be a substitute for costly ground surveys used in state planning.

The pictures were taken from a distance of 469 miles from NASA's Earth Resources Technology Satellite, which orbits over Ohio once every 18 days.

Using computers, scientists of the Bendix Corp. of Ann Arbor, will attempt to make detailed geographical maps of Ohio for use in planning such things as parks, recreation areas, and stream channelization.

Bankers' group sponsoring TV Easter special

A special two-hour broadcast of "The Waltons" will bring into focus the dimensions of this remarkable family when it is presented over the CBS television network station, Channel 10, from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m. Easter Sunday.

Entitled, "It's About Faith," the special telecast of the regularly scheduled series is being sponsored by the Fayette Area Bankers Association through its membership in the American Bankers Association.

Considered by many to be a classic television family drama, "It's About Faith" was hailed as a "heartening message of faith" when it was first seen last April in over 19 million homes, almost half of the available television audience.

The story weaves around Olivia Walton, confidante and general mainstay of the Walton family, who is stricken with crippling polio. In bed, able to move only her arms and head, Olivia realizes that the problems caused by her illness are two-fold. First, she must overcome her own anguish and peril, knowing that she may never walk again, and second, she realizes the effect that her illness is having on her family.

From her sick bed, Olivia responds in her typical fashion. With extraordinary faith and sheer power of will, she encourages her children to continue with their normal lives.

JASON is urged to enter a music contest, Ben to be a salesman, John-Boy to prepare himself for college. She makes Mary Ellen a dress for a big dance, she manages to move her paralyzed leg and bring a glimmer of hope into the family. When little Elizabeth asks why would God punish someone so good, Olivia's answer is merely, "There's a purpose in everything, and God knows what it is even if we don't."

The direction and script for the special is by Philip Leacock and John McGreevy, the same regulars that have made the fictional Walton Family television visitors in over 20 million American homes every Thursday night. Miss Michael Learned, who plays Olivia, and Richard Thomas, who plays John-Boy, each won an Emmy award for their characterizations in the series, which has garnered no less than a half dozen awards from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The Easter Sunday special is one of several telecasts that will be sponsored by the ABA in cooperation with the Fayette Area Bankers Association. Local members are the Fayette County Bank, the First National Bank of New Holland, the Washington Savings Bank and the First National Bank of Washington C.H.

Traffic Court

Four persons were scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Wednesday on traffic charges, but three of them were not present and forfeited bond. Included among those forfeiting was Police Specialist William Cales.

Cales forfeited $25 bond for failing to maintain an assured clear distance. The charge had been filed by city police. . . by William Cales, himself, in fact.

The policeman filed the charge against himself after he ran into a car in front of him at a traffic light. Some packages began sliding off the back seat as he began to slow down, and his attention was momentarily distracted.

Acting Judge John P. Case fined Sheridan R. Smith, 18, of 111 Water St., $15, for driving a car with a raised bumper.

Gregory A. Wary, 18, Columbus, and Emma C. Roush, 74, of 816 Lincoln Dr., forfeited $25 each on charges of backing without due regard for safety.

'Flying saucer' found on Johnson stamp

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP) — A flying saucer hovers over the U.S. Capitol and Mayor William S. Meyer of Bellefontaine owns it.

It's a commemorative 8-cent stamp honoring the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, one of a sheet of 32 Mayer bought from a friend.

One stamp has a flaw that appears to be a flying saucer hovering the Capitol in the lower corner. It shows above the right shoulder of the late president.

Postmaster C.H. Hertenstein believes it could be the only one like it of the 150 million Johnson commemoratives printed. Meyer said he checked persons who bought similar sheets and could find none with the same defect.

Hertenstein, also, did some checking among a packet of 4,000 similar stamps and found none with the defective marking.

MEYER, a former stamp collector, said he bought the sheet of stamps from Donald Griest, an associate in the local American Red Cross chapter. Meyer noticed the imperfection almost immediately and offered to return the stamps. Griest, he said, didn't want them back.

"I felt bad about taking it," said the mayor.

Meyer has taken the stamp to several stamp shows and he said collectors seemed interested. The mayor himself stopped collecting about 15 years ago, but keeps an eye out for imperfects.

"I still check stamps for ones like these," he said. "I have about a dozen defective ones."

He has no idea what caused the imperfection. Some collectors have theorized the unidentified flying object marking probably came during the color processing. Meyer wonders if something fell on the printing presses.

"I may sell it someday," said Meyer, "But I'm in no hurry. I kind of like it."

STRANGE STAMP — Bellefontaine, Ohio, Mayor William S. Meyer points to a defect in a commemorative 8-cent stamp honoring the late President Lyndon B. Johnson. The marking, believed to be the only one of its kind of the 150 million printed, resembles an unidentified flying object.

Claim President OKs guard defense

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A candidate for state office says no emergency legislation is needed because a precedent exists for state legal aid to Ohio National Guardsmen indicted on civil rights violations.

George C. Smith, Franklin County prosecutor and a Republican contender for the attorney general's post said Wednesday Ohio Atty. Gen. William Brown "overlooked and disregarded the law of Ohio when he indicated he would not defend them."

Plans were announced earlier the same day by Rep. M. Joan Douglass, R-61, Mansfield, to sponsor an emergency bill offering lawyers at state expense to the eight men indicted in the Kent State Unniversity shootings.

But Smith says the attorney general signed an opinion in 1973 setting a precedent on the defense question.

That opinion states, "the office of the attorney general may defend a state highway patrolman who is accused of a criminal offense committed in the scope of official duties."

Smith says there is no difference legally in defending a patrolman or guardsmen.

He said the guards were "agents of the state, and their orders were to restore law and order and maintain peace. As agents of the state, they should be defended by it.

"I believe the principle basis for his (Brown's) decision to step aside is political," Smith alleged.

Stressing that he made no attempt to prejudge the innocence of or guilt of the indicted guards, Smith said, "It is a sad day for Ohioans when political connotations take precedence over established law."

Mrs. Douglass, saying her bill could be entered after the filing deadline as emergency legislation, said "I feel the guardsmen were intent to protect other students . . ." in the May 1970 protests.

She said the National Guard "could fall apart if we don't back it up."

The attorney general's office is advising the eight indicted men to turn to the Ohio General Assembly or the Sundry Claims board for defense money. Rep. Robert Netzley, R-81, Laura, also has said he will introduce a bill to appropriate $150,000 in emergency defense funds.

Television couple married for real

NEW YORK (AP) — David Birney and Meredith Baxter, costars of last season's television series "Bridget Loves Bernie," are honeymooning after their marriage here.

A spokeswoman for the stars of the canceled TV series that detailed the romantic troubles of a Jewish boy and a Catholic girl said they were married Wednesday in a traditional ceremony at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Ohio State University's Army ROTC Unit has commissioned 9,038 young men as second lieutenants since it was established on campus in 1916.

Nixon campaigning of little effect?

BAD AXE, Mich. (AP) — President Nixon's whirlwind trip through rural Michigan revealed considerable anti-Nixon feeling beneath a friendly, respectful welcome.

But there was little evidence it will affect next Tuesday's special congressional election.

State Republican Chairman William McLaughlin was the only major figure in either party to say that Nixon's Wednesday visit could be decisive in the contest between Republican James Sparling and Democrat J. Robert Traxler.

After speaking to an enthusiastic group of 5,000 at Tri-City Airport between the 8th District's population centers of Saginaw and Bay City, Nixon flew here by helicopter for a 57-mile motorcade through solidly Republican towns and hamlets in an area known, for its shape, as Michigan's Thumb.

Though his reception was generally friendly, there were signs at many stops urging his impeachment. Speeches in Bad Axe, Cass City and Sandusky drew only mild applause, possibly because few could hear.

But there were many who said they still support the President, who carried the area overwhelmingly in 1972.

"I don't think he's as bad as they all try to let on," said John Graham in Cass City. "He has done an awful lot of good for our country."

McLaughlin, eager for a GOP victory after the loss Feb. 18 of Vice President Gerald R. Ford's old Grand Rapids seat, said Nixon's visit will have "a very dramatic effect on this campaign. If we win, there's no doubt in my mind that the President has turned the tide."

Though Sparling insisted Nixon hadn't come to campaign for him, the President praised Sparling's work as a former White House liaison man.

Sparling has de-emphasised that point, while Traxler has stressed it.

In his arrival speech Nixon sharply criticized the Democratic-controlled Congress for failing to act on three of his energy proposals: deregulation of natural gas, easing of the auto emissions standards and expanded use of coal.

Unemployment in the district's auto plants is due to the congressional "bottleneck" on those measures, Nixon said. And he blamed Congress for the high cost of living, saying it stemmed from the high cost of programs that lawmakers have passed.

Hogan loses rights fight

TORONTO, Canada (AP) — The Ontario Appeal Court has rejected a suit by former Black Panther Edwin Hogan charging false imprisonment and conspiracy to violate his civil rights.

Hogan escaped in June 1972 from a prison in Columbus, Ohio, where he was serving a life term for murder and armed robbery. He was captured in Toronto, ordered deported and taken immediately to Buffalo, N.Y., where he was handed over to the FBI.

Hogan's suit charged that the Canadian immigration department and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police conspired with the FBI to prevent his fighting the deporation order. His attorney, Charles Roach, claimed that Hogan's speedy exit from the country deprived him of an appeal to the immigration minister to be deported to some country other than the United States.

The appeal court, with Chief Justice Wilbur Jackett presiding, refused to consider Hogan a political fugitive. It ruled that the swift deportation did not violate the law.

Senior citizens get free rides

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Senior citizens in Belmont, Coshocton and Holmes counties will have transportation to county senior programs thanks to two federal grants announced by the Ohio Commission on Aging Wednesday.

The commission also announced grants for continuation of five senior programs and centers in the state.

The seven, one-year grants are funded through Title III of the federal Older Americans Act.

Throughout the world, basketball is played in 190 nations.

Win comes in ninth inning

Panthers steal 4-3 victory from Lions

By DENNIS STAPLETON
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Miami Trace Panthers clipped a nine inning 4-3 victory from Washington C.H. Wednesday evening at the Panthers home field. After being behind going into the bottom half of the seventh inning, Miami Trace tied the game in the seventh and then went on to win in the ninth when Greg Cobb flew out to Stabelton in right field with the bases loaded and Doug Ford tagged from third base, to score the winning run.

Tom Riley was the winning pitcher for the Panthers relieving Randy Reiber in the ninth inning. Riley set down the Lions in order in the ninth on three straight ground outs.

Reiber went eight innings for the Panthers striking out 14 and walking only two. The Panther hurler gave up all three Lion runs on just eight hits.

Mark Johnson was the losing pitcher for WCH giving up 10 hits, four runs and allowed two walks. Johnson fanned six men in his nine innings of work.

The Lions crossed home plate in the duel, scoring in the second inning when Randy Sparkman doubled to lead off the inning. Stabelton was safe on a throwing error and Sparkman scored. Bick singled moving Stabelton to third and Johnson was safe on an error scoring Stabelton.

Miami Trace pulled even in the bottom half of the second inning when Riley doubled and Reiber tripled him home. Jay Mossbarger singled to score Reiber from third and the game was tied 2-2.

The scoring pace wasn't picked up again until the fifth inning when Washington C.H.'s Johnson singled, moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Craig Shaffer; advanced to third on a passed ball; and crossed the plate on a double steal.

The Lions maintained the one run lead until the bottom half of the seventh inning when Phil Skinner singled with one out. He moved to second on a ground out and Riley singled to score Skinner from second.

In the eigtht inning Washington C.H. had men on first and third with two outs but Johnson popped out to the third baseman to end the inning.

Miami Trace came to bat in the bottom of the ninth and Doug Ford led off with a single. Tom Pfaff singled and Skinner singled loading the bases with no outs. Cobb hit a fly ball into right field to Stabelton with Ford tagging from third base to score. On the throw back home, Stabelton dropped the ball but Ford probably would have scored anyway.

At present Washington C.H. stands 1-1 in the SCOL and Miami Trace holds a 2-0 chart.

Reserves drop 9-3 decision to Circleville

Washington C. H. Blue Lions' reserve baseball squad lost its first game of the season last night as they were dealt a 9-3 drubbing at the hands of the Circleville Tiger jayvees. B. McGlone pitched the Tigers past the Lions giving up just six hits, striking out 12, and walking only one.

The Tigers jumped out on top of the Lions in the first inning when they scored three unearned runs. Nevertheless, the runs counted and the Lions were behind 3-0. In the second inning the Lions fought back. With one out third baseman Sam Aills rifled a double into right-center field. Second baseman Mark Fisher then followed with a long triple over the center fielder's head and he was chased home on a single by Randy Gardner.

The Tigers scored again in the third and fourth innings. They scored one in the third on a walk, wild pitch, and double and in the fourth two singles, a walk, and a double got the Tigers three more runs for a 7-2 lead. The Lions scored their last run in the sixth inning when left fielder Mark Rea singled, took second on a ground out, was sacrificed to third and came home on a single by third sacker Bob Wilson. The Tigers got their final two runs in the sixth on a double, walk and a single.

Washington C. H. used a trio of pitchers: David Van Dyke, Dan Alspaugh and Gardner who combined for eight strikeouts and eight bases on balls. McGlone, in addition to his pitching efforts, contributed a hit and a run scored to his own cause.

Giants hand Reds 4-3 loss

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pete Rose apparently has become baseball's traveling villain.

"I don't know when the booing will stop," the Cincinnati Reds' star said after Wednesday's 4-3 loss to the San Francisco Giants.

"But it doesn't bother me. The only thing that bothers me is that we lost," he added.

Rose did nothing to offend Candlestick Park fans in the Reds' first road series of the season — except stroke five hits — but the fans treated him like the masked bruiser in a professional wrestling match, booing him lustily every time he batted.

It appeared they remembered the celebrated fight Rose had in New York last fall with the Mets' Bud Harrelson in the National League playoffs. A national magazine recently ran a color picture layout of the fight to refresh memories.

If the 8,456 Giant fans hadn't had Ross to boo yesterday, they might have picked on hometown third baseman Dave Kingman who made two errors that helped the Reds score two unearned runs in the opening innings.

"But he came back to hit that home run and make a few good plays. That's what counts," said Mike Caldwell, the Giants' winning pitcher with relief help from Randy Moffitt.

"It was kind of a discouraging day for a while," said Kingman, who has five errors in the team's six games. "But we won."

Kingman belted his second homer of the year, a sixth inning blast off Don Gullett, to break a 2-2 tie. Bobby Bonds hit his first homer in seventh to make the score 4-2.

Moffitt registered his third save of the season despite allowing his first earned run. Caldwell, 2-0, lowered his ERA to 1.35.

"If we'd played errorless ball, he probably would have had a shutout," said Manager Charlie Fox of the 25-year-old left-hander the Giants acquired in the trade that sent Willie McCovey to San Diego.

First baseman Steve Ontiveros also made an error behind Caldwell in the first inning when the Reds scored a run without getting a hit.

"Mike doesn't worry about the last play. He just goes to work even harder on the next batter. He's showed us that a few times already," said Fox.

The Giants kept the National League West lead with the victory, making their record 5-1. They play their first road game Friday night in San Diego.

The Reds, 3-3, play in Atlanta Friday night. That sure-to-be-lively first trip to New York's Shea Stadium is seven weeks away.

Aaron hitless; Dodgers win 4-0

By The Associated Press

Now that Hank Aaron has hit THE home run, the question is when will he get any other kind of hit.

Other than his two home runs—Nos. 714 and 715—it's been nothing but outsville this season and the 40-year-old Atlanta superstar with the lifetime .311 batting average is hitting at a lowly .154 clip.

Aaron grounded out twice following his record-breaking home run Monday night. He sat out the next game and Wednesday night he took an 0-for-4 collar—two fly balls, one grounder and a strikeout—as Tommy John and Mike Marshall of Los Angeles held the Braves to four singles in pitching the Dodgers to a 4-0 triumph.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Montreal Expos finally swung into action and beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 12-8 in 13 innings, the San Francisco Giants edged the Cincinnati Reds 4-3, the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, the Chicago Cubs overtook the Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 and the Houston Astros walloped the San Diego Padres 9-1.

John, who is in his third National League season and has a perfect 6-0 mark against the Braves, is one of those rare birds—a pitcher off whom Aaron has never homered.

The Dodgers got the only run they needed in the first inning on singles by Lee Lacy and Bill Buckner and Jim Wynn's sacrifice fly. Lacy singled again in the sixth and came around on three walks.

Expos 12, Pirates 8

After being unable to open as scheduled at home because of bad weather, the Expos finally heard the cry of "Play ball" in Pittsburgh and took out their frustrations on the Pirates' pitching staff to the tune of 14 hits.

Doubles by Larry Lintz and Jim Cox sparked a four-run burst in the 13th inning that gave the Expos the victory and sent the winless Pirates to their third straight defeat in their home opener.

Lintz opened the 13th with a double off reliever Ramon Hernandez and scored on Cox' double following a walk. Ron Woods' two-run single and an RBI double by pitcher Chuck Taylor produced the other runs. The Pirates tied the game 8-8 in the bottom of the ninth on pinch hitter Bob Robertson's two-out, two-run homer after the Expos scored three times in the top of the ninth off Pittsburgh relief ace Dave Giusti.

Astros 9, Padres 1

Houston broke open a tight game with six runs in the fifth inning, including successive two-run doubles by Tommy Helms and pitcher Dave Roberts. It was the fifth loss in a row for the Padres.

While Bill Greif held Houston hitless for three innings, the Padres picked up a third-inning run when Derrel Thomas tripled and scored on an infield out. But the Astros took a 2-1 lead in the fourth on Cesar Cedeno's home run and consecutive singles by Bob Watson, Milt May, Lee May and Doug Rader.

Mets 3, Cardinals 2

Jerry Grote, who hit only one home run last year, cracked his second of the young 1974 season and drove in another run with a single, helping the National League champion Mets win their home opener. Grote, who hit just 27 homers in eight previous seasons, connected off John Curtis, who was making his NL debut.

Tommy Aaron set for Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The sports spotlight shifts today to the other Aaron—Tommy Aaron, the golfer—in the start of the 38th Masters Tournament.

"I met Hank Aaron at a golf tournament recently," Aaron said, referring to the new home run king of baseball. "He mentioned that since he was from Alabama he probably got his name from masters named Aaron—maybe ancestors of mine."

Plying his trade in relative obscurity is no new experience for the 37-year-old tour veteran from Gainesville, Ga., once dubbed the "golfing bride's maid" because he played for 10 years without winning a tournament, although he frequently came close.

He won his first tournament in 1970—the Atlanta Open—and spoiled Jack Nicklaus' bid for a fifth Masters last year with a winning score of 283.

Nicklaus is the 3-1 pick in the blue ribbon field of 78, including 55 U. S. professionals, 11 U. S. amateurs and a contingent of 12 foreigners.

The odds are the latest from Ladbroke's, the London bookmakers, where gambling is not only legal but almost an obsession.

The 26-year-old Johnny Miller, winner of three straight tournaments this spring, is rated second choice at 4-1, followed by Ben Crenshaw and Tom Weiskopf at 12-1.

Aaron is rated a 50-1 pick.

The 1973 Masters victory provided one unforgettable dividend for the drawling Georgian.

"I got to go to the Champions Dinner Tuesday night," he said, with wide-eyed wonder. "It was great sitting there in my green jacket with fellows like Gene Sarazen, Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret.

"Snead told some raunchy jokes. A couple of guys got stoned on grape juice but there wasn't much drinking. You'd have thought it was a Baptist picnic."

Nicklaus, looking tan and fit, said the 7,020-yard, par 72 Augusta National course was in the best shape since he's been playing it and predicted low scoring. The weather forecast for fair skies with temperature in the 70s.

Brewers turn back Indians, 6-4

By The Associated Press

Pro basketball has its 24 and 30-second clocks to help speed up games, and Clyde Wright, veteran left-handed pitcher of the Milwaukee Brewers, thinks major league baseball should adopt a 20-second clock between pitches for the same purpose.

"I played in the minor leagues in Wichita, Kan., with the 20-second clock on the scoreboard, and it really made the game a lot more interesting," Wright said Wednesday after pitching what he considered 83-3 innings of slow baseball in the Brewers' 6-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

"Games lasted only an hour and a half or a little more, and the fans didn't get bored," he added.

The 20,036 opening-day fans at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium apparently were getting bored Wednesday, and they began throwing snowballs on the field.

Their boredom turned to disappointment in the ninth inning when Milwaukee's Don Money smashed a dramatic grand slam home run with two out, lifting the Brewers to a 6-4 victory.

"He broke the monotony real nice," Wright said of Money's blast during the 2 hour, 45 minute game.

In other American League games Wednesday, the California Angels edged the Texas Rangers 4-3, the Kansas City Royals defeated the Oakland A's 4-1, the Minnesota Twins beat the winless Chicago White Sox 6-5, and the Baltimore Orioles' game against the Red Sox at Boston was postponed because of snow.

Wright and Jim Perry were locked in a 2-2 duel until the ninth. Then the Brewers filled the bases on two walks and a single, before Money tagged reliever Cecil Upshaw for his homer, which carried over the left field fence.

Angels 4, Rangers 3

The Angels broke a 3-3 tie in the ninth inning when Richie Scheinblum singled with one out, and scored from first as Ellie Rodriguez singled to left and Alex Johnson fumbled the ball.

Texas' Ferguson Jenkins, who pitched a one-hitter in his American League debut last week against Oakland, was clipped for three runs in the first inning by California, but settled down and hurled scoreless three-hit ball until the ninth.

Frank Tanana went the distance for the Angels and allowed nine hits, including Tom Grieve's two-run homer.

Royals 4, A's 1

Home runs by John Mayberry and Fred Patek backed the six-hit pitching of Steve Busby in Kansas City's victory over Oakland.

Busby helped himself by picking off Bill North from third base in the sixth inning when the A's scored their only run.

Twins 6, White Sox 5

Minnesota capitalized on the wildness of Chicago pitchers in the seventh inning, bunching five walks, a double and a sacrifice fly for four runs in overcoming a 5-2 deficit and handing the White Sox their four setback.

After starter Stan Bahnsen walked leadoff batter Jim Holt in the seventh, Terry Forster came in and walked Randy Hundley and surrendered a run-scoring double to Jerry Terrell. Then, Forster walked Sergio Ferrer and Rod Carew, forcing in a run.

Cy Acosta replaced Forster and walked Larry Hisle, forcing in the tying run, and Tony Oliva drove in the winner with a sacrifice fly.

White Sox' slugger Dick Allen slammed his first homer of the season, but also struck out four times, taking a third strike from roookie reliever Bill Campbell in the eighth inning with two out and two men on base.

Katfish victorious in Lebanon feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Katfish claimed a two-length victory in the featured condition pace at Lebanon Wednesday night.

Timed in 2:08 4-5 for the mile, the victory paid $4.20, $3.80 and $2.60. Limber Legs paid $4.20 and $2.80 for second. The show horse was Craig Dream at $3.40.

No retirement seen for 'Salt' Walther

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — At age 26, David "Salt" Walther has no intentions of retiring from racing, land or water.

But he's learned something from the nightmarish first-lap accident in last year's Indianapolis 500, followed by months of recuperation from serious burns and injuries.

"I've matured since then," he said. "I found out when you're hurt the whole world doesn't stop.

"Sure I love racing, but I'm developing other interests.

"Eventually, I plan to go back to school for some business courses," added Walther, who spent two years at Miami of Ohio, University of Dayton and Sinclair Community College in Dayton.

"While I've always been business-minded," he said, "I'm even more so now."

For seven years Salt managed a Dayton firm for his father, George Walther. Now he's the president of the company.

The younger Walther already is back racing the big, Indytype cars less than a year after his "500" accident. And he has every intention of competing at Indianapolis in 1974.

Walther is driving a 1972 McLaren, updated with a new Eagle wing. The chassis has been made two inches longer. The suspension has been changed, too.

Walther was running 10th in his first 1974 start in the Ontario "500" in California when a bad oil leak developed in his car. He was forced to quit after 130 laps.

"Both Ontario and Indy are 2½ mile ovals, but that's where the similiarity ends," the Dayton driver said.

"Indy is probably the most difficult race track in the world. Every turn is different," said Walther.

"On some of those corners you have to ride six inches from the wall," he added.

"What happens then if a gust of wind comes up, which it does at Indy? Man, you've got no place to go except into a cement wall," said Walther, answering his own question.

Still, Walther loves all types of racing. After Indy, he will start getting ready for the unlimited hydroplanes, moving his quest for speed to water.

Canine graduation ceremony

22 dogs receive obedience degrees

COME-ON DAD, NO PICTURES — John Craig's dog, "Ragun," shouldn't be so upset with publicity after taking second place in competition and receiving her obedience degree.

AM I DOING GOOD? — A little positive reinforcement is given to "Buffy," the senior citizen of the dog obedience class, by Mrs. Elmer Haymaker. Buffy, who is owned by Mrs. Rollo Marchant, is 8 years old and completely disproved that an old dog can't learn new tricks.

BY MARK THELLMANN

The only appropriate comment upon receiving a degree in obedience is "wow," or in this case, "bow-wow!"

Twenty-two dogs received their obedience degrees in a graduation ceremony held in the Fine Arts building on the Fayette County Fairground this week.

Mrs. Elmer Haymaker, instructor of the 10-week course which began Feb. 4, said she is proud of the 13-dog turnout — she confided that some people were too embarrassed to come to the graduation — and pleased with the performance of the dogs ranging from 4 months old to 8 years and encompassing 11 different breeds.

Mrs. Haymaker was assisted in her course instruction, conducted Monday evenings from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m., by Mrs. Robert Burnett.

SHE EXPLAINED that the first five weeks of instruction were primarily aimed at the dog owners. Owners were taught how to work with their pets and, thus, were trained in training their dogs.

"Almost any dog can learn his stuff in roughly 80 hours of training, but if the dog owner isn't sure what to do and how to go about it, the dog isn't going to learn anything," Mrs. Haymaker explained.

Mrs. Haymaker got her start developing canine know-how when her children grew up and left for college.

"I was alone and purchased a poodle for company and a book about training dogs," she said.

SHE MUST have had the knack, because the very first dog show in which she entered her poodle allowed her to walk away with the highest score and the accompanying first place title.

Results of the competition between the dogs during the graduation ceremony were as follows: First place - a German Shepherd named "Brandy," owned by Diane E. McFadden, Greenfield; second place - a German Shepherd named "Ragun," owned by John Craig, Rt. 6; third place-a Basset Hound named "Moses," owned by Ann Polk, Rt. 2, and fourth place - a Border Collie named "Dolly," owned by Joyce Curran, Lakewood Hills.

Top dog of the evening was "Tigh," owned by Mary Acton, Rt. 2, who was disqualified because of previous course training.

The competition was judged by Nick Nichols, a trainer from the Columbus All-Breed Training Club.

DOG OBEDIENCE classes will resume in September. The cost is $20 for the 10-week instruction, sponsored by the Paint Valley Kennel Club. Club President Bob Schneider, may be contacted for information as can Mrs. Haymaker, who will once again be instucting, at 335-3092.

Any interested person, whether or not he owns a dog, may join the Paint Valley Kennel Club by contacting Schneider and Mrs. Haymaker for information.

HAPPY AND CONTENT—and all smiles about the dog obedience lessons from which she just graduated is "Dolly," a Border Collie owned by Joyce Curran, Lakewood Hills. Dolly took fourth place in competition.

LOOKING CONFIDENT AND SCHOLARLY—is "Moses," Ann Polk's Basset Hound, who took third place in competition.

Hope fades for missing 11 persons

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Coast Guard says it has given up hope for the lives of 11 persons missing after an oil tanker exploded and burned at its mooring on the Delaware River.

Included in the missing are a mother and her three daughters who were visiting the Greek registry tanker Elias when it erupted in a ball of flame late Tuesday.

One man is officially listed as dead and 26 others were either injured or treated for exposure. Most of the 26 leaped from the blazing vessel into frigid water. A search for the missing was suspended Wednesday night.

The wreckage, still resting near the mooring, is reportedly too hot to be entered. A search of the ship is planned for Saturday, the Coast Guard said.

The cause of the explosion which split the 650-foot vessel has not been determined.

Among the missing are the ship's captain, Andreas Antoniadis, who at the time of the blast was dining aboard with his cousin and her three daughters.

The missing cousin has been identified as Mrs. Matina Mentis, 50, of Baltimore. Her missing daughters are JoAnn, 18; Maria, 19; and Georgeen, 13.

The tanker was unloading crude oil at Atlantic Richfield Company's South Philadelphia terminal at the time of the blast. A spokesman for the firm said that 202,700 of the 216,000 barrels of oil had been unloaded.

Vietnam aid stirs fight in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Armed Services Chairman F. Edward Hebert says he will try to help get up to $266 million in extra U.S. military aid for South Vietnam. But he acknowledges the move "could be interpreted as a subterfuge" by some people.

The Louisiana Democrat told the House Wednesday he believes its vote last week rejecting a $274 million increase in U.S. aid to South Vietnam was a mistake.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., accused Hebert of indicating he will go along with what Giamo charged is an attempt by the Pentagon to subvert the House vote against the aid boost.

"The American people are watching to make sure there is no hanky-panky to subvert the will of Congress...The American people have made it clear we are tired of this endless involvement in Vietnam," Giaimo said.

"I do not believe that vote reflected the will of the House," Hebert said. "More than 100 members were absent."

Hebert's announcement that he hopes to correct the "mistake" indicated he will go along with a bookkeeping measure, already approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee, that would permit the extra $266 million for South Vietnam.

The Pentagon would be permitted to charge the $266 million off to ammunition and other stocks supplied to South Vietnam in past years and thus give itself an extra $266 million above this year's ceiling of $1.126 billion in U.S. aid to South Vietnam.

But the full Senate could still reject that authority, which has been approved by its Armed Services Committee.

Downtown Assn. slates election

The annual shareholders meeting of the Washington Downtown Association, Inc., will be held at 8 p.m. next Wednesday in the Sam Marting lodge, CCC Highway-W.

The purpose of the meeting is to elect two directors for terms beginning February, 1974 and expiring February, 1977. A corporation report will also be presented.

Officers and directors of the association are Walter Morrow, A.C. Heer, Jack Alkire, Billie Wilson, Paul Lipschutz, Lee Kraus and Marting.

Willkie son dies

RUSHVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Philip H. Willkie, 54, son of the late Republican presidential candidate, Wendell L. Willkie, died Wednesday. A banker and attorney, Willkie was graduated from Princeton University in 1940, the year of his father's unsuccessful campaign for the presidency.

Pinworms Touch All Classes

We were shocked when our doctor told us that one of our children has pinworms of the intestines.

We pride ourselves with the cleanliness of our home and the hygiene we've taught our children.

We thought, too, that this condition occurs only in warm climates where malnutrition is rampant.

Can you throw some light on the subject of pinworms?

Mrs. D.P.B., Wis.

Dear Mrs. B.:

It is astonishing how frequently pinworm infections of the intestines do occur.

The condition is not limited to people who live in warm climates nor to people whose hygiene and nourishment are substandard.

Undoubtedly, the incidence is higher under such conditions, but even in families whose education is high, whose nourishment is above standard and whose social and economic positions are elevated, pinworm infections do occur.

The oxyuris vermicularis responsible for pinworm infection has no special regard for social status.

The condition may occur in camps and in schools as it is passed from one child to another. Poor bathroom hygiene is entirely responsible.

There are many new excellent, safe and effective drugs used to clear up the condition. Rigid adherence to meticulous sanitation is imperative if recurrences are to be avoided.

Hands and fingernails must be thoroughly washed with soap before each meal. Active scrubbing of the hands after going to the bathroom is important. Separate towels should be used by each member of the family. Trading of towels at school should be avoided.

I was a boxer and developed a cauliflower ear in one of my college contests. Is it possible to correct this by operation?

Mr. C.L., Texas

Dear Mr. L.:

A cauliflower ear is the result of a severe blow to the outer ear. The seepage of blood in and around the cartilage of the ear is responsible for the scar tissue and the misshapen appearance.

It is for this reason that such injuries should be treated early, in order to evacuate the blood as quickly as possible.

The surgical cosmetic repair of a cauliflower ear depends entirely on how much scar tissue has formed and on the severity of the distortion.

While drinking water, a young turkey may become hypnotized by the movements of his own head and drink on until he drowns.

Three auto mishaps checked by officers

A Jamestown woman swerved her car to avoid hitting an animal and wound up striking a fence and a Jeffersonville man had a blowout which caused him to lose control of his vehicle and hit a fence, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported today. City police reported a minor parking lot accident at the J and J Restaurant. There were no citations.

Minor damage was incurred by a car driven by Anita Fay Applegate, 20, Jamestown, in an accident at 5:40 a.m. Thursday.

Ms. Applegate was traveling east on Ohio 734, seven-tenths of a mile west of Jeffersonville, when she swerved to avoid hitting an animal and traveled off the right side of the road, striking a fence owned by Carrol H. Ritenour, Jeffersonville.

She was not injured.

The right front tire blewout on a car driven by Michael R. Duncan, 19, Jeffersonville, at 1:20 p.m. Wedsesday, forcing him off the right side of the road, where he hit a ditch and overturned.

The mishap occurred on the Jeffersonville-West Lancaster Road, 12 miles northwest of Washington C. H.

When the car overturned on its right side, it moderately damaged a fence owned by Karl Krieger, Jeffersonville.

Moderate damage was incurred to a car driven by Veryl D. Keaton, 20, Jamison Road, at 9:25 a.m. Wednesday.

The Keaton car was struck at the intersection of Market Street and Columbus Avenue by a car driven by Paul E. Hughes, 35, New Holland, as he backed from the J and J Restaurant parking lot.

Vandal enters garage, paints 2 automobiles

A vandal entered a Washington C.H. garage, took a can of white spray paint and a can of black spray paint and painted two cars and other articles. City police also reported two incidents involving broken windows.

The garage of Phil Tatman, 217 Broadway, was entered by a vandal who found two cans of spray paint, one black and one white and proceded to paint the doors, the walls, the telephone and cars owned by Loren Yoho Jr., and Dan Terhune. Coffee and sugar were also dumped on the floor by the vandal.

The incident occurred about 11:15 p.m. Wednesday and nothing was taken from the garage, police reported.

The window of the walk-in front door of Downing Service Station, 302 E. Court St., was broken sometime between 7 p.m. Tuesday and 6 a.m. Wednesday, police reported. The window was valued at $75.

A window pane was broken out of an overhead door on the east side of the Central Grocery, 208 E. Market St., sometime between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 2:30 a.m. Thursday.

Police Sgt. Luther Anderson discovered the damage while on routine patrol. He reported nothing missing from the building.

Troop cuts under study

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger says the Pentagon is considering possible ways to cut back the number of U.S. support troops in Europe without reducing the U.S. combat posture.

Schlesinger told reporters Wednesday "the prognosis is far more favorable than it has been in the recent past" for continued U.S political support for keeping American troops stationed in Europe.

"We are examining within the department the possibility of reducing certain support elements in Europe, but no reduction whatsoever of our combat capabilities," the defense secretary said.

Schlesinger voiced the comments just before a closed meeting with Annemarie Renger, president of the West German parliament and seven other members of the parliament.

He again stressed that NATO allies must be willing to assume their own full share in defending Europe.

He did not indicate how large a cutback in support troops was being considered.

The United States has a total of some 300,000 military men in the European area, about 214,000 of them in Germany.

JOHNNY PAYCHECK AND TRENT NEWMAN

Paycheck show to benefit 7-year-old cancer victim

SABINA — A benefit country and western music performance will be staged at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, May 12 in the Sabina school gym by Johnny Paycheck, one of the nation's top recording artists.

The performance, sponsored by Sabina Loyal Order of Moose and the Women of Moose, has been scheduled to benefit Trent Newman, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Newman, of Sabina.

The boy has had two major cancer operations and is required to report to Children's Hospital, Columbus, weekly for treatment.

All proceeds raised from the performance will be forwarded to the Trent Newman Fund at the Clinton County National Bank in Sabina.

Larry Adams, of Sabina, benefit chairman, said tickets, priced at $3 per person may be purchased at the Washington C. H. branch office of the Fayette County Bank. Tickets also may be purchased at the Greenfield Police Department, the Clinton County National Bank in Sabina and the bank's branch office in the Wilmington shopping center.

Appearing with Paycheck will be his seven-piece band, "The Lovemakers." In the band are Don and Gary Adams, formerly of Greenfield, and a new addition, Dave Gray, a regular on the Buck Owens television program.

Paycheck, formerly of Greenfield and one of the top country and western performers in the nation, was a Grammy award nominee in 1971 and was one of the top five finalists for the top male vocalist in England last year.

Tom Peterson, a well-known radio personality, will serve as master of ceremonies for the performance.

Senate OKs wide-range disaster relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by tornadoes that devastated parts of the South and Midwest, the Senate has passed a bill broadening federal disaster relief.

The House, however, may not act on the legislation until it returns from its Easter recess April 22.

The House leadership has tentatively decided against trying to push the bill through today before the recess begins.

The Senate unanimously passed the bill Wednesday after Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., staved off several attempts to amend the measure.

He warned that the administration might withdraw its support of the bill if it is burdened by amendments to which it objects.

The Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., that would have made the measure retroactive to cover victims of last year's flooding in New England and Northeastern states.

At the urging of Burdick, Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., withdrew another amendment that would have reinstated a low-interest disaster loan program killed by Congress last year with the approval of the administration.

Under that program, the federal government did not require repayment of up to $5,000 and collected only one per cent interest on the balance. Current programs provide for full repayment at 5 per cent interest.

But the Senate-passed bill would provide an additional $5,000 to disaster victims who have exhausted all other forms of relief but still require more aid.

Seventy-five per cent of the money would be supplied by the federal government. The balance would come from the states, which would administer the program.

Wreck cleanup about finished

BLOOMINGBURG — Rail service was expected to be restored late today on Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks just outside Bloomingburg where 18 cars derailed Tuesday night.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson said all but one of the 18 derailed cars had been returned to the tracks by workmen shortly after noon today and it is expected that the clearing operation will be completed within hours.

Sheriff Thompson said Dickey Road is still closed, but once the one car is returned to the tracks, the road will be opened.

Coke and coal were spilled along the Dickey Road crossing when the 18 cars derailed. Railroad officials said the eighth car from the engine derailed, apparently because of a defective axle-coupling bar which holds the wheels on the tracks.

The 32-car train was en route from Newark to Cincinnati at the time of the derailment. No injuries were reported to investigating officers by the five-man crew aboard the freight train.

The tallest geyser, the Waimangu geyser in New Zealand, erupted to more than 1,000 feet high in 1909, and has not been active since 1917.

Set election in Australia

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Governor-General Sir Paul Hasluck dissolved both houses of Parliament today, and Prime Minister Gough Whitlam announced that a general election will be held May 18.

Whitlam told a news conference the main issue will be the frustration of his legislation by the opposition-controlled Senate. It has blocked several measures passed by the House of Representatives, including Whitlam's health insurance bill.

The opposition is expected to fight the election on the issue of inflation, now running at an annual rate of 14 per cent.

Whitlam, whose Labor party was voted into power 16 months ago, said he didn't expect to lose any seats.

An opinion poll two weeks ago predicted victory for the Liberals, whose leader, Billy Snedden, provoked Whitlam into calling an early election by announcing that the opposition would vote down the government's appropriation bills in the Senate.

Vol. 116 — No. 102 | 32 Pages | Washington Court House, Ohio | 15 Cents | Thursday, April 11, 1974

TESTIFIES—William Turnblazer, above, onetime United Mine Workers union official, testified that he was present when former UMW president W. A. "Tony" Boyle ordered the assassination of Joseph A. Yablonski.

Boyle jury deliberations under way

MEDIA, Pa. (AP)—A jury was to begin deliberations today in the murder trial of former United Mine Workers president W. A. "Tony" Boyle, accused of the 1969 assassination of union rival Joseph "Jock" Yablonski.

The case goes to the jury of nine men and three women after the charge by Common Pleas Judge Francis J. Catania.

Testimony against the 72-year-old Boyle wound up Wednesday, and opposing lawyers summed up their versions of the evidence produced by 58 prosecution and nine defense witnesses.

Special Prosecutor Richard A. Sprague, frequently pointing an accusing finger at the defendant, demanded a first-degree murder conviction which carries an automatic sentence of life imprisonment.

But chief defense counsel Charles F. Moses asked for acquittal on grounds there was insufficient evidence and a "reasonable doubt" as to Boyle's guilt.

The Yablonskis were slain Dec. 31, 1969, as they slept in their rural Clarksville home in southwestern Pennsylvania. The killings occurred three weeks after Yablonski lost a bitter battle to win the UMW presidency from Boyle—an election later set aside by a federal court as fraudulent.

The styles of Sprague and Moses in their closing remarks to the jury was a study in contrasts:

—Sprague was loud, strident, hammering, outraged by the "willful, deliberate premeditated murders" of Yablonski, his wife and daughter which Sprague claimed Boyle originated to retain his tight grip on the 200,000-member union.

—Moses was soft-spoken, philosophical, Bible-quoting, insisting that lies by confessed murderers, embezzlers, burglars ware the backbone of the prosecution case.

Sprague has pursued the Yablonskis' killers almost from the day their bodies were discovered on Jan. 5, 1970, and, so far, has wrung guilty pleas or convicted eight defendants. Now, at the end of the line, he wanted Boyle.

Council eyes storm alerts

Discussion concerning a disaster alert warning system for Washington C. H. and the immediate vicinity of the city took the spotlight during the regular semi-monthly meeting of Washington C. H. City Council Wednesday night.

Council members also approved four pieces of emergency legislation and heard a number of miscellaneous reports during the meeting which lasted just over an hour.

City Council members, in light of the tornado which devastated the neighboring community of Xenia just a week ago, have become concerned with the ability of Washington C. H. to respond in the event of a similar disaster.

City Manager Dan Wolford informed Council members that the city purchased a large wailing warning siren in 1962. The siren, which is located in the bell tower atop the Courthouse building, apparently is in proper

Subpoena set for tapes; solons angry

Impeachment confrontation readied with White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House today made a last-minute offer to provide some of the tapes requested by the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry, but it appeared to come too late to head off a subpoena for all the tapes requested.

"It's a little late to make a deal," said Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., after committee counsel John Doar told of a last-minute telephone call from President Nixon's counsel.

Doar said James St. Clair said he would be willing to give the committee within the next few days a number of specific conversations between President Nixon and his chief aides that the committee believes relate to the Watergate cover-up.

However, St. Clair's offer did not cover a number of other tapes the committee asked for.

As soon as Doar completed his discussion of St. Clair's phone call a resolution authorizing the committee to issue a subpoena for everything covered by the request was put before the committee. It appeared to have solid support of the Democratic majority.

Doar said that in his talk with St. Clair the White House lawyer did not indicate whether Nixon would comply with a subpoena.

The confrontation that has been building since Feb. 25 when the request was made, became all but certain Wednesday after the White House said it would not decide until after April 22 what it would give to the committee.

The White House position, spelled out in a letter from James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's counsel, antagonized committee members of both parties and a wide segment of the House.

"I think it was offensive to the House," said Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., the senior Republican on the committee.

"It was insulting in every paragraph," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., a committee member.

After a party caucus Wednesday to consider the letter, the Republican members launched a last-ditch effort to persuade the White House to comply at least in part with the committee's request.

"It looks as if the committee will issue a subpoena if the White House will not yield," said Rep. Robert McClory, RIll.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes said he hoped the committee would make another request for the tapes before issuing a subpoena. "Mr. St. Clair would have to reconsider and there might be some change in his answer," Rhodes said.

But most committee members said they thought the committee had been patient long enough and had no alternative now but to subpoena the tapes, which cover conversations between Nixon and his aides that the committee thinks relate to the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

Even among those who support issuance of a subpoena, however, there is concern over the consequences if Nixon refuses to honor it.

The committee, claiming its authority from the Constitution to subpoena evidence, is determined to avoid turning to the courts for enforcement.

Some members feel the best course of action would be to let an unanswered subpoena become an article of impeachment when the committee finally makes its recommendation to the House.

Arab terrorists seize village; Israelis slain

TEL AVIV (AP) — Three Arab terrorists slipped across the mountain frontier from Lebanon early today, seized an Israeli apartment building and opened fire on men, women and children, but Israeli forces wiped the guerrillas out, the military command said.

The state radio said at least 10 Israelis were killed, mostly women and children, and 10 soldiers, police and civilians were wounded in the frontier settlement of Qiryat Shmonah, less than a mile from the Lebanese border.

Military sources said Israeli troops blasted the guerrillas with heavy recoilless rifle fire aimed at the captured apartment building. But the guerrillas' command said the terrorists blew up themselves and hostages they had taken in accordance with instructions.

The Israeli radio reported that the Arabs had thrown children from the windows of the apartment building, but the report was not confirmed.

It was the most daring guerrilla mission inside Israel since the Tel Aviv airport massacre 23 months ago.

The Arabs first seized control of an empty school and then moved to the apartment building. The state radio said they fired submachine guns and threw grenades into the apartments as they shot their way up to the fourth floor in a trail of blood.

Israeli troops and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan rushed to the mountainside town, and just over four hours after the raid began a military source said, "It is all over." Heavy explosions shook the building as the Israeli troops stromed it.

The bodies of Israeli civilians were found in the doorways of their apartments and childrens' bullet-torn corpses lay on the stairway of the building, the radio said.

The guerrillas were carrying explosive charges with their Russian-made assault rifles, and the room where they barricaded themselves exploded when the Israelis opened fire and rushed the building, the radio said. The blasted bodies of the three guerrillas were found inside.

The group's command in Lebanon said, "Our men carried out their instructions. They set off explosive belts they wore for the operation when the enemy tried to storm the building they were holding. They died along with their hostages."

The group, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine General Command, earlier demanded the release of 100 guerrillas from Israeli prisons, including the Japanese Red Army man who survived the massacre at Israel's international airport.

Political uncertainty spreads in Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel faced months of political uncertainty today in the wake of Premier Golda Meir's resignation, and there was no indication of the government that would emerge.

Officials of Mrs. Meir's ruling Labor Alignment said she would stay on as head of a caretaker government until new elections, or until a replacement cabinet could be formed. Either one could take months.

The political upheaval and the fragility of a lame-duck government could weaken Israel's hands in the negotiations with Syria for a withdrawal of Israeli forces on the Golan Heights, political analysts suggested.

Worn out by increasing controversy over whether Defense Minister Moshe Dayan should share the blame for Israil's initial setbacks in the October war, Mrs. Meir, who will be 76 in three weeks, told the leaders of her party Wednesday night: "I can no longer bear the burden . . .I have reached the end of the road."

Mrs. Meir officially tendered her resignation today to President Ephraim Katzir. The meeting with the ceremonial head of state followed a special session of Mrs. Meir's cabinet.

Katzir praised Mrs. Meir for "her work and devotion to the rise and development of the state."

He told reporters he thought Mrs. Meir would remain as head of the caretaker government but would not try to form another cabinet.

The president said he would immediately begin calling in party leaders to discuss the formation of a new government.

It was the second time in 39 days that Mrs. Meir announced she was quitting, but this time it was generally believed that she meant it.

"Don't try to change my mind, it won't help," she told the party caucus, and complained about political rivals "who say I am only driven by lust for power."

Noting the wave of dissent following the loss of more than 2,500 men in the October war, she warned: "We cannot ignore public feeling...The atmosphere created around the government has made it impossible for the government to handle all the problems facing us."

A member of the immigrant Establishment that has dominated Israel since its birth in 1948, Mrs. Meir has led the government since 1969.

The future of Dayan, the onetime public idol, was unclear. The charge that he, Mrs. Meir and other Labor leaders were to blame because the Arab attack in October took the armed forces by surprise was the major factor in the setback the ruling party suffered in the general election Dec. 31.

President Katzir could designate a political leader to form a government, but Labor party leaders said new elections were inevitable.

Steel pact agreement said near

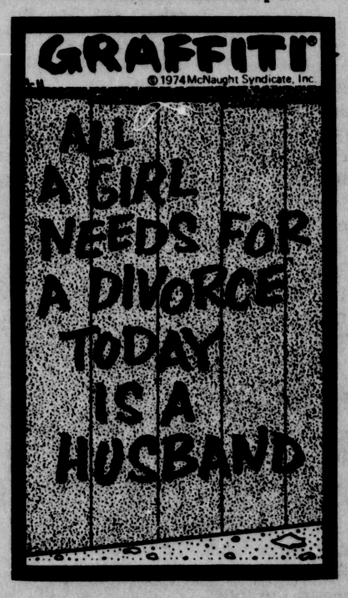

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the usual 11th-hour frenzy of previous negotiations missing, steel industry bargainers indicate they are near agreement on a new three-year contract for 350,000 workers.

Sources close to the talks between the United Steelworkers and the 10 major steel companies say the negotiators have agreed "to try and wrap it up" today.

Although the sources caution that some problems remain, the union has called its Basic Steel Industry Conference with representatives from 832 locals to a 1 p.m. EDT meeting for a report on the negotiations. The 600-member conference has authority to ratify a tentative agreement or recommend turning over unresolved issues to a panel of arbitrators.

A historic bargaining agreement signed a year ago eliminated the possibility of a nationwide steel strike this year.

In return for giving up the right to strike, the USW was guaranteed wage increases of at least 3 per cent in each year of the new contract.

Demolition work starts at Xenia

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — With the initial cleanup of debris from main streets and state property completed, 800 Ohio National Guard troops pulled out of tornado-stricken Xenia and nearby Wilberforce today.

They were replaced by 178 fresh troops of the 323rd Military Police Co. at Napoleon and Defiance who will help law enforcement agencies maintain security and control traffic at least through next Sunday.

Meanwhile, demolition of the most badly damaged buildings here was scheduled to begin today. Officials said the first buildings to be torn down would be those that presented a hazard to the public.

Tom McCatherine, information director for the city manager, said 1,237 buildings had been judged damaged beyond repair during a first-phase inspection of 3,357 structures.

He said inspectors found 439 buildings were satisfactory, 1,174 suffered minor damage and 507 received major but possibly repairable damage.

McCatherine said residents need not fear that "they're going to lose their homes without being informed."

He said demolition will be negotiated if an owner disagrees with the city's assessment of the damage. "The only exception would be where there is eminent danger to public health, welfare and safety," he said.

A list of properties marked for demolition will be prepared by Friday, McCatherine said.

Costs of the demolition work are being paid by the federal government, McCatherine said.

More than 100 insurance adjustors are at work in Xenia and 100 more will arrive within two or three weeks, according to a spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute, the industry public relations group.

The spokesman said the adjustors are coming "from across the country, from anywhere the companies can lay their hands on one."

The Xenia City Commission has authorized the city's tornado relief fund to use cash offerings of $45,000 for direct relief.

Mayor William L. Wilson said a local board of directors to administer donations will be established within 30 days. The Xenia National Bank and Citizens First National Bank of Xenia are accepting donations to the fund.

And a group of ministers and prominent citizens in Xenia scheduled a meeting today to organize a non-profit corporation to administer donations.

Storm victims at Pisgah, Mason and Middletown in southwestern Ohio also will be getting some government help this week, it was announced.

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration said a fourth FDAA one-stop service center will be open Friday and Saturday in Pisgah with counselors from various federal agencies on hand to help disaster victims.

Passman group offers million for Nixon papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., says a former Louisiana governor is among a syndicate of businessmen who have offered President Nixon $1 million for his controversial vice presidential papers.

Passman disclosed Wednesday that the one-time governor, James A. Noe, had wired him asking to be included for $100,000 in any syndicate being formed to buy the papers.

The congressman said the syndicate has offered to provide at once a cashier's check for $100,000 and pay the balance of the $1 million within 15 days after acceptance.

Passman himself is not among the syndicate but said the group had approached him through a special assistant at his home office in Monroe, La.

April storm hits nation

By The Associated Press

An April storm that buried the Salt Lake region under 2 feet of snow swirled into the northwestern Plains today.

While only 2 inches of snow fell in parts of Wyoming during the night, winter storm warnings advised that cold rain and wet snow would spread across the northern and west-central Plains.

In the Salt Lake region, one death was attributed to the storm Wednesday when a Clearfield, Utah, woman was electrocuted as she backed her car into power lines downed by the heavy snow.

School classes were cancelled, and there was a possibility of flooding today when temperatures were expected to rise.

To the south of the storm, a tornado watch for the southcentral Plains was in effect through the night after one twister was spotted in the Texas Panhandle near Wellington.

There were no reports of damage or injuries.

Strong winds in Southern California gusted up to 70 miles per hour in the Tehachapi Mountains, while winds up to 40 m.p.h. blew through Utah, South Dakota and Texas.

Meanwhile, rain fell in the Pacific Northwest and the Upper Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes regions.

Fair but cool weather was the rule from the Appalachians to the Atlantic Coast.

'Quiet youth' slays parents

WINONA, Miss. (AP) — A 14-year-old boy said he shot and killed his mother and stepfather because they wouldn't let him watch a television gangster movie, authorities reported.

"I knew the boy," said Grenada County Deputy Sheriff Doyle Nail. "He was very quiet...one of the finest kids you'd ever meet in your life. He was polite and friendly in every way.

The boy, Charles Forrest, was in jail today pending charges in the Tuesday night deaths of his stepfather, Charles Windfield, 47, and his mother, Mary Jane Windfield, 39.

Former Nixon aide gets 30 days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert L. Porter, who handled the surrogate speakers program in President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, was sentenced today to serve 30 days in a federal correctional institution for lying to the FBI in its Watergate investigation.

Porter, who will be 36 on Saturday, is the fourth former White House aide who has been sentenced to prison but the sentence was the lightest of any.

The charge carried a maximum five years in prison and a $10,000 fine but a lawyer from the office of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Porter's involvement in the Watergate cover-up was "less in degree than others who pleaded guilty to felony charges."

Porter, who now works in his father-in-law's small construction business at Laguna Niguel, Calif., had admitted to the Senate Watergate Committee that he also gave perjured testimony to the grand jury and at the 1973 Watergate break-in trial.

He said he agreed to the lie "because of the fear of group pressure that would ensue, of not being a team player."

The false story concerned money he gave to G. Gordon Liddy, the alleged mastermind of the Watergate break-in. Porter said deputy campaign director Jeb. S. Magruder had ordered him to give money to Liddy for "dirty tricks," and that he turned over some $35,000.

At the end of June 1972, some 11 or 12 days after the break-in at Democratic Party headquarters, Porter said Magruder told him that "dirty tricks" would sound bad to investigators and asked that they concoct a cover story.

Porter said he agreed to say he gave Liddy $100,000 for hiring 10 college students for 10 months at $1,000 a

See party reform faulty in practice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seeking insurance against future Watergates, political reformers are urging 1976 presidential nominees to do their campaign business through the Republican and Democratic national committees.

The theory is that management, or at least supervision, by regular party organizations and leaders would guard against the kind of abuses that marked President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

But there is a flaw: the way the system works, in a presidential year a party's nominee for the White House decides who is going to run the party organization anyhow.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford has proposed that 1976 GOP candidates agree in advance that they will not set up special campaign committees without specific approval of the party.

A House Republican study panel has said that "a strong national party would help curb some of the excesses that have been witnessed during the past few years and would make it easier for the public to isolate responsibility for illegal actions..."

But presidential candidates build their personal political organizations as they campaign through the primary elections, seeking White House nomination. At that stage, the regular party organization is theoretically neutral. The pattern has been for the personal organization of the winner to take over in the fall and run the national campaign.

The presidential nominee traditionally chooses the top leadership of his party's national committee. Committee members from the 50 states elect their chairman — but in practice, they ratify the choice of the presidential nominee.

Neither party committee had much to say about the 1972 presidential campaign. As always, the clout was where the presidential nominees put it. And as usual, there was friction between state party organizations and the campaign committees set up by the candidates.

In an era of political specialization and increasingly lengthy and expensive presidential campaigns, the pattern has been one of management and control by the candidate's men, not the permanent party structure.

All of this suggests that a long term solution to the problem of presidential campaign control is going to take more than persuasion aimed at candidates.

One proposal is part of the public campaign finance bill now before the Senate. It would allow a presidential nominee to set up his own organization to run the campaign — but the chairman, or someone he designates, would have to endorse every expenditure of over $1,000 in public funds.

Banknote numbers contradict story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Banknote serial numbers appear to contradict the sworn testimony of Texas attorney Jake Jacobsen about a $10,000 fund earmarked for former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, according to sources familiar with the case.

Two sources said the serial numbers indicate the money was not in circulation at the time Jacobsen swore it went into a bank safe-deposit box.

Jacobsen has pleaded innocent to a perjury indictment that charges him with lying to a Watergate grand jury by saying the money stayed in the box for 2½ years, until taken out in the presence of an FBI agent last Nov. 27.

Watergate investigators suspect the money may have been intended for Connally in return for his help in getting President Nixon to raise milk price supports in 1971.

And columnist Jack Anderson reported this week that FBI agents working for the Watergate special prosecutor have evidence that Connally pocketed the $10,000, then hastily returned it after the dairy group came under investigation.

Connally has denied receiving any bribe.

The original $10,000 was taken from the corporate account of Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairyfarmer cooperative, a few weeks after Nixon raised the support level in March 1971. Jacobsen said it was offered to Connally not as a bribe but for use in making political donations.

Jacobsen said he offered the money to Connally twice but that Connally refused it and the $10,000 lay untouched in a safedeposit box.

Sources say the banknote serial numbers indicate it is impossible for Jacobsen's account to be true, because the bills are too new to have been in circulation when Jacobsen says they went into the box.

Consequently, Jacobsen's lawyer is reported ready to bargain with prosecutors for a reduced charge in return for a guilty plea and cooperation in giving future testimony.

But chances for such a bargained misdemeanor plea, which might allow Jacobsen to continue practicing law, are thought to be dim because the law provides nothing less than felony charges for lying under oath.

2nd-class citizenship seen for targets of IRS audits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Internal Revenue Service options for dealing with taxpayers deny them due process and condemn them to second-class citizenship, a former IRS attorney says.

Clyde R. Maxwell of Newport Beach, Calif., testified Wednesday before a Senate appropriations subcommittee.

Maxwell, who was an IRS attorney for 13 years, said a section of the Justice Department maintains a list of persons who allegedly participate in organized crime.

If a name goes on the list, the person's affairs come under an IRS strike force's scrutiny, including an examination of his tax returns, tapping of telephones and surveillance.

"In effect, he becomes a second-class citizen whose affairs are not private. The usual reviews of criminal tax cases by (IRS and the Justice Department) are aborted in 'strike force' cases and often a taxpayer has no chance to explain his innocence before he is indicted and jailed," Maxwell said.

Individuals "somehow" get onto the list who merely know or have spoken to some figure linked with organized crime, Maxwell said.

Under questioning by Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., Maxwell said there are "many people on this list (who) have never been convicted of a crime. We don't know how that list is made up."

He also said individual tax returns are available to any government agency upon request despite the fact they are supposed to be confidential. He said all it takes for an agency to get a tax return is a presidential declaration.

Spring temperatures are returning to Ohio but there is cloudy weather and showers in the weather picture for the state.

Night time temperatures readings were generally in the 30s and 40s as compared to the teens and 20s Wednesday morning. A heavy blanket of clouds covered the entire state but no precipitation was reported.

A spring storm centered in the southern plains Thursday morning will move northeastwards towards the upper Great Lakes and spread clouds and some showers into Ohio Thursday and Friday. Rather brisk southerly flow will push afternoon readings into the 60s and the 70s today and Friday.

Some scattered showers and a few thundershowers will invade the western counties during the day and spread slowly eastward into the remainder of the state on Friday.

Some showers are expected to continue into Saturday and end over most sections of Ohio by Easter Sunday with cooler temperatures.

Showers are forecast Saturday, ending Sunday. Skies will be fair Monday. Highs will range from the 50s to 60s. Lows will be in the 40s and 50s Saturday, but will drop to the 30s and low 40s by Monday.

Dunlop sees inflation worsening

WASHINGTON (AP) — Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council says the lifting of economic controls could appreciably offset Nixon administration forecasts of slowed inflation.

"I don't want to be associated in any way with predictions for the second half of the year," Dunlop said Wednesday when asked by reporters whether he concurred with the administration prognosis of a slower rate of inflation during that period.

He noted that lifting of all controls on April 30 would release suppressed costs of some major products, including copper and steel.

"The impact of that in June or July is going to be appreciable," Dunlop said.

He warned again that costs in the health and construction industries, which Dunlop had hoped to keep under controls after April 30, will increase sharply.

Dunlop said the lifting of controls may come at the same time Congress is considering a national health insurance program which would include cost-restraining provisions and also tend to promote a major surge in demand for health services.

He said this would "fuel the fires of inflation enormously."

Man jailed after chase

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio (AP) — John R. Earwood, 18, of Greenup, Ky., began a 60-day sentence in the Pickaway County Jail today for leading police on a chase from Columbus to Chilicothe.

Earwood was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and eluding police and sentenced Wednesday in Circleville Municipal Court.

The chase began about 6 a.m. in Columbus with the alleged theft of a pickup truck. Authorities said Earwood ran at least five roadblocks until he wrecked the truck trying to avoid a sixth.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will find enough gasoline available for vacation trips this summer but only if they continue conservation measures, the Federal Energy Office said today.

Dennis Bakke, an aide to deputy administrator John Sawhill, said this means driving no faster than 55 miles per hour, tuning cars, keeping tire pressures right, and possibly taking trips by other means.

Stock list takes dip

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market retreated slowly in very quiet trading today as a 10 per cent prime interest rate spread through the banking industry.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.89 at 840.82 at midday, and declines outnumbered advances by about 4-to-3 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said most investors were waiting on the sidelines to see if the recent surge in interest rates, as mirrored by the rise in the prime, would continue.

Texas-gulf, down 1½ at 28⅛, was the Big Board volume leader. The issue is one of several with Canadian mining interests which have been declining since the Ontario government called for increased taxes on mining concerns.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was down .31 at 93.95.

The Amex volume leader was Champion Home Builders, unchanged at 5.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks stood at 49.09, down .15.

Campaign reform measure pushed despite delays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Operating under a tight limit on debate but with a batch of amendments still to be voted on, the Senate is striving to complete action on a campaign reform bill.

The first amendment at today's session would require that income tax returns of all members of Congress be audited annually just as President Nixon's recently were.

The amendment, by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., provides that "an intensive inspection and audit" be conducted by the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

This is the panel which held that Nixon owed $476,431 in additional taxes.

Solar heating, cooling expensive

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Engineers at Battelle Memorial Institute peg the cost of heating and cooling homes on power from the sun at some $8,000 higher than conventional systems.

But by 1985, the figure could be trimmed to $5,000, said James A. Eibling, manager of the institute solar energy program.

"It may be a close proposition," Eibling says, if prices continue to soar for commonlyused fuels.

Looking conservatively at the growth of solar heating for residential use, he says in the next decade demonstration projects probably will be limited to federally funded programs.

A bill cosponsored by U.S. Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Ohio, passed in the House Feb. 14 to fund projects collecting sun power.

The experiments will have to result in some improvements in the solar systems now on the drawing boards, the manager said.

"Even if you show a homeowner that in 20 years he gets his money back from solar heating, it won't make much difference," he said.

If solar systems are on the mass production lines by 1985, a favorable cost difference could exist, the Battelle expert said. Cost-cutting will have to be in materials, he said.

In those sun-powered houses of the future now in design at Battelle, water circulates in tubes through a light-absorbent section of the roof.

About 1,000 gallons of water heated at 200 degrees would be routed into storage tanks. In cool seasons, a fan blowing air through a radiator fueled by the warm water would heat the house.

Cooling systems would operate on an absorption unit using heat from the water — a principle already employed in propane-fueled refrigerators.

Eibling says chemical substitutes could extend the power of the system since water retains heat from the sun only three to four days.

And he said the system could be more efficient with perfection of a solar heat pump. When skies are clear and solar energy plentiful, a pump could generate additional electricity to light a home.

Eibling, also head of U.S. participation in the International Solar Energy Society, says in the next century solar systems will be common unless nuclear fusion is harnessed sooner than expected.

working condition, according to Wolford.

WOLFORD, who was one of these activated by the Ohio National Guard unit in Washington C. H. to assist at the disaster site, said the master control switch for the operation of the warning siren is located in the Washington C. H. Fire Department. He said the siren's blast can be heard ever most of Union Township and as far away from Washington C. H. as Bloomingburg.

He said a test alert will be conducted jointly by city and county officials soon. The test and the meanings of the number of blasts will be published prior to the test. Wolford said he will meet with the Fayette County Board of Commissioners Monday morning in an effort to schedule the test alert.

Alternate warning systems were also discussed. It was pointed out that the city has six mobile radio facilities which could be employed as base stations should the power be knocked out of the city police and fire departments. The Washington C. H. Police Department has five mobile radio units with public address systems mounted atop the crusisers and the Fire Department has another which is in the fire chief's car.

WOLFORD ALSO pointed out that the city police have the LEADS computer monitoring system in their Fayette Street headquarters and that the system is connected directly with the National Weather Service. Weather bulletins are constantly received over the computer monitoring system.

Police Chief Rodman Scott said the National Weather Service had predicted the tornado last Wednesday well in advance of the actual sweep through Xenia. He also said that city police are obligated to report unusual weather conditions such as sighting of funnel clouds or high winds over the computer in order that the National Weather Service can begin tracking possible tornadoes.

It was mentioned that the city should explore the possibility of acquiring a mobile generating system so that communications systems in the city police and fire departments could be connected in the event of a long-term power outage. Scott and Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen said mobile communications equipment within their departments would serve as base stations.

LEGISLATION

Council umanimously approved an emergency ordinance assigning a classification and pay range for the position of assistant fire chief in the Washington C. H. Fire Department.

The position of assistant fire chief was formerly held by Denen until he was promoted last year to replace the retiring George Hall.

Approval of the ordinance permits the city to legally advertise that a test will be conducted to fill the position. The test will be conducted by the Civil Service Commission.

The city's legislators also approved an emergency ordinance authorizing the city manager to enter into a contract with the Washington C.H. Board of Education for a comprehensive city summer recreation program. The recreation program, which will be supported financially by the city, will be conducted under the auspices of the new Community Education program. Hank Shaffer, director of the Community Education program, will serve as the recreation program's head.

AN EMERGENCY ordinance formally accepting the plat of Developers Diversified, of Cleveland, for a K-Mart plaza addition on Columbus Avenue and confirming the dedication of streets and easements was approved.

City Solicitor Gary Smith pointed out that the city will receive a quit-claim deed from the Cleveland-based development firm for an addition of a turning lane on Columbus Avenue in front of the shopping area. Smith said generally warranty deeds are granted in similar situations, but a quit-claim deed has been authorized by him as a courtesy to the developers.

Council members also approved an emergency ordinance for improvement of signing at all Washington C.H. railroad crossings. The city has qualified for the improvement project and only state funds will be used. The project requires no funds from the local level. The improvement of approach and railroad crossing signs will be handled through the Ohio Department of Transportation, Wolford said.

The city's lawmakers also endorsed by resolution support for the preliminary planning study of the proposed Rattlesnake Creek Watershed project. A public hearing on the proposed watershed project will be held April 18 in Sabina.

Wolford explained that the watershed project deals primarily with field drainage for farm crops and it has been estimated that implementation of the watershed project would increase farm revenue in Fayette County by about $5 million per year.

He said the city's only relationship in the proposed project is one of economics because of the estimated increase in farm revenue.

CALL TO COUNCIL

Council chairman John E. Rhoads in fielding a question from the audience said the finance and personnel committees met recently to consider a pay increase for all city employes. Councilman Donald E. Wood had presented a proposal at the last meeting for a pay hike for city workers.

Rhoads said the committees are in the process of designing a wage increase package. He said it will be presented to Council at a later date.

Orville Dixon, superintendent of the sewage treatment plant, said sludge facilities have been in operation at the plant for the past 10 days. The installation of sludge facilities is a part of the temporary improvement project at the sewage treatment plant.

Wolford said the community should notice a significant difference in odor this summer because of the installation of the new temporary facilities.

Bill Duncan, general foreman of the city street department, reported on two street repair projects. They were the Circle Avenue improvement and the sealing of streets on Kenskill Avenue in the city's Industrial Park.

Councilman Joseph O'Brien questioned the repair of a leaky roof over the city police and fire department headquarters. He said some water damage has resulted and the communications system in the police department has also been damaged. Rhoads said he feels repair of the roof would not be too expensive and Wolford said the roof would be repaired immediately.

Rhoads reported to Council on a meeting of the proposed multi-county solid waste collection project he attended in Waverly recently with Charles Funk, county sanitarian, and Dr. William E. Covert, county health commissioner.

He said representatives from Pickaway, Ross, Scioto, Pike, Lawrence and Fayette counties attended the meeting. Officials are attempting to establish a pilot program and means of possible financing. Circleville has been mentioned as the pilot city for the project, according to Rhoads.

McDonald's gets city building permit

The spring building boom is continuing in Washington C. H.

McDonald's, nationally known food chain with Mid-East headquarters at 4435 Fountain Square Dr., Columbus, has been granted a city building permit for the construction of a 39,066-cubic-foot restaurant on Elm Street at Olive Street.

The building, to be constructed of brick and block, will have a serving area and kitchen facilities on the ground floor, plus basement offices and storage space.

The location is across Elm Street from the Fayette County Bank on land acquired from Fayette Center partners. More than 50 parking spaces will be provided.

The cost estimate for the building, which will be erected by the Miller Construction Co., Columbus, was not given with the application, although the outlay is expected to be well up in six figures.

Other new building permits have been issued to:

Donald Blair, 432 Van Deman St., new residence and attached garage on Lot 21, Dayton Ave.; cost estimate $32,000;

Richard Maughmer, 643 Warren Ave., room addition to residence; $5,000;

William L. Wilson, 1114 Vine St., patio at rear of home, $350;

Mrs. Wilma Campbell, patio between house and garage at 520 Wilson St., $150.

Meanwhile, four of the seven defendants charged with conspiring to obstruct justice in the investigation of the Watergate cover-up filed motions Wednesday asking that U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica be disqualified from the case.

No great credit to Nixon

No matter how one looks at the presidential tax case, President Nixon does not come out of it very well.

The most favorable thing to be said in his behalf is that he has forthrightly kept his promise to abide by the findings of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

Both the committee's highly respected staff and the Internal Revenue Service itself came to the conclusion, on going over Mr. Nixon's income tax returns filed during his presidency, that he has a liability of close to half a million dollars in tax and interest as a result of impermissible deductions.

Fraud is ruled out by both IRS and the committee, but the overriding fact remains that the President owes — and undertakes to pay at once — an amount which the White House says will leave him "almost totally wiped out" financially.

This may occasion sympathy for the President. It does not foster a very high regard for his role in this matter.

Either he relied wholly on his tax lawyers and had no knowledge of what was done, as the White House contends, or (as the tax attorney Frank DeMarco Jr. maintains) he did go over the returns himself with some care and knew what was in them.

In the first case he might be charged with careless delegation of authority; if he did oversee the returns one might deem him insensitive to the concept that a president should take exceptional pains to take no questionable deductions.

In either case, the President does not emerge from the situation with great credit in the eyes of the public.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

The President's tax mistake

WASHINGTON — Why does the President have so many incompetent advisers?

This question was put rather wistfully by a Republican still holding office in the administration when it was revealed that Mr. Nixon must pay $476,000 for tax deficiencies.

That is not the real question. Why, it must be asked, has the President surrounded himself with so many misfits and incompetents, with the tax judgment only the last of a series of damning revelations?

In the final analysis the responsibility is his and this will surely be taken into consideration by the House Judiciary Committee in their deliberation over a bill of impeachment.

Every single step the President took with respect to his taxes over a four-year period was in error. He himself is a lawyer and he should have given more than a cursory look at his returns showing such a huge deduction for the gift of his vice presidential papers.

Those papers, including a number of newspaper clippings, seem to have been a kind of catch-all of uncertain value.

HIS ANNOUNCEMENT on Dec. 8 calling on the joint tax committee of Congress to review his returns with a promise to abide by the committee's finding was a cardinal mistake. That was a privilege open to no other taxpayer.

If he had simply let the reviewing process of the Internal Revenue Service take its course, as it would have with any other citizen in the same situation, he could have contested the finding of IRS before the tax court. Once he had publicly pledged to follow the congressional committee's report to the letter, this option was foreclosed.

The President's personal misfortunes to one side, the blow to the integrety of the tax system is of real concern. If it had not been for the revelation by the Providence Journal that the President for two years paid only miniscule amounts of tax on an income well over $200,000, the whole matter might never have come to light.

The IRS was in the first instance only too happy to play shut-eye with the Nixon returns. After what must surely have been a perfunctory audit, a high IRS official wrote the President complimenting him on the care shown in the preparation of his tax returns. That official, William D. Winters, has since been promoted.

THE INTEGRITY of the income tax system has been a rock on which many crooks have foundered. They might get away with their criminality in the courts or by bribing officials.

But if they failed to pay federal tax on their ill-gotten gains the chances were close to 100 per cent that they would end in prison. Such prohibition ear overlords as Al Capone were found guilty of failing to pay their tax and got stiff jail sentences.

If the system cracks in cynical disbelief, one of the remaining strong points of law enforcement will go with it. Wthout conviction of honesty and unflinching enforcement it will not be workable since even an army of enforcing agents could not police 70 million or 80 million returns.

This week you and I and 81 million others will file individual income tax returns. The report persists, despite IRS playing the possibility down, that taxpayers this time will squeeze out every possible deduction and revenue will fall below expectations.

They will be following the Nixon example with his return showing claimed deductions for flowers sent to funerals and other such petty business.

LET'S FACE IT, the income tax is a curse making us into a nation of bookkeepers. But at least it has been kept honest unlike the tax in France and Italy where the taxpayer is assessed a certain amount and he then proceeds to bargain with the collector to get the best possible deal. With political pull, this can mean zero.

My own returns have been audited for four years running. Because I was on the enemy list I thought it might be political reprisal. My tax attorney says this is unlikely.

In that vast storehouse in West Virginia computers scan each return and under certain circumstances the red light flashes and an audit is ordered.

That is the impersonal turn of fate as millions of ordinary taxpayers, Presidents excepted, have learned.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

She's off to college

Somewhere along in 1943 or 1944, I developed the habit of awakening just before the bugle sounded "First Call" at 5:30 a.m. It was a curious custom, and led me to wonder if we all don't have an internal clock that, after a while, sets itself.

But the odd thing was that for about six months after I was discharged, that clock kept going off: about half-past five I would awake and wait, foggily turn the matter over in my mind, then chuckle and go back to sleep.

In the last six months I have had a recurrence of this eccentric behavior and — much to my surpirse — discovered my wife was suffering the same symptoms. The source can be traced to busing.

Not that dreadful kind of busing you hear so much about, where tender children are dragged away from their friendly neighborhood school, but good busing that takes happy children from all over town to an excellent set of schools.

During her four years in high school — located some seven miles from home — our daughter caught the bus at roughly 7 a.m. (And usually got home around 5:30 p.m. — a fact that led me to sneer at the attacks on daylight saving time. In the winter she left in the dark and got home in the dark without peril to life or limb.

AT THIS POINT a few words on the local geography are in order. We live at the top of a quite steep hill. (Indeed, often after a snow storm the town sand truck backs up our street, spreading sand ahead to provide further traction!) The steepness of the incline always forced the school bus drivers to gear down, making a horrendous racket.

This was the bugle that would suddenly send our daughter into convulsive activity: doors would slam, and she would tear downstairs. Usually she forgot something, so she would roar back up, then down again. Then the back-hall closet door would slam, the back door would slam, and she would do the 100-yard dash to the bus stop.

Meanwhile, as the bus, in first gear, was laboriously ascending the hill, my wife and I would be lying in bed mentally figuring the odds on Jo's missing the connection. The bus would stop, then gear up, and we would wait five minutes to find out whether she had made it, or whether somebody had to climb in the car and make the school run. . . before breakfast.

As we consider breakfast and dinner the serious meals of the day, this taxi duty was thoroughly obnoxious. I, for instance, do not consider the day begun until I have finished my second cup of coffee and read two newspapers.

In all fairness to our daughter, her track record was spectacular. How she did it I will never know: I would swear that on numerous occasions the house door slammed just as the bus began to move away from the stop. But somehow or other, the taxi service was seldom required, and we blessed her.

Now we are suffering from what some saccharine phrasemonger styled the "Empty Nest Syndrome": she is off to college. We are holding up under the strain better than I had anticipated. It's nice, for instance, to have our phone back. (She, perhaps to my secret annoyance, seems to be thriving without the wise and patient guidance of her loving parents.) Yet we both have the same habitual daily response.

EVERY MORNING as the bus grinds its gears for Mt. Everest, my wife and I wake up and wait for the bowling ball to go rolling downstairs, the heard of elephants to come rushing back up, then the bowling ball again, and finally the cannon shot of the slamming door.

The first time nothing happened, I started automatically to go wake her up, on the same wavelength, said, "Maybe her clock didn't go off." Then, suddenly, the truth dawned on us, and we laughed.

So now, when we both wake up on cue, we just look at each other and chuckle. But it's a sentimental, not a derisive chuckle: if the awful truth be told, we both miss that bowling ball bouncing downstairs.

Those incredible sound effects were an integral part of our life, a part we can never experience again. But then, on the other hand, she will never again miss the bus and launch one of us, coffee-less, on a dawn patrol.

To paraphrase St. Augustine, in this world you take your breaks where you find them.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR RECORD-HERALD:

Today I visited Deer Creek State Park to go fishing. When I arrived there I found that half or more of the park was closed off. I asked one of the park rangers about it, and he just laughed at me and said there wasn't anything I could do about it.

The only place I could get to fish without a boat was in the spillway and it was already crowded.

They have signs everywhere that say "NO VEHICLES BEYOND THIS SIGN". They are placed so that one cannot get within a mile or more of the parks water. Some of the signs are alright because they keep everyone from driving through the fields and tearing them up, that is except one of the so-called game protectors who thinks he is immunne to the restriction when he is off duty. Some of the signs are on good lanes that are graveled.

On television where were commercials advertising to stay in Ohio and use the state facilities. No one can fish in these parks if they are closed. The only place one can fish is where, as I was told, "We can keep an eye on you."

I have even been told to be careful where I park my car because if part of it is past one of their signs I would be fined. Sometimes you have to pass the sign to get off the roadway since the only roads that go through it are Old State Route 207 or county roads.

I have lived in this area for around 17 years. Before the government bought the land it was more accessible than it is now. Almost anyone could hunt of fish along Deer Creek without any problems.

Since the government took the land the restrictions on it have been getting tougher and tougher. Soon on one will be allowed to walk on the land.

The kids around here don't have anything to do since most of the park is closed. Some of them are going to get in trouble trying to find something to do.

Please tell me why this park is almost always partially closed up and inaccessible.

I have written the governor, the director of the Department of Natural Resources, William B. Nye, and have yet to receive an answer.

Ohio newspapers receive awards in competition

ATLANTIC, CITY, N.J. (AP)—Two Ohio newspapers and an Associated Press photographer won awards in the 40th annual National Headliners competition, it was announced Wednesday.

The awards will be presented April 20 at the Headliners banquet here. Presidential speechwriter Patrick Buchanan will speak at the dinner.

The Athens Messenger was cited for a series on highway construction and William Hickey of the Cleveland Plain Dealer won an award for feature columns.

Steve Pyle, of Columbus, Ohio photo editor for The Associated Press, was recognized for his picture of a returning prisoner of war and family.

The first ice skates were deer or ox ribs, strapped onto hide boots with leather thongs, according to the National Geographic Society.

Central State classes resume

WILBERFORCE, Ohio(AP)—Classes will be resumed Monday at tornado-damaged Central State University, officials announced.

"We had originally thought we could call back only seniors, but because of progress in cleaning up the campus and opening offices, we are calling back all students," said Ed Chamness, public information director.

He said students are being told to report back on campus by Sunday.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Hey! Doesn't hubby have rights

DEAR ABBY: You're the best in your field, but every now and then even you make a mistake. Example: Woman engaged to man who wants to buy a farm. She refuses to live on farm. He gives in. They live in city 28 years.

Now, with retirement approaching, he wants to buy a modest 12 acres, where he can (presumably) raise a little garden, plant a few trees, and perhaps keep a few chickens. He wants to spend his latter years in healthy, happy, productive environment; a most commendable and wholesome idea certainly.

The wife had her way for 28 years. Yet you tell her, "Don't give an inch or you'll wind up with 12 acres!"

Doesn't the husband have any rights? I say he should buy his little retirement plot and move on it, and if she doesn't want to go along-good ridance!

DON BUCK: GIRARD, KAS.

DEAR DON: When you put it that way, I'll have to admit you make a lot of sense, so after thinking it over, I surrender, dear.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest (and envy) the letter from the woman whose husband wanted to share her with his friends. I should be so lucky!

Twelve years ago I married a man who was so effectively taught in his childhood that sex was dirty, that after 12 years of marriage he still thinks sex is sinful.

Need I tell you what kind of bed partner he has been? I have had a lot of time to think about it, and if I had to choose between promiscuity and abstinence, believe me, I'd choose promiscuity.

DOING WITHOUT IN GAINSVILLE

DEAR DOING: I don't envy you, either. But remember, "promiscuity" is no pass to paradise-if you can believe my mail. And I do.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is almost perfect. We've been married for three years and get along fine, but there is one problem. When we are with people Norton is very quiet. I am forever making excuses for him, like, "Oh, Norton is tired tonight," or, "Norton isn't feeling well."

When he and I are alone together he is fine, but when we're in company, he clams up. People keep asking me if he's mad.

Have you any suggestions for him? Or for me?

NORTON'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell Norton that silence is sometimes mistaken for unfriendliness, so please try to be more sociable. But don't nag him about it. He's probably shy, and too much pushing on your part will make him even more self-conscious.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HEART-BROKEN PARENTS: From your letter I would say that you did your best. Now, quit punishing yourselves. Some parents "train up a child in the way he should go," and out of sheer spite and rebellion, the child deliberately departs from it.

Underground phone line undamaged

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said Wednesday its new $100 million underground cable system escaped damage in last week's Midwest tornadoes.

Some of the system's major operating facilities are located underground near Xenia, Ohio, which was heavily damaged by the twisters.

"The system, itself, is buried four feet underground and nothing happened to it," an AT&T spokesman said.

The spokesman said the company temporarily adjusted its Ohio telephone system last week to give priority to outgoing calls from tornado-struck towns.

"Thousands of worried people trying to call into the area after the disaster were jamming the lines, so we adjusted some controls to keep lines available for outgoing calls," he said.

The Ohio system is part of AT&T's newest and biggest cable network for long distance calls. Opened March 6, the network services long distance calls in a five-state area from Pittsburgh, Pa., to St. Louis, Mo.

The company said the new system is the largest capacity cable system now operating in the United States. It is capable of transmitting 108,000 long distance phone calls simultaneously. Eventually, it will be able to handle 132,000 calls at once.

Big profit on wheat reported

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A firm that has been engaged in grain sales to the Soviet Union and China has reported profits for a recent nine-month period were up 339 per cent.

However, company officials said dealings with the two Communist powers were not the main reason for the record profits reported Tuesday.

Cook Industries Inc. said earnings were $12.90 per share, compared with $3.80 per share for the same period a year ago. After-tax net profits for the nine months ending Feb. 28 were more than $39 million, up from more than $11.5 million.

Bill Barksdale, a Cook spokesman, said the rise in profits was more the result of the Cook Transportation Division cornering the market on shipping than on trading with the Communist nations.

The division controls more than 1,500 rail cars and 200 barges. It is therefore able to move grain to customers while other companies find themselves without a means of delivery.

Since the 1972 Russian sale, Cook Industries has launched a massive expansion campaign — acquiring grain elevators, constructing storage facilities at ports and forming the transportation division.

Lower chamber wins fights

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — They may call the House the lower chamber of the Ohio legislature—but it came out on top twice with the Senate last week.

House members enjoyed the victories immensely—even cheered.

One standoff, which had raged for months, resulted in a House victory and three former senators being taken out of a $600,000 measure paying sundry claims against the state.

The three had tried to collect salaries for two years remaining in their terms after they were reapportioned out of their seats in 1966. The amount involved was $16,000 each.

After the House rejected two conference committee reports that included the former senators, the so-called upper chamber relented so others claims in the bill—some of which had been pending for several years—could be paid.

Among the unpaid claims was that of a widow and six children whose husband and father had been killed in a traffic accident involving an erring state employe.

Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo, helped persuade the senators to go along with the House by pointing out the hazards one must accept when embarking on a political career.

"Reapportionment is something that can affect us all," he said. "I'm living in an apartment on a road I didn't even want to live on while our family home is standing empty."

Cook's district was reshuffled by Democratic reapportionment in 1970.

A cheer went up in the House when the Senate's backdown was announced.

"They just didn't have a leg to stand on," said one House member.

In the other victory, the House succeeded in taking out of a new campaign financing bill a provision that would have reinstated Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown, as an eligible political candidate.

Lukens was ruled off the ballot for five years for failure to file his 1972 personal campaign financial statement on time.

In the second case, the Senate divided. Democrats remained united and Cook joined them in opposing the so-called Lukens amendment. The vote first time around was 16-15 with a constitutional majority of 17 required.

After a conference committee agreed to remove the amendment, the bill went back to the Senate and received 27-3 approval.

Local women to be honored Hospital Day

Three area residents will be honored for their service to the veterans hospitalized at the Chillicothe VA Hospital on Hospital Day, Sunday, May 5. A special awards program planned for 11 a.m. in the hospital recreation hall is open to the public.

Mrs. Fred Rost, 922 Briar Avenue, will be recognized for serving over 1750 hours. A member of the Fayette County Chapter, American Red Cross, Mrs. Rost has been a volunteer at the hospital since 1957. She works in occupational therapy with the patients and has also been active in the sports program. Because of her knowledge of the hospital, she assists with special activities, such as the Christmas Gift Shop, and acts as a tour guide for visitors.

To be honored for 300 hours of service, Mrs. Margaret Cokonougher, 2902 SW Armbrust Road, spends each Sunday at the hospital, acting as a receptionist on one of the busiest building. Mrs. Cokonougher is a member of the Auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4964.

Also a volunteer serving under the auspices of the American Red Cross is Miss Elizabeth McDonald of 226 South North Street. Miss McDonald took her hospital volunteer training in 1972 and has now served over 100 hours in nursing service.

TV Viewing

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The certainty NBC will make a series based on nine books about frontier life on the prairie is causing a gentleman farmer in Charlottesville, Va., more joy than a record crop this week.

"I'm beaming all over," says Roger L. MacBride, who said he's learned that "The Little House on the Prairie." a made-for-TV movie NBC aired March 30, will be a regular series next fall.

The movie, which drew extremely high ratings, starred Michael Landon. It was adapted from one of the classic "Little House" books written by the late Laura Ingalls Wilder, who died at age 90 in 1957.

Where does MacBride fit in? He's her great-grandson by adoption. And he owns the rights to the books, which chronicle the struggle of Mrs. Wilder's youth and her family in the Midwest of the 1870s.

"I've just heard that the NBC lawyers are writing our lawyers out in Hollywood that they've picked up the option and that it will be a series," he said in a telephone interview.

"Isn't that terrific? I've been up all night, as you can imagine, talking to people."

MacBride, 44, had just stepped out of the shower to answer the phone. Although a Yankee by birth, raised in Mt. Kisco, N.Y., he was as courtly as a native Virginian about his unexpected caller.

NBC, when called, said it couldn't comment about new series until it unveils its new fall line next week. But knowledgeable industry sources said "Little House" definitely will be among those wares.

MacBride, a lawyer, said he now specializes in Canadian land development deals in addition operating his farm. He was asked how the whole TV deal came about.

"It's odd how these things work," he said. "Walt Disney for years wanted to do it, but he couldn't ever persuade any of his production men to agree.

"All of a sudden, about 2½ years ago, there was a mob descending — through the publishers — on me, wanting to buy the rights."

From these supplicants, he said, he chose producer Ed Friendly. How'd he know of him?

"Didn't," he said. "He was a complete stranger, but I liked his style ... he impressed me as an extremely intelligent fellow whom I thought could do a good job of keeping the book's spirit."

MacBride, who said he'll be a part-time consultant on the series, is himself an author. He's written one book on treaties and the U.S. Constitution and another on the American electoral college.

Mud deposits form islands in Istanbul's Golden Horn

ISTANBUL (AP) — The stagnant waters of the Golden Horn are silting up rapidly, and in the higher stretches low mud island are appearing and forming stretches of dry land.

Kamil Bakkal, a local dealer in animal intestines, has built himself a hut and drying-sheds for his unsavory wares on one of them, and now lives and works right in the middle of the once beautiful waterway.

Experts warned some years ago that the Golden Horn would be solid ground by the end of this century. They blame not only the industrial areas of Alibeykoy and Kagithane at the head of the five-mile long estuary, but also the three bridges which now span it. The uppermost of these, being built as part of the ring-road complex attached to the Bosporus Bridge linking Europe to Asia, is not yet complete.

The bridges, the experts say, slow down the already sluggish currents in the estuary, which are incapable of carrying their alluvial load down to the point where the Golden Horn flows into the Sea of Marmara.

THE STREAMS that feed the estuary were once known as "the Sweet Waters of Europe." Now they too are laden down with industrial and human wastes, and robbed of their ability to enter the estuary with any force.

The experts have suggested the construction of a canal right round the north of the Old City, which stands on a peninsual between the Horn and the Marmara, to flush out the dirty waters trapped in the estuary.

The cost, however, would be prohibitive, municipal authorities say.

In some sections of the Golden Horn the deepest water is now only a few feet deep, and only thick mud prevents wading from one bank to the other. Wildlife is nonexistent.

Kamil Bakkal, who buys intestines from nearby abbatoirs and dries them for sale to sausage-makers, has not yet given his island a name, according to a Turkish journalist who braved the stench to visit him.

Scores of other islets and mud-banks in the stretch north of the new bridge may well attract other squatters trying to beat Istanbul's rapidly rising rents. Municipal authorities say they have not yet decided what attitude to adopt on the problem.

Glenn withdraws from debate with Metzenbaum

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — John Glenn says he is withdrawing from a scheduled May 3 debate at the Cleveland City Club unless his opponent for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, makes a full financial disclosure.

Glenn told a news conference Wednesday that except for an April 25 debate scheduled to be aired over WEWS-TV, Cleveland, he will not meet Metzenbaum unless the senator makes public his income tax returns and debts.

Metzenbaum called Glenn's decision "incredible," adding: "I would never have thought that a man with his Marine Corps background would have walked away from a direct confrontation."

Referring to the disclosure issue, he said it was a "total copout to argue this has some relevance as to whether we should debate."

A Metzenbaum aide said the senator will stand on the financial disclosure made earlier, which listed his financial holdings and summarized his earnings and taxes for the years 1967 through 1973.

The aide charged that Glenn is "really afraid to debate with the senator on the issues...He probably feels he can't hold his own on the issues and has chosen this way out...The reasons he's given just don't hang together."

Glenn said he is excepting the April 25 date because the commitment was made before he laid down conditions under which he would debate Metzenbaum.

But the former astronaut raised the possibility that the WEWS-TV debate might be canceled also if he finds the format unacceptable.

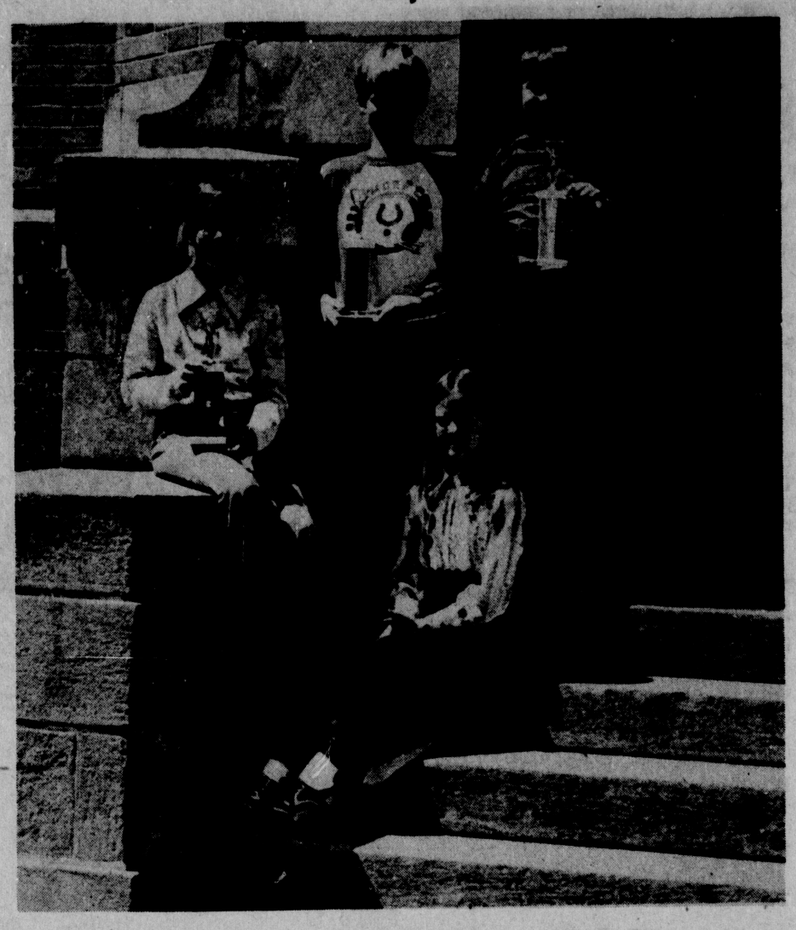

He said he wants a format in which both candidates would be interviewed by a panel of newsmen.

City Club President Sidney D. Josephs said he was "shocked" by Glenn's withdrawal after his aides had given a commitment that he would appear.

"We've had Senate candidates appear for as long as I can remember," Josephs said.

He said if Glenn holds to his decision, Metzenbaum will have the platform to himself on May 3.

Glenn says he considers financial disclosure a major issue and has issued a statement listing his net worth, liabilities and also included copies of his income tax returns.

$200 loss reported in automobile fire

A car fire did $200 damage at 12:36 p.m. Wednesday.

Firemen were summoned to the southwest corner of Market and Fayette streets where the car, owned by Mrs. Ralph Gibson, 211 Gardner Court, was burning. They put out the blaze with water and carbon dioxide extinguishers.

Cause of the fire was determined to be a faulty fuel line which spilled gas on the motor.

Nixon, Kissinger hold talks with Algeria's Boumedienne

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger are opening talks with Algerian leader Houari Boumedienne in an effort to gain influence with the increasingly important Arab leader.

The two administration officials scheduled a morning meeting at the White House with Boumedienne, who is making his first visit to any Western nation.

The Boumedienne meetings takes on extra importance because of the jolt given U.S.Mideast policy by the collapse of the Golda Meir Cabinet in Israel.

The United States and Algeria have not had diplomatic relations since the Israeli-Arab war in 1967 and President Nixon asked for today's meeting as a prelude to resumption of formal contacts.

There were several reasons for the American effort, including wider access to the extensive natural gas fields in Algeria. But international politics was a major motivation.

Kissinger has been trying to increase American influence among the major Arab nations in order to strengthen his leverage in arranging a Middle East settlement.

Boumedienne has moved increasingly into a leadership role among the Arabs and Kissinger seeks closer ties to avoid being dependent on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for his influence in the area.

In addition Boumedienne has become a leader among less developed nations generally. He is in the United States to attend a special United Nations General Assembly meeting called at his initiative on pricing and allocating of raw materials held by developing nations.

Boumedienne is expected to resist any quick re-establishment of relations without some direct link to a new phase in the Middle East peace move, particularly another Israeli troop pullback.

It is extremely unlikely that this will happen until Israel's political situation stabilizes and that may take months.

Millions of workers affected by wave of Japanese strikes

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese labor's annual "shunto," its spring wage offensive, reached its peak today with millions of workers on a one-to-five-day strike affecting more than half the nation's 108 million people.

It was the closest thing to a general strike in Japan's history.

The workers struck the railroads, subways, buses, taxis, airlines and commercial shipping.

Also hit were schools; telegraph, government and post offices; municipal garbage collection; forestry preserves; the government printing agency and the mint.

The nationwide labor movement is seeking wage hikes of 30 to 35 per cent to counter the soaring cost of living, which rose 24 per cent last year under the pressure from the increase in oil prices.

Some industries have already given in. But Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka has refused to budge from an offer of an 18.7 per cent increase for government workers, including those on the national railway, and has also failed to satisfy the rail workers' demands for the legal right to strike. Tanaka proposed a two-year study of the right-to-strike question by a special cabinet council.

The transport strikes affected more than 40 million people, or two-thirds of the work force. Those who didn't stay home struggled to their offices and factories on foot, by bicycle, car pool or motorcycle.

The Education Ministry said about 15 million primary, middle and high school students — about 96 per cent of the total — got a holiday as the 500,000-member teachers' union went on strikes ranging from one to eight hours.

The 13,600-member Federation of Civil Aviation Workers, including 3,500 in foreign airlines, declared strikes of from two to 72 hours, causing delays in cargo handling and passenger services.

Music director in the soup

COLUMBUS, Ohto (AP) — A shortage of $1,108.08 has been uncovered in the band activity account held by the Coblentz Local School District in Preble County, state Auditor Joseph Ferguson reported today.

Ferguson held the system's music director, David C. Mowery, responsible for the money.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The annual convention and trade show of the American photo industry is an important barometer of what's ahead for this country's camera fans.

This year it's something special because the Master Photo Dealers and Finishers Assn. were celebrating their 50th anniversary at their sessions in Chicago in late March. For the occasion, major manufacturers and distributors were unveiling new films and equipment that will affect or concern the country's picture takers.

Probably most newsworthy was the announcement of a three-film shakeup. First is the replacement of popular Kodachrome II film by new Kodachrome 25 (daylight) film in all sizes for still cameras and in 8mm and 16mm movie sizes.

Secondly, present Kodachrome-X will be replaced by new Kodachrome 64 (daylight) film. Both new films for still cameras should be available at dealers starting in April.

Thirdly, new Kodachrome 40 movie film (type A) will replace type A Kodachrome II in double-8mm and 16mm sizes. It is scheduled for distribution in July along with new Kodachrome 25 movie film (daylight).

However, movie makers with super 8mm cameras will have to wait till fall this year before Kodachrome 40 (type A) film reaches camera stores.

FOLLOWING a demonstration for press representatives of the differences between the new and present films, these points can be made:

There is no increase in film speed in the changes to new emulsions but there is clearer knowledge of each film's rated speed because it's incorporated in the new film's name.

Thus, new Kodachrome 25 has an ASA 25 film speed. New Kodachrome 64 has an ASA 64 film speed. And new Kodachrome 40 (type A) has an ASA 40 film speed. With a box of new film, you know immediately what to set the ASA rating at without hunting for the instruction sheet.

In comparing new Kodachrome 25 with Kodachrome II, officials acknowledge no improved grain or sharpness but say that these qualities have been maintained at a similar level.

There is a general improvement in tone and color reproduction in the new film but the change is very subtle and takes a keen eye to be aware of it.

The yellows are slightly cleaner and reds, blues and greens are a bit brighter. The sky tone has less magenta and may be more natural although some camera fans may prefer the magenta tone as it is now.

ON THE WHOLE, since Kodachrome II has been considered for many years by top photographers as the standard for color film quality, it's disappointing that a change did not include a faster film speed while maintaining its other characteristics.

That would have been a practical and valuable improvement.

In comparisons between new Kodachrome 64 and Kodachrome-X, the differences and improvement are more readily seen.

The new film has lower contrast; is less grainy and a bit sharper; has more exposure latitude and better color rendition. A noticeable area of improvement is in more pleasing flesh tones.

When scenes taken with new Kodachrome 40 (type A) movie film were compared with similar scenes shot on Kodachrome II (type A), the results showed better color rendition in general with improved flesh tones in particular. Officials reported it is also a bit less grainy.

As the new films become available, present films will be phased out. However, Kodachrome II professional film (type A) will continue to be supplied in 36 exposure, 35mm cartridges for approximately one year. After that a new film of similar speed and color balance is expected to be introduced.

PRICES and processing charges for the new films will remain the same as for corresponding films and services that they replace.

A revolutionary new system of slide projection and a new line of low-profile movie projectors were also introduced at the Chicago trade show.

The projector, designed by Hanimex engineers in Australia, for slides made in 110 pocket-camera format, employs no trays, slide containers or cubes such as conventional projectors now use. Instead it uses an endless nylon belt just over an inch wide, on the outside of which slides are mounted in steel clips.

The loop of slides is dropped over two spindles within the projector which is then capable of advancing them at great speed, more than three a second. The projector can show a belt of 120 slides in just over half a minute, a unique featuer for conveying sequential motion as in a time lapse series, animation or a zoom sequence.

The Rondette 110 projector can be operated conventionally forward, in reverse and also from a remote position. It has an imput for sound synchronization, another feature indicating potential for serious photography in the future by "pocket" photographers. Deliveries to American dealers are scheduled to begin in August.

THERE ARE six new Kodak Moviedeck models in the line of projectors for regular 8 and super 8mm movies with low-profile design, hi-fi decor and innovative features to make exciting viewing.

They eliminate the tradition upright film reels which resemble ferris wheels and put them instead in a horizontal position so that the top 400-foot reel looks like a record on a record player. The take-up reel is hidden below, out of sight.

JUMPING from one thing to another sometimes has its advantages. Like William M. Johannes of Columbus, Ohio. He was on a fire escape trying to photograph clouds when a small boy came along having great fun jumping puddles. Johannes changed his view to the one below him and the picture won a prize in the 1973 KINSA, the Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards.

Folk music fete slated April 17 at Chillicothe

CHILLICOTHE — The sounds of Appalachian folk music and the lifestyles of early settlers and miners will be presented Wednesday, April 17, when Ohio University-Chillicothe hosts the Green Parks Company at 8 p.m. in Bennett Hall Auditorium. Admission is free and area students and residents are invited to attend this musical history of early America.

The Green Parks Company was formed in the summer of 1973 to bring folk music and dance to southeastern Ohio state park campgrounds. The group is a project of the Ohio Valley Summer Theater and the Ohio University School of Theater. They present traditional songs of the Appalachian region from the period between the War of 1812 and World War I.

Impressed by the cultural and educational aspects of the Green Parks program, Ohio Congressman Clarence Miller arranged with the National Parks Service for the group to go to Washington, D. C. In October they performed in Lafayette Park, across from the White House, to a crowd of over 1,000 in DuPont Circle. Government officials and people of all ages, races and economic backgrounds shared the hill traditions with them.

DP&L getting synthetic gas

DAYTON — The Dayton Power and Light Co. announces that the first plant for production of synthetic gas to replace volumes of natural gas no longer available to the company is now in production.

The plant is at Green Springs, near Fremont. It was built at a cost of $44 million and is operated by Columbia Gas Corp.

The plant is capable of reforming petroleum feedstocks into 75 billion cubic feet of pipeline quality gas a year. DP&L has contracted for its proportionate share of 4.8 billion cubic feet per year.

This project is the first completed in a long range program to develop new gas supplies to replace the volumes of natural gas no longer available. While the new synthetic gas will cost much more than natural gas, it is the only way the quantities curtailed can be replaced.

The company's principal gas supplier, Columbia Gas, has informed DP&L it can anticipate increasing curtailments of its contracted deliveries of natural gas from the present 5 per cent to 21 per cent in 1977-78.

DP&L's purchases of the higher cost synthetic gas are to replace these curtailments in order that the needs of the company's existing customers can be met.

C. of C. backs watershed hearing

The Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce board of directors endorsed an April 18 hearing in Sabina concerning the proposed Rattlesnake Creek Watershed project during the regular meeting Thursday morning.

The public hearing is being held in an effort to hasten the proposed watershed project which involves some 177,000 acres of farm land. The directors reached the decision to endorse the public hearing after Clarence Cooper discussed the need for channelization and the economic impact.

Cooper said that Fayette County agriculture presently generates more than $25 million annually and the figure could be increased by 25 or 50 per cent with adequate drainage. Officials from the Ohio Department of Natural Resources will conduct the April 18 hearing.

THE BOARD was also advised that the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce has arranged an April 23 meeting with William B. Nye, director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, to seek expedition of proposed developments at Deer Creek state park. The session will attract officials from the New Holland, Circleville, Mount Sterling, Chillicothe and Columbus chambers of commerce as well as one state legislators. Projections call for lodging and recreational developments similar to those presently in existence at Hueston Woods and Salt Fork.

Board members discussed recent severe weather attacks and agreed to support and encourage Washington C. H. and Fayette County officials to develop and test a warning system for the area.

In other business, the directors reviewed plans for the annual membership meeting to be held Tuesday, June 4; appointed a 1974-1975 budget committee and discussed fund-raising projects; agreed to participate in the Washington C. H. and Miami Trace Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) spring banquet, and established May 2 as a tentative date for an open town meeting in Washington C. H. that is being planned by the Chamber of Commerce's public relations committee.

Board members were also advised that Monday, April 15, is the final day for preliminary balloting for new Chamber of Commerce directors.

High court issues rulings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's Supreme Court has ruled against Richard B. Kay in his bid to oust fellow Clevelander Arthur L. Cain as state chairman of the American Independent Party (AIP).

But the unanimous decision Wednesday was based on a finding that the chairmanship of the party is an internal matter, and that the office is not a "public office" having anything to do with "the sovereign functions of government."

Records showed Kay was elected chairman in 1972 at a meeting called by four newly elected central committeemen. He then went to court to seek the ouster of Cain, who had been chairman.

In another case, the Supreme Court upheld a Board of Tax Appeals ruling that Quaker Apartments of Wilmington, operated by a non-profit corporation, does not qualify for exemption from state sales and use taxes.

Quaker sought the exemption on the cost of materials used in the construction of an 80-unit building reserved for the poor and handicapped, for whom a federal agency pays part of the rent.

In its 6-1 decision—with Chief Justice C. William O'Neill dissenting—the court held that in order to qualify for the exemption, the company would have to meet a qualification that the housing was used "exclusively for charitable purposes."

Quaker does not do this, the court said, in effect, because its tenants are required to pay at least part of their rent.

Grand jury probe of Nixon taxes?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service has declined to comment on a report that the IRS had requested a grand jury investigation of possible criminal conspiracy in the preparation of President Nixon's tax returns.

The New York Times, citing "well-placed sources," reported today that IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander had asked Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski to start the probe, to focus on Nixon's claim of a $576,000 deduction for donating his prepresidential papers to the National Archives.

There was no immediate comment on the story from Jaworski's office. However, a spokesman for the special prosecutor on Wednesday declined to disclose whether any matters connected with Nixon's taxes were under study.

The Times said its sources reported that Alexander had discussed the taxes question with Jaworski last week and had provided the prosecutor with a list of Nixon associates and former aides to be investigated in connection with the matter.

Both the IRS and a joint congressional panel have ruled that the gift deduction was improper because of a back-dated deed that was actually signed after the law permitting such deductions had expired. Because of this and other findings, Nixon agreed to pay $432,787.13 plus interest in back taxes.

Atty. Gen. William Saxbe said Tuesday that material related to California attorney Frank DeMarco had been turned over to Jaworski. DeMarco has admitted back-dating the deed for Nixon's papers.

A spokesman for the Justice Department declined to comment on The Times story Wednesday night.

Bobby Griffith convicted of 4 charges

NEW LEXINGTON, Ohio (AP) — A 33-year-old state prison inmate has been convicted on four charges at the end of a stormy day in court, during which he disrupted proceedings and threw a file at the judge.

Bobby Ray Griffith was convicted Wednesday of armed robbery, burglary, larceny and auto theft by a jury of nine women and three men in Perry County Common Pleas Court.

At one point, while the jury was out of the courtroom and attorneys were arguing a legal point, the defendant shouted, "Why don't you send all of the stuff back with the jurors."

He then threw his attorney's manila file on the case at Judge Robert G. Tague. The papers scattered above and around the judge's head.

Tague ordered Griffith handcuffed and gagged.

The crimes occurred in New Straitsville after Griffith's escape March 15, 1973 from a Franklin County Common Pleas Court, police said.

Great Caesar's ghost town decides to ground Superman

METROPOLIS, Ill. (AP) — Great Caesar's ghost! Superman has been grounded in his self-proclaimed hometown.

The "Amazing World of Superman," a project that was supposed to rival Disneyland and bring Metropolis a supershare of the tourist business, is going into mothballs.

About three years ago, someone got the idea Superman would make a dandy favorite son. After all, didn't the comic book Man of Steel live in a place called Metropolis and work there on the Daily Planet newspaper?

Enthusiasm ran so high that a full-length portrait of Superman was painted on the town water tower, and the local weekly newspaper changed its name to the Planet.

Last spring, to the accompaniment of a Marine Corps band and a chorus of gospel singers, a Superman exhibition hall — Amazing World's first phase — opened in a refurbished roller rink.

Politicians gave their blessings, Superman's creator gave the hall an X-ray vision once over and hopes bounded high.

Then it got very quiet. Nobody came.

James W. Crain, 40, chairman of the board of Metropolis Recreation, Inc., owners of the project, said Wednesday nearly everything has gone wrong — delay in construction of a nearby superhighway, too much rain, the gasoline shortage and rising prime interest rates.

This week, signs were posted announcing an auction of the hall's fixtures. Crain isn't sure whether the exhibits, among them the art work for the first Superman comic in 1934 and the costume worn by George Reeves in the Superman television series, will be sold.

Detroit to host energy meeting

DETROIT (AP) — Experts from 55 nations will meet here this fall to see what can be done to help solve the world's future energy problems.

The Ninth World Energy Conference (Sept. 22-27) will draw some 4,500 persons, including influential government ministers, economists, scientsists, engineers, educators and executives in the energy industry. Specialists from some 45 members nations will prepare some 250 technical papers for advance placement with the registrants. More than 3,000 delegates will come from foreign countries, 20 per cent from various government agencies. The balance will come from utilities and industries involved in the production and transmission of energy.

The world group headquartered in London was founded in 1924 and is composed of national chapters in 69 countries. Its only other conference held in the U.S. was convened in Washington D.C. in 1936. It will cost about $2 million to stage the latest meeting, most of which will come from registration fees and contributions from companies and industries.

Associate attorney general talks himself out of job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe's political friend, J.D. Sawyer, has talked himself out of a top Justice Department job and the fancy new office suite Saxbe provided him.

Saxbe has decided to abolish the $38,000-a-year job of associate attorney general less than three months after he appointed Sawyer to it.

Sawyer said he recommended the move because he concluded "there is really no role for the associate attorney general ...if the department is to function effectively and along traditional lines."

By recommending an end to his own job, he became a rarity in the Washington bureaucracy.

The sudden end of Sawyer's Justice Department career was announced today as part of a plan to scrap a departmental reorganization imposed by former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson.

Saxbe's decision, subject to staff review for two weeks, returns the department to a traditional system Richardson considered fragmented and ineffective.

Sawyer, who managed Saxbe's successful Senate campaign in 1968, said he expects to leave the department in about six weeks and return to his real estate business in Middletown, Ohio, after a Florida vacation.

He told reporters that when he accepted the job, he anticipated staying about a year.

As it turned out, he stayed hardly long enough to settle into an office suite enlarged and redecorated at a cost of $25,500.

Soybeans still top cash crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says soybeans will continue as the nation's leading cash crop again this year despite a prospective buildup in reserves by next fall when the 1974 harvest is ready.

Farmers sold an estimated $8.1 billion worth of soybeans in calendar 1973, the department said Wednesday in a report on the fats and oils situation.

Those sales — cash receipts — included beans from both 1972 and 1973 production.

But prices for 1973-crop soybeans, although down from erratic peaks a year ago, have been relatively stable and are high enough so that 1974 appears to be another top year for the oilseed.

The report emphasized that "cash receipts" refer to that portion of a crop sold by farmers. In the case of soybeans, most are sold for cash. Corn, on the other hand, has a larger "farm value" — more than $13.3 billion for 1973 output — but nearly half is used on farms that produce it.

Farmers have indicated they will plant about 55 million acres of soybeans this spring, which could mean a crop of about 1.54 billion bushels, down slightly from the 1973 record.

Meantime, the USDA report said, the big crop last year plus a small reserve last fall meant a record soybean supply of more than 1.6 billion bushels was available for use during the 1973-74 season.

Total use is estimated at around 1.4 billion bushels, meaning the carryover next Sept. 1 when the 1974 crop is ready will be about 240 million bushels.

"This would be the second largest carryover of record, surpassed only by the 327 million bushels of Sept. 1, 1969," the report said.

"However, the carryover this fall will be composed entirely of free stocks, in contrast to earlier when about 95 per cent of the 327 million bushels was in government hands."

Prices paid farmers rose from a little over $5 per bushel last November to $5.96 in March. The report said the average for soybeans from last Sept. 1 through March was $5.75 per bushel, compared with $4.19 during the same period in 1972-73.

At the same time, the report indicated, many soybean farmers apparently have become a little more wary about market trends. Through February, it said, producers had put 123 million bushels of beans under price support loan protection, compared with 89 million a year earlier.

"Although prices are two and a half times the support level ($2.25 per bushel), farmers are using the loan for interim financing and a means of holding beans for sale later on," the report said.

New construction reports required by county auditor

Fayette County Auditor Mary Morris has issued a reminder that all real property owners are required by Ohio law to report new construction or improvements of existing buildings to the county auditor's office.

Mrs. Morris said under section 5713.17 of the Ohio Revised Code, "all real property owners are required to report to the county auditor the construction or the improvement to any building located on any lot or tract of land within a township or municipal corporation."

The county auditor said problems have arisen since five of the townships in Fayette County are not zoned. These are Green, Jasper, Jefferson, Madison and Perry.

The city of Washington C.H. and Union, Paint, Concord, Marion and Wayne townships are zoned, and building permits are necessary for new construction or improvement of existing buildings.

Mrs. Morris said since building permits are necessary in Washington C.H. and the five townships, the county auditor's office has knowledge of the construction.

IT IS IMPORTANT that all new construction or building improvement be reported to the county auditor in order that the appraisers can value the property.

The Cole-Layer- Trumble Co., of Dayton, which completed Fayette County's last real estate reappraisal, has been in the county each of the last six years since the 1968 reappraisal and has added new construction to the tax duplicate at a fee of $6,000 annually.

Mrs. Morris said upon failure to give notice as provided in the section of the Ohio Revised Code of new construction or an improvement and upon discovery of the work, the property will be appraised immediately and placed on the tax duplicate together with a tax penalty of 50 per cent for each of the years from the date of discovery.

David Vangundy is handling the addition of new construction to the tax duplicate for the county as an associate of the Cole-Layer-Trumble Co., of Dayton

Sport center destroyed by blaze

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Daytona Beach Jai-Alai fronton, valued at $3.5 million, has been almost completely destroyed by a fire that began less than two hours after Wednesday night's games, fire officials said.

Fire officials reported no injuries.

"It's the worst I've heard of here in 15 years with the department," said Assistant Fire Chief Terry Dickerson as the blaze continued, whipped by 14-mile-an-hour winds, toward dawn today.

First reports from pari-mutuel workers in the building when the fire started indicated that the fire broke out in the building's vent system.

The fronton had been open less than two weeks, after the Florida Supreme Court agreed closing it could cost the state $1 million in revenue and cause economic problems in the area.

The state Pari-Mutuel Wagering Division had refused the owners, Emprise, Corp., an operating permit on grounds Emprise was convicted in California of a federal gambling law violation.

The case was headed for a hearing before an appeal court.

Red China upset by trade news

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chinese are upset about news commentaries that trade prospects with the United States have cooled, a China authority and corporate trade negotiator reports.

Officials of the People's Republic, Harned Pettus Hoose said, are anxious that trade relations continue to develop. "I was asked to please make this known to business circles in the United States. They were emphatic," Hoose said.

He added: "They are very disturbed and resentful of such reports and ask what is being done to cope with them."

Hoose, a lawyer who was born and who lived 23 years in China, and who has spent six of the past 24 months negotiating for American corporations there, said he was asked continually in a recent visit to comment on the alleged cooling.

"I told them I saw no evidence of it," said Hoose, who maintains that any such reports resulted, in his opinion, from an inability of some observers to assess a nation as large and complex as China.

"It's like the blind feeling an elephant," he said. "One feels the tail and believes the elephant is cool; another feels the trunk and believes the elephant is hot."

The Chinese, however, aren't inclined to accept such a simple explanation. To them, Hoose said, "reports about cooling off must originate with Taiwan or the Soviet Union or from circles that are enimical to the Chinese."

Partly because they believe the Soviets are a "very real and immediate threat," in Hoose's words, the Chinese are committed to economic expansion through trade.

In Canton, for example, the government has constructed an enormous trade building to replace older facilities. The complex is at least 20 times larger than the existing facility, with hundreds of acres of grounds and buildings.

Further evidence of a commitment to trade, said Hoose, are dozens of new hotels in Canton, Shanghai and Peking, the development of more dock space and even a system for handling containerized cargo.

PEDAL POWER — A new form of transportation called the "People's Powered Vehicle," (PPV) has made its appearance in Washington C.H. All it requires is leg muscles and if you don't have 'em, you soon will! Grove Davis (left) purchased the PPV for his daughter, Janie (middle), to enable her to get around better by herself. Janie was stricken with encephalitis 10 years ago, leaving her motor coordination somewhat impaired. The PPV has three speeds and supposedly reaches a speed of 35 miles per hour with two people pedaling as fast as they can (and maybe downhill.) Mrs. Jerry Green, Bloomingburg, is in the driver's seat ready to go.

Unemployment assistance offered to storm victims

COLUMBUS — Residents of six Ohio counties are eligible for Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA) as a result of killer tornadoes which ripped through the area last Wednesday.

In response to a plea from Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan, Adams, Butler, Greene, Hamilton, Madison and Warren counties have been declared major disaster areas by President Richard M. Nixon,

The Ohio Bureau of Employment Services began preparing DUA payments after the governor directed administrator William E. Garnes to give the situation in stricken areas the highest priority.

Gov. Gilligan, who visited the devastated parts of the state within hours after the disaster, also told the OBES administrator that residents within the area are to be given every consideration possible.

ELIGIBLE for unemployment assistance payments will be those who live or work in the disaster area, either for themselves or for an employer, and who:

No longer have a job or a place to work in the area; can not get to their place of employment, even if the work were outside the disaster area, and those who are prevented from going to work because of an illness or injury resulting from the disaster.

DUA payments are retroactive to the date of the storms.

Gov. Gilligan said individuals recently unemployed, or those completing school or training, may also be eligible if the disaster prevented them from obtaining work.

The governor said that all applications and claims for the assistance are to be filed in the regular unemployment claims offices of the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services, or at Federal Disaster Assistance Centers. He noted that under federal regulations, all applications must be filed with OBES before May 6.

ACCORDING to Garnes, the level of DUA payments — funds for which are provided by the federal government under the Disaster Relief Act of 1970 — are related to prior earnings.

The OBES administrator explained that the minimum amount to be paid will be equal to the average unemployment compensation payment made by the state, or $59. The maximum amount will equal the highest unemployment compensation payment made by the state, or $114.

Garnes said that anyone who believes he is entitled to DUA payments should report to the nearest local claims office or disaster centers as soon as possible.

Applicants should bring their Social Security Account Number, and if possible, any papers showing employment or earnings prior to the disaster. If ill or injured because of the disasters, the applicants should write to the local office and request assistance.

THE OBES OFFICE in Xenia was damaged and remains unuseable, Garnes said. As a result, a special Xenia unit was established in the Dayton OBES office which will permit Xenia residents to file Unemployment Compensation claims by mail under a special arrangement, created at the request of the governor.

Garnes said that only in-person visit per month will be required of Xenia residents. "We will be able to handle their claims by mail for the rest of the month," he said.

Meanwhile, the agency will be moving a mobile unit into the Xenia area to help handle inquiries and employment services.

Americans less mobile than before

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Census Bureau population specialist says Americans may be slightly less mobile than they used to be, but still change homes with great frequency.

A new study shows that 31.8 per cent of all Americans changed their residence during the three-year period ending in March of last year.

The study also shows that more Americans moved away from the nation's metropolitan areas, 4,680,000, than moved in, 3,736,000.

In previous years, Census Bureau surveys showed that the percentage of Americans who changed homes every year declined from 19 and 20 per cent in the early 1960s to the recent historical low of 17.9 per cent in 1971.

There were no separate surveys for 1972 and 1973.

The latest three-year survey is not directly comparable to the previous annual surveys, but Larry H. Long of the bureau's population division says there has been a slight decline in mobility in recent years.

But he noted the volume of people who change homes every year still is much greater than in the past two decades, even though the percentage is lower.

The most mobile age group in the population are persons in their 20s, of whom 58 per cent changed homes in the 1970-1973 period.

Both the South and the West experienced a net inflow of 1.2 million migrants, with the Northeast and North Central regions having an offsetting loss.

The most common element in the universe is hydrogen, which makes up 90 per cent of all matter.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, APRIL 12

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Time is important, of course, but don't let the thought of it rush you into hasty moves, decisions. Confusion will reign if the guard is down.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Rationalize, think things out with logic before making important moves — and just about every move WILL be important now.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

A day which may begin slowly, but one in which momentum will pick up gradually. Many openings for the willing, alert and consistent worker.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

More auspicious influences than for many. Choose the hours for action astutely; choose those for curtailing as smartly. Shun mere guesswork.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Your dynamic energy and general magnetism will carry you far — if you are directing endeavors with thought and foresight.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Though there is a favorable outlook, some not entirely successful operations need an added "shot in the arm" — new methods, tightening up, new data.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Decide early how you must proceed and do not permit others to keep you from pursuing worthwhile goals. You can accomplish a great deal now.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

If others want to make changes, evaluate carefully before dissenting: They may be for the best. If you truly feel they are wrong, don't go along with them.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

To gain confidence and impress, one extends a hand and cooperates willingly — sometimes first, as you must now. Don't expect more than is reasonable.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

You may be faced with some unusual propositions. Investigate them from the point of view of long-range benefits, and consider whether they suit YOUR standards.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Now you have an opportunity to spread your wings a bit, to investigate new areas, devices. But do not drop well-planned activities merely for the sake of a change.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Your senses, perception and spirits should be buoyed now. You can do a great deal with little material, with even less than others to start with. Make the most of a good day!

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a magnetic personality, tremendous ambition and a gift of leadership which is truly extraordinary. Not as impulsive as others born under your Sign, you think calmly and objectively before speaking or acting, so don't get into as much "hot water" as some of your zodiacal brothers and sisters. This ability to analyze and rationalize is a great asset to any one of the many careers from which you have to choose — especially in the law, which, in your case, would probably lead to eminent statesmanship. You are endowed with creative ability, too: Your gift of words makes you an excellent writer; your love of beauty, an outstanding painter or musician and, as a salesman or promoter, you can be tops.

Collection of tips for the home handyman (or woman):

Never use nails that are already rusted. . .Spraying is easier than brushing paint on reed and wicker objects. . .

A wide piece of board will warp quicker than a narrow one. . .In removing wallpaper with water, softener or steam, the scraping should be done from the top down. . .

When you have to work with an acid-water solution, always add the acid to the water, never the water to the acid. . .

Wire screens should be installed at the top of each downspout where it connects with the gutter. . .

Place identifying tags on all shut-off valves throughout the house so that they can be turned off in an emergency by someone unfamiliar with their locations. . .

For painting a window sash, use a special round or oval brush about one inch wide. . .In starting a saw cut with a handsaw, the first few strokes should be upward.

COLORS influence the apparent size of a room, with white, cream, green and blue having an enlarging effect and red, pink, orange and yellow tending to diminish size. . .

In wallpapers, those of large patterns reduce the apparent size of a room, while plain and small patterns enlarge it. . .

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

If your garden is overcroweded with vegetables it is as bad as having weeds. To Dr. J. Lee Taylor of Michigan State University, crowded vegetables are out of place and "any plant that is out of place is a weed."

Thin turnips, rutabagas and other root crops before their taproots become fleshy. Leave onions and radishes in the ground until those to be thinned are large enough to be eaten.

"It is unwise to sow small seeds far enough apart to permit plants to make their best development," Taylor advises. "Thinning is a much better operation."

Summer Bulbs

We pay a lot of attention to spring flowering bulbs. Let's consider the summer bulbs, such as dahlias, gladiolus and lilies.

Pull weeds by hand when possible because surface roots and stems may be hurt by a weeding tool such as a hoe.

Normal rainfall is usually enough for summer flowering bulbs but they'll appreciate a good ground soaking at weekly intervals during dry weather.

Fertilize the plants lightly with 5-10-5 when they bloom, applying a light ring, but keep it off the leaves and away from bulbs and roots, which may burn.

Don't use high nitrogen fertilizers because they may cause bulb decay if you apply too much at one time. Bonemeal is good because it releases nitrogen slowly.

Apply it at flowering time — about three pounds for a 5 by 10 garden bed, mixed into the soil thoroughly.

Cut the flowers off when they fade. This will prevent seed formation, which takes stored food from bulbs.

After leaves yellow, dig the bulbs and store them in a cool place for replanting the following season. Dead stems and foliage should be destroyed since left on the ground they may carry disease to new growth the next year.

New Roses

In addition to All-America Winners, Armstrong has some attractive new roses, including "Jolly Roger," a vivid red floribunda; "Picasso," pink to flame floribunda from Northern Ireland; and a magnificent "Secret Love," dark, red velvet hybrid tea. "Lemon Spice" is a bright yellow hybrid tea with a strong fragrance.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I have an old, large mirror that needs resilvering. Will you please tell me how to do it?

A. — Resilvering a mirror is an involved process requiring the use of strong chemicals. Better have it done professionally.

Q. — A friend of mine recently gave me his old stationary scroll saw when he got a new one. I find that I am constantly breaking the blades. My friend says it never happens to him. What am I doing wrong?

A. — Assuming that you are using the saw on regular wood, the same as your friend, the most probably cause of blade breakage is pushing the work into the blade too rapidly. A scroll saw is made to cut slowly.

The same thing holds true when cutting metal, which is done with a special blade. Feed the metal into the saw too fast and you will wind up with a broken blade.

Q. — I plan to lay resilient floor tiles on a wooden floor. Is an underlayment of hardboard or plywood necessary?

A. — It is not necessary when the floor is smooth, in perfect condition and has boards 3 inches or less in width.

Even then, a felt underlayment generally is recommended. For floors with rough surfaces or with wide boards that may warp or have some open joints, a hardboard or plywood underlayment will avoid future trouble.

Q. — How do I get the grease from the burner grates of our kitchen stove? Is it okay to use soap and water?

A. — Yes. But a better combination is baking soda and water. Soak the grate in the solution. Scour with dry soda if difficult spots remain.

Q. — I am putting some new wood siding on our house. What kind of nails should I use?

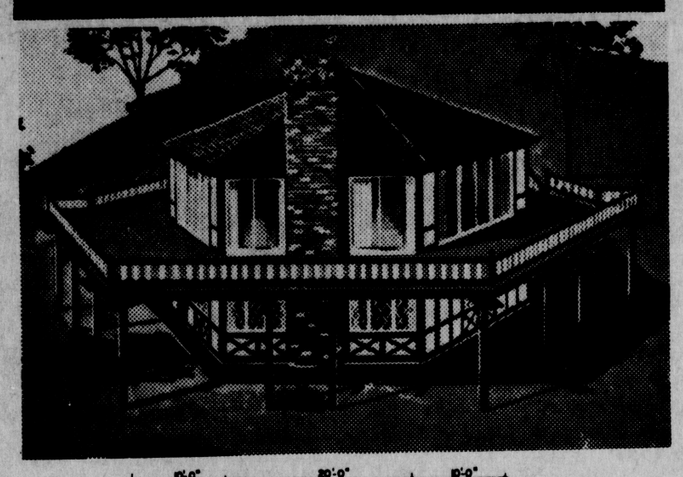

A. — Plain steel wire nails may result in rust spots on some paints. Your best bet is aluminum nails.

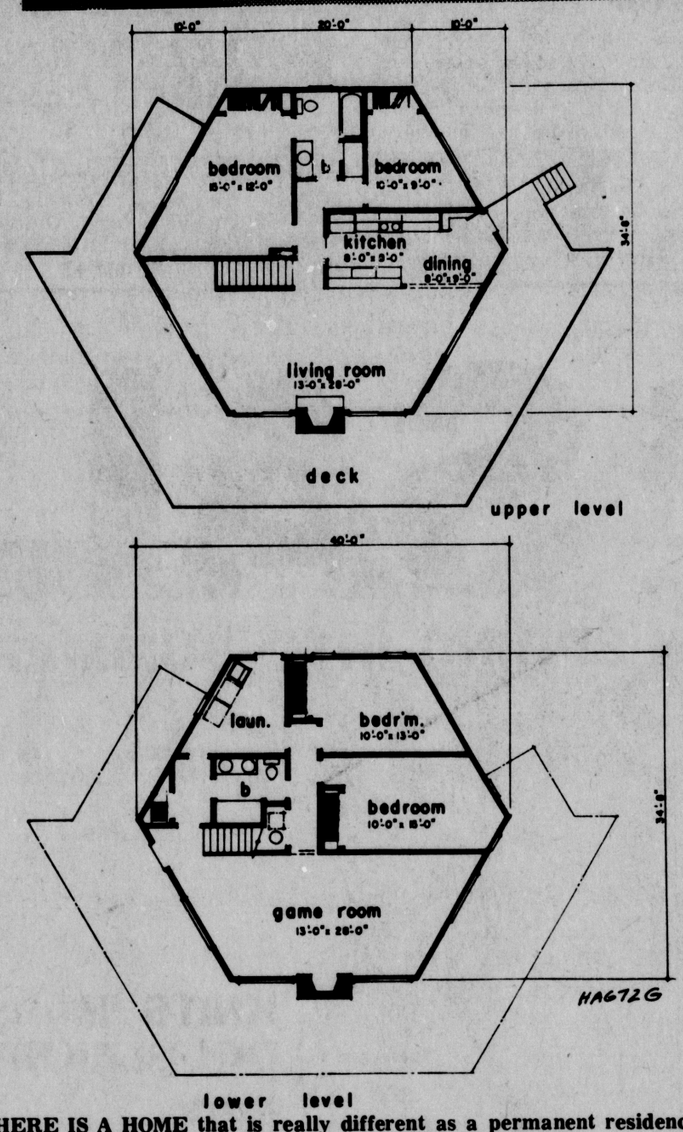

Q. — Can I paint right over the woodwork in our living room? It's now covered with a varnish that is many years old. I'd like to use the same oil paint on the woodwork as I use on the plaster walls.

A. — Yes, but if there are any glossy areas still remaining on the woodwork, they should be sanded lightly before applying the paint.

If all the woodwork is glossy and the sanding appears like too tough a job, buy one of the liquid preparations that can be used to provide an adhesion base for the paint.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

A combination of contemporary and traditional styling, the Tudor decor and glass expanse provide a lovely and unusual styling. Hexagon in shape, this design has a deck with railing. It is ideal for either a level or a hillside lot. Plan HA627G has four bedrooms, a corridor-style kitchen with plenty of cabinet and counter space and a living room with four sliding glass doors to the deck. There is plenty of glass expanse here to provide an abundance of natural daylight and scenic view. The laundry has an outside exit convenient for hanging clothes outdoors. If the home is built on a lake, the bathroom is convenient for bathers changing wet suits and it is just steps away from the laundry room. Columbus minister to direct council

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Rev. John F. Osborn of Columbus will become director of the Ohio United Methodist Council on Ministries June 14.

In another appointment announced Wednesday by Bishop F. Gerald Ensley, the Rev. Vance Summers Jr., director of specialized ministries for Columbus North and South districts, was named associate council director.

'Ladies Day' under fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Civil Rights Commission says it will investigate a complaint challenging "Ladies' Day" or "Ladies' Night" specials at sports events and businesses.

The commission agreed Tuesday there is cause to examine the complaint, which was filed by Gerald P. Wolfe II, an assistant to the commission's compliance director.

Wolfe said he filed the complaint, which named a Columbus restaurant, as a private citizen.

In the instance in question, he charged, ladies are entitled to buy two drinks for the price of one, while men must pay the full price.

"The practice is an apparent discrimination against men in that it offers different treatment between women and men," he said.

Said Wolfe: "However, the consequences go beyond the apparent discrimination because it perpetuates an attitude toward women that denies the concept of equal treatment."

Radiation leaks noted aboard jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission says it is investigating the possibility that passengers aboard two Delta Airlines flights may have been exposed to radiation earlier this month from an improperly shielded shipment of radioactive materials.

The AEC said preliminary indications were that the maximum possible exposure would not be strong enough to cause any immediate physical problems in the average person.

But the agency said it had informed the Virginia and Georgia health departments of the possible exposures and said it was checking to determine whether any pregnant women or small children were aboard the two flights.

Pregnant women and small children are more susceptible to radiation, an AEC spokesman said.

The AEC said the material — 32 curies of solid Iridium 192 — was shipped from Washington to Atlanta on April 5 aboard Delta flight 311 and from Atlanta to Baton Rouge, La., on April 6 aboard Delta flight 585.

The possible radiation leakage was the second such incident on a commercial airliner in recent years, the AEC said.

The first incident, also involving Delta, occurred Dec. 31, 1971, when a shipment of liquid Molybdenum 99, a medical isotope, leaked into the cargo hold on a Delta jetliner.

Mitchell denies giving Vesco aid

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has told a federal trial jury he wanted to abet and not obstruct a Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation of international financier Robert L. Vesco.

"On your oath did you do anything during this entire period of time to fix or quash the investigation?" he was asked Wednesday, shortly after he took the witness stand in his own defense.

"No sir," replied Mitchell, President Nixon's first attorney general.

The criminal conspiracy trial of Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans was recessed Wednesday until next Monday, when Mitchell is scheduled to resume his testimony. Stans is expected to follow his one-time cabinet colleague as a witness.

Stans and Mitchell are accused of obstructing the SEC investigation, in return for Vesco's secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

The two are charged with conspiracy, obstructing justice and lying to a grand jury to cover up the scheme.

Mitchell was asked by defense attorney Peter Fleming Jr. if he had believed or intended that by asking then SEC chairman William J. Casey to see Vesco aide Harry L. Sears he was "impeding, obstructing or delaying the SEC investigation of Mr. Vesco?"

"Quite to the contrary, I thought I might further it," Mitchell replied.

As for being motivated by the Vesco campaign contribution, Mitchell testified he never knew of it until six months after he intervened with Casey — in late August or early September.

The government had emphasized in its case that just five hours after Stans accepted the $200,000 on April 10, 1972, Mitchell sent Sears to his long awaited face-to-face meeting with Casey.

"We delivered the $200,000 today," Sears said he told Mitchell, strengthening a government claim that not until the money was in hand was there any action on Vesco's behalf.

Mitchell testified he had no recollection of Sears telling him of the delivery of the contribution.

Mitchell also contradicted the government testimony of former White House Counsel John W. Dean III that he was asked by the defendant to call Casey in Vesco's behalf, and ask for aid in postponing SEC subpoenas against a quartet of Vesco aides.

Satellite photos of Ohio studied

columbus, ohio (AP) — A $7,000 study by a Michigan firm is underway to determine how to use space photographs taken of Ohio.

William B. Nye, director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, said the photos hopefully will be a substitute for costly ground surveys used in state planning.

The pictures were taken from a distance of 469 miles from NASA's Earth Resources Technology Satellite, which orbits over Ohio once every 18 days.

Using computers, scientists of the Bendix Corp. of Ann Arbor, will attempt to make detailed geographical maps of Ohio for use in planning such things as parks, recreation areas, and stream channelization.

Bankers' group sponsoring TV Easter special

A special two-hour broadcast of "The Waltons" will bring into focus the dimensions of this remarkable family when it is presented over the CBS television network station, Channel 10, from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m. Easter Sunday.

Entitled, "It's About Faith," the special telecast of the regularly scheduled series is being sponsored by the Fayette Area Bankers Association through its membership in the American Bankers Association.

Considered by many to be a classic television family drama, "It's About Faith" was hailed as a "heartening message of faith" when it was first seen last April in over 19 million homes, almost half of the available television audience.

The story weaves around Olivia Walton, confidante and general mainstay of the Walton family, who is stricken with crippling polio. In bed, able to move only her arms and head, Olivia realizes that the problems caused by her illness are two-fold. First, she must overcome her own anguish and peril, knowing that she may never walk again, and second, she realizes the effect that her illness is having on her family.

From her sick bed, Olivia responds in her typical fashion. With extraordinary faith and sheer power of will, she encourages her children to continue with their normal lives.

JASON is urged to enter a music contest, Ben to be a salesman, John-Boy to prepare himself for college. She makes Mary Ellen a dress for a big dance, she manages to move her paralyzed leg and bring a glimmer of hope into the family. When little Elizabeth asks why would God punish someone so good, Olivia's answer is merely, "There's a purpose in everything, and God knows what it is even if we don't."

The direction and script for the special is by Philip Leacock and John McGreevy, the same regulars that have made the fictional Walton Family television visitors in over 20 million American homes every Thursday night. Miss Michael Learned, who plays Olivia, and Richard Thomas, who plays John-Boy, each won an Emmy award for their characterizations in the series, which has garnered no less than a half dozen awards from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The Easter Sunday special is one of several telecasts that will be sponsored by the ABA in cooperation with the Fayette Area Bankers Association. Local members are the Fayette County Bank, the First National Bank of New Holland, the Washington Savings Bank and the First National Bank of Washington C.H.

Traffic Court

Four persons were scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Wednesday on traffic charges, but three of them were not present and forfeited bond. Included among those forfeiting was Police Specialist William Cales.

Cales forfeited $25 bond for failing to maintain an assured clear distance. The charge had been filed by city police. . . by William Cales, himself, in fact.

The policeman filed the charge against himself after he ran into a car in front of him at a traffic light. Some packages began sliding off the back seat as he began to slow down, and his attention was momentarily distracted.

Acting Judge John P. Case fined Sheridan R. Smith, 18, of 111 Water St., $15, for driving a car with a raised bumper.

Gregory A. Wary, 18, Columbus, and Emma C. Roush, 74, of 816 Lincoln Dr., forfeited $25 each on charges of backing without due regard for safety.

'Flying saucer' found on Johnson stamp

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP) — A flying saucer hovers over the U.S. Capitol and Mayor William S. Meyer of Bellefontaine owns it.

It's a commemorative 8-cent stamp honoring the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, one of a sheet of 32 Mayer bought from a friend.

One stamp has a flaw that appears to be a flying saucer hovering the Capitol in the lower corner. It shows above the right shoulder of the late president.

Postmaster C.H. Hertenstein believes it could be the only one like it of the 150 million Johnson commemoratives printed. Meyer said he checked persons who bought similar sheets and could find none with the same defect.

Hertenstein, also, did some checking among a packet of 4,000 similar stamps and found none with the defective marking.

MEYER, a former stamp collector, said he bought the sheet of stamps from Donald Griest, an associate in the local American Red Cross chapter. Meyer noticed the imperfection almost immediately and offered to return the stamps. Griest, he said, didn't want them back.

"I felt bad about taking it," said the mayor.

Meyer has taken the stamp to several stamp shows and he said collectors seemed interested. The mayor himself stopped collecting about 15 years ago, but keeps an eye out for imperfects.

"I still check stamps for ones like these," he said. "I have about a dozen defective ones."

He has no idea what caused the imperfection. Some collectors have theorized the unidentified flying object marking probably came during the color processing. Meyer wonders if something fell on the printing presses.

"I may sell it someday," said Meyer, "But I'm in no hurry. I kind of like it."

Claim President OKs guard defense

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A candidate for state office says no emergency legislation is needed because a precedent exists for state legal aid to Ohio National Guardsmen indicted on civil rights violations.

George C. Smith, Franklin County prosecutor and a Republican contender for the attorney general's post said Wednesday Ohio Atty. Gen. William Brown "overlooked and disregarded the law of Ohio when he indicated he would not defend them."

Plans were announced earlier the same day by Rep. M. Joan Douglass, R-61, Mansfield, to sponsor an emergency bill offering lawyers at state expense to the eight men indicted in the Kent State Unniversity shootings.

But Smith says the attorney general signed an opinion in 1973 setting a precedent on the defense question.

That opinion states, "the office of the attorney general may defend a state highway patrolman who is accused of a criminal offense committed in the scope of official duties."

Smith says there is no difference legally in defending a patrolman or guardsmen.

He said the guards were "agents of the state, and their orders were to restore law and order and maintain peace. As agents of the state, they should be defended by it.

"I believe the principle basis for his (Brown's) decision to step aside is political," Smith alleged.

Stressing that he made no attempt to prejudge the innocence of or guilt of the indicted guards, Smith said, "It is a sad day for Ohioans when political connotations take precedence over established law."

Mrs. Douglass, saying her bill could be entered after the filing deadline as emergency legislation, said "I feel the guardsmen were intent to protect other students . . ." in the May 1970 protests.

She said the National Guard "could fall apart if we don't back it up."

The attorney general's office is advising the eight indicted men to turn to the Ohio General Assembly or the Sundry Claims board for defense money. Rep. Robert Netzley, R-81, Laura, also has said he will introduce a bill to appropriate $150,000 in emergency defense funds.

Television couple married for real

NEW YORK (AP) — David Birney and Meredith Baxter, costars of last season's television series "Bridget Loves Bernie," are honeymooning after their marriage here.

Nixon campaigning of little effect?

BAD AXE, Mich. (AP) — President Nixon's whirlwind trip through rural Michigan revealed considerable anti-Nixon feeling beneath a friendly, respectful welcome.

But there was little evidence it will affect next Tuesday's special congressional election.

State Republican Chairman William McLaughlin was the only major figure in either party to say that Nixon's Wednesday visit could be decisive in the contest between Republican James Sparling and Democrat J. Robert Traxler.

After speaking to an enthusiastic group of 5,000 at Tri-City Airport between the 8th District's population centers of Saginaw and Bay City, Nixon flew here by helicopter for a 57-mile motorcade through solidly Republican towns and hamlets in an area known, for its shape, as Michigan's Thumb.

Though his reception was generally friendly, there were signs at many stops urging his impeachment. Speeches in Bad Axe, Cass City and Sandusky drew only mild applause, possibly because few could hear.

But there were many who said they still support the President, who carried the area overwhelmingly in 1972.

"I don't think he's as bad as they all try to let on," said John Graham in Cass City. "He has done an awful lot of good for our country."

McLaughlin, eager for a GOP victory after the loss Feb. 18 of Vice President Gerald R. Ford's old Grand Rapids seat, said Nixon's visit will have "a very dramatic effect on this campaign. If we win, there's no doubt in my mind that the President has turned the tide."

Though Sparling insisted Nixon hadn't come to campaign for him, the President praised Sparling's work as a former White House liaison man.

Sparling has de-emphasised that point, while Traxler has stressed it.

In his arrival speech Nixon sharply criticized the Democratic-controlled Congress for failing to act on three of his energy proposals: deregulation of natural gas, easing of the auto emissions standards and expanded use of coal.

Unemployment in the district's auto plants is due to the congressional "bottleneck" on those measures, Nixon said. And he blamed Congress for the high cost of living, saying it stemmed from the high cost of programs that lawmakers have passed.

Hogan loses rights fight

TORONTO, Canada (AP) — The Ontario Appeal Court has rejected a suit by former Black Panther Edwin Hogan charging false imprisonment and conspiracy to violate his civil rights.

Hogan escaped in June 1972 from a prison in Columbus, Ohio, where he was serving a life term for murder and armed robbery. He was captured in Toronto, ordered deported and taken immediately to Buffalo, N.Y., where he was handed over to the FBI.

Hogan's suit charged that the Canadian immigration department and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police conspired with the FBI to prevent his fighting the deporation order. His attorney, Charles Roach, claimed that Hogan's speedy exit from the country deprived him of an appeal to the immigration minister to be deported to some country other than the United States.

The appeal court, with Chief Justice Wilbur Jackett presiding, refused to consider Hogan a political fugitive. It ruled that the swift deportation did not violate the law.

Senior citizens get free rides

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Senior citizens in Belmont, Coshocton and Holmes counties will have transportation to county senior programs thanks to two federal grants announced by the Ohio Commission on Aging Wednesday.

The commission also announced grants for continuation of five senior programs and centers in the state.

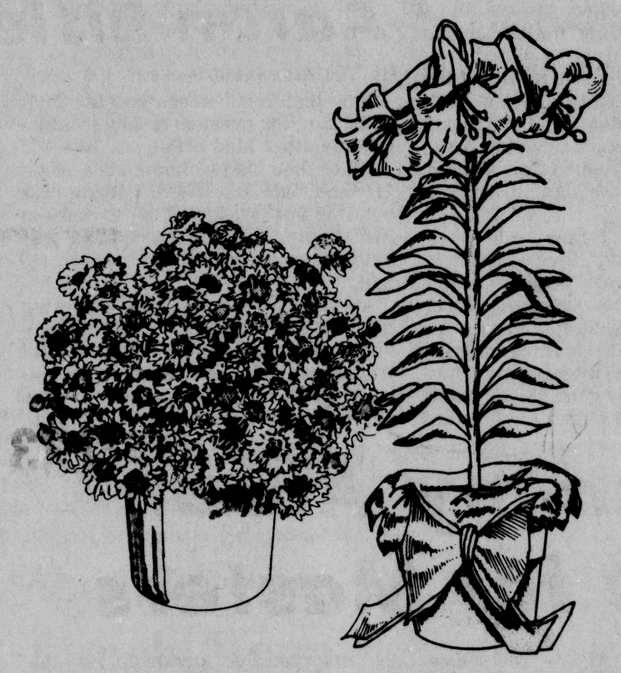

The seven, one-year grants are funded through Title III of the federal Older Americans Act.

Win comes in ninth inning

Panthers steal 4-3 victory from Lions

By DENNIS STAPLETON
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Miami Trace Panthers clipped a nine inning 4-3 victory from Washington C.H. Wednesday evening at the Panthers home field. After being behind going into the bottom half of the seventh inning, Miami Trace tied the game in the seventh and then went on to win in the ninth when Greg Cobb flew out to Stabelton in right field with the bases loaded and Doug Ford tagged from third base, to score the winning run.

Tom Riley was the winning pitcher for the Panthers relieving Randy Reiber in the ninth inning. Riley set down the Lions in order in the ninth on three straight ground outs.

Reiber went eight innings for the Panthers striking out 14 and walking only two. The Panther hurler gave up all three Lion runs on just eight hits.

Mark Johnson was the losing pitcher for WCH giving up 10 hits, four runs and allowed two walks. Johnson fanned six men in his nine innings of work.

The Lions crossed home plate in the duel, scoring in the second inning when Randy Sparkman doubled to lead off the inning. Stabelton was safe on a throwing error and Sparkman scored. Bick singled moving Stabelton to third and Johnson was safe on an error scoring Stabelton.

Miami Trace pulled even in the bottom half of the second inning when Riley doubled and Reiber tripled him home. Jay Mossbarger singled to score Reiber from third and the game was tied 2-2.

The scoring pace wasn't picked up again until the fifth inning when Washington C.H.'s Johnson singled, moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Craig Shaffer; advanced to third on a passed ball; and crossed the plate on a double steal.

The Lions maintained the one run lead until the bottom half of the seventh inning when Phil Skinner singled with one out. He moved to second on a ground out and Riley singled to score Skinner from second.

In the eigtht inning Washington C.H. had men on first and third with two outs but Johnson popped out to the third baseman to end the inning.

Miami Trace came to bat in the bottom of the ninth and Doug Ford led off with a single. Tom Pfaff singled and Skinner singled loading the bases with no outs. Cobb hit a fly ball into right field to Stabelton with Ford tagging from third base to score. On the throw back home, Stabelton dropped the ball but Ford probably would have scored anyway.

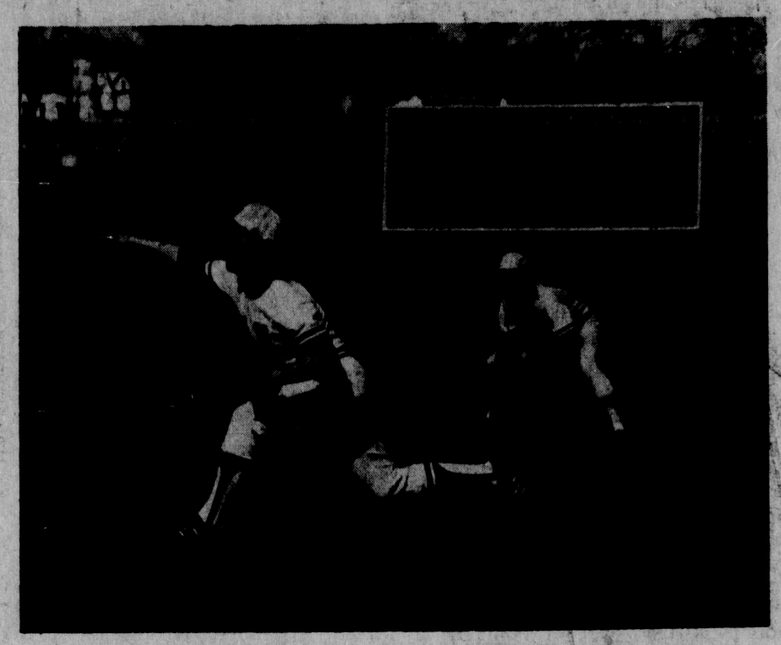

At present Washington C.H. stands 1-1 in the SCOL and Miami Trace holds a 2-0 chart.

Reserves drop 9-3 decision to Circleville

Washington C. H. Blue Lions' reserve baseball squad lost its first game of the season last night as they were dealt a 9-3 drubbing at the hands of the Circleville Tiger jayvees. B. McGlone pitched the Tigers past the Lions giving up just six hits, striking out 12, and walking only one.

The Tigers jumped out on top of the Lions in the first inning when they scored three unearned runs. Nevertheless, the runs counted and the Lions were behind 3-0. In the second inning the Lions fought back. With one out third baseman Sam Aills rifled a double into right-center field. Second baseman Mark Fisher then followed with a long triple over the center fielder's head and he was chased home on a single by Randy Gardner.

The Tigers scored again in the third and fourth innings. They scored one in the third on a walk, wild pitch, and double and in the fourth two singles, a walk, and a double got the Tigers three more runs for a 7-2 lead. The Lions scored their last run in the sixth inning when left fielder Mark Rea singled, took second on a ground out, was sacrificed to third and came home on a single by third sacker Bob Wilson. The Tigers got their final two runs in the sixth on a double, walk and a single.

Washington C. H. used a trio of pitchers: David Van Dyke, Dan Alspaugh and Gardner who combined for eight strikeouts and eight bases on balls. McGlone, in addition to his pitching efforts, contributed a hit and a run scored to his own cause.

Giants hand Reds 4-3 loss

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pete Rose apparently has become baseball's traveling villain.

"I don't know when the booing will stop," the Cincinnati Reds' star said after Wednesday's 4-3 loss to the San Francisco Giants.

"But it doesn't bother me. The only thing that bothers me is that we lost," he added.

Rose did nothing to offend Candlestick Park fans in the Reds' first road series of the season — except stroke five hits — but the fans treated him like the masked bruiser in a professional wrestling match, booing him lustily every time he batted.

It appeared they remembered the celebrated fight Rose had in New York last fall with the Mets' Bud Harrelson in the National League playoffs. A national magazine recently ran a color picture layout of the fight to refresh memories.

If the 8,456 Giant fans hadn't had Ross to boo yesterday, they might have picked on hometown third baseman Dave Kingman who made two errors that helped the Reds score two unearned runs in the opening innings.

"But he came back to hit that home run and make a few good plays. That's what counts," said Mike Caldwell, the Giants' winning pitcher with relief help from Randy Moffitt.

"It was kind of a discouraging day for a while," said Kingman, who has five errors in the team's six games. "But we won."

Kingman belted his second homer of the year, a sixth inning blast off Don Gullett, to break a 2-2 tie. Bobby Bonds hit his first homer in seventh to make the score 4-2.

Moffitt registered his third save of the season despite allowing his first earned run. Caldwell, 2-0, lowered his ERA to 1.35.

"If we'd played errorless ball, he probably would have had a shutout," said Manager Charlie Fox of the 25-year-old left-hander the Giants acquired in the trade that sent Willie McCovey to San Diego.

First baseman Steve Ontiveros also made an error behind Caldwell in the first inning when the Reds scored a run without getting a hit.

"Mike doesn't worry about the last play. He just goes to work even harder on the next batter. He's showed us that a few times already," said Fox.

The Giants kept the National League West lead with the victory, making their record 5-1. They play their first road game Friday night in San Diego.

The Reds, 3-3, play in Atlanta Friday night. That sure-to-be-lively first trip to New York's Shea Stadium is seven weeks away.

Aaron hitless; Dodgers win 4-0

By The Associated Press

Now that Hank Aaron has hit THE home run, the question is when will he get any other kind of hit.

Other than his two home runs—Nos. 714 and 715—it's been nothing but outsville this season and the 40-year-old Atlanta superstar with the lifetime .311 batting average is hitting at a lowly .154 clip.

Aaron grounded out twice following his record-breaking home run Monday night. He sat out the next game and Wednesday night he took an 0-for-4 collar—two fly balls, one grounder and a strikeout—as Tommy John and Mike Marshall of Los Angeles held the Braves to four singles in pitching the Dodgers to a 4-0 triumph.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Montreal Expos finally swung into action and beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 12-8 in 13 innings, the San Francisco Giants edged the Cincinnati Reds 4-3, the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, the Chicago Cubs overtook the Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 and the Houston Astros walloped the San Diego Padres 9-1.

John, who is in his third National League season and has a perfect 6-0 mark against the Braves, is one of those rare birds—a pitcher off whom Aaron has never homered.

The Dodgers got the only run they needed in the first inning on singles by Lee Lacy and Bill Buckner and Jim Wynn's sacrifice fly. Lacy singled again in the sixth and came around on three walks.

Expos 12, Pirates 8

After being unable to open as scheduled at home because of bad weather, the Expos finally heard the cry of "Play ball" in Pittsburgh and took out their frustrations on the Pirates' pitching staff to the tune of 14 hits.

Doubles by Larry Lintz and Jim Cox sparked a four-run burst in the 13th inning that gave the Expos the victory and sent the winless Pirates to their third straight defeat in their home opener.

Lintz opened the 13th with a double off reliever Ramon Hernandez and scored on Cox' double following a walk. Ron Woods' two-run single and an RBI double by pitcher Chuck Taylor produced the other runs. The Pirates tied the game 8-8 in the bottom of the ninth on pinch hitter Bob Robertson's two-out, two-run homer after the Expos scored three times in the top of the ninth off Pittsburgh relief ace Dave Giusti.

Astros 9, Padres 1

Houston broke open a tight game with six runs in the fifth inning, including successive two-run doubles by Tommy Helms and pitcher Dave Roberts. It was the fifth loss in a row for the Padres.

While Bill Greif held Houston hitless for three innings, the Padres picked up a third-inning run when Derrel Thomas tripled and scored on an infield out. But the Astros took a 2-1 lead in the fourth on Cesar Cedeno's home run and consecutive singles by Bob Watson, Milt May, Lee May and Doug Rader.

Mets 3, Cardinals 2

Jerry Grote, who hit only one home run last year, cracked his second of the young 1974 season and drove in another run with a single, helping the National League champion Mets win their home opener. Grote, who hit just 27 homers in eight previous seasons, connected off John Curtis, who was making his NL debut.

Tommy Aaron set for Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The sports spotlight shifts today to the other Aaron—Tommy Aaron, the golfer—in the start of the 38th Masters Tournament.

"I met Hank Aaron at a golf tournament recently," Aaron said, referring to the new home run king of baseball. "He mentioned that since he was from Alabama he probably got his name from masters named Aaron—maybe ancestors of mine."

Plying his trade in relative obscurity is no new experience for the 37-year-old tour veteran from Gainesville, Ga., once dubbed the "golfing bride's maid" because he played for 10 years without winning a tournament, although he frequently came close.

He won his first tournament in 1970—the Atlanta Open—and spoiled Jack Nicklaus' bid for a fifth Masters last year with a winning score of 283.

Nicklaus is the 3-1 pick in the blue ribbon field of 78, including 55 U. S. professionals, 11 U. S. amateurs and a contingent of 12 foreigners.

The odds are the latest from Ladbroke's, the London bookmakers, where gambling is not only legal but almost an obsession.

The 26-year-old Johnny Miller, winner of three straight tournaments this spring, is rated second choice at 4-1, followed by Ben Crenshaw and Tom Weiskopf at 12-1.

Aaron is rated a 50-1 pick.

The 1973 Masters victory provided one unforgettable dividend for the drawling Georgian.

"I got to go to the Champions Dinner Tuesday night," he said, with wide-eyed wonder. "It was great sitting there in my green jacket with fellows like Gene Sarazen, Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret.

"Snead told some raunchy jokes. A couple of guys got stoned on grape juice but there wasn't much drinking. You'd have thought it was a Baptist picnic."

Nicklaus, looking tan and fit, said the 7,020-yard, par 72 Augusta National course was in the best shape since he's been playing it and predicted low scoring. The weather forecast for fair skies with temperature in the 70s.

Brewers turn back Indians, 6-4

By The Associated Press

Pro basketball has its 24 and 30-second clocks to help speed up games, and Clyde Wright, veteran left-handed pitcher of the Milwaukee Brewers, thinks major league baseball should adopt a 20-second clock between pitches for the same purpose.

"I played in the minor leagues in Wichita, Kan., with the 20-second clock on the scoreboard, and it really made the game a lot more interesting," Wright said Wednesday after pitching what he considered 83-3 innings of slow baseball in the Brewers' 6-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

"Games lasted only an hour and a half or a little more, and the fans didn't get bored," he added.

The 20,036 opening-day fans at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium apparently were getting bored Wednesday, and they began throwing snowballs on the field.

Their boredom turned to disappointment in the ninth inning when Milwaukee's Don Money smashed a dramatic grand slam home run with two out, lifting the Brewers to a 6-4 victory.

"He broke the monotony real nice," Wright said of Money's blast during the 2 hour, 45 minute game.

In other American League games Wednesday, the California Angels edged the Texas Rangers 4-3, the Kansas City Royals defeated the Oakland A's 4-1, the Minnesota Twins beat the winless Chicago White Sox 6-5, and the Baltimore Orioles' game against the Red Sox at Boston was postponed because of snow.

Wright and Jim Perry were locked in a 2-2 duel until the ninth. Then the Brewers filled the bases on two walks and a single, before Money tagged reliever Cecil Upshaw for his homer, which carried over the left field fence.

Angels 4, Rangers 3

The Angels broke a 3-3 tie in the ninth inning when Richie Scheinblum singled with one out, and scored from first as Ellie Rodriguez singled to left and Alex Johnson fumbled the ball.

Texas' Ferguson Jenkins, who pitched a one-hitter in his American League debut last week against Oakland, was clipped for three runs in the first inning by California, but settled down and hurled scoreless three-hit ball until the ninth.

Frank Tanana went the distance for the Angels and allowed nine hits, including Tom Grieve's two-run homer.

Royals 4, A's 1

Home runs by John Mayberry and Fred Patek backed the six-hit pitching of Steve Busby in Kansas City's victory over Oakland.

Busby helped himself by picking off Bill North from third base in the sixth inning when the A's scored their only run.

Twins 6, White Sox 5

Minnesota capitalized on the wildness of Chicago pitchers in the seventh inning, bunching five walks, a double and a sacrifice fly for four runs in overcoming a 5-2 deficit and handing the White Sox their four setback.

After starter Stan Bahnsen walked leadoff batter Jim Holt in the seventh, Terry Forster came in and walked Randy Hundley and surrendered a run-scoring double to Jerry Terrell. Then, Forster walked Sergio Ferrer and Rod Carew, forcing in a run.

Cy Acosta replaced Forster and walked Larry Hisle, forcing in the tying run, and Tony Oliva drove in the winner with a sacrifice fly.

White Sox' slugger Dick Allen slammed his first homer of the season, but also struck out four times, taking a third strike from roookie reliever Bill Campbell in the eighth inning with two out and two men on base.

Katfish victorious in Lebanon feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Katfish claimed a two-length victory in the featured condition pace at Lebanon Wednesday night.

Timed in 2:08 4-5 for the mile, the victory paid $4.20, $3.80 and $2.60. Limber Legs paid $4.20 and $2.80 for second. The show horse was Craig Dream at $3.40.

No retirement seen for 'Salt' Walther

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — At age 26, David "Salt" Walther has no intentions of retiring from racing, land or water.

But he's learned something from the nightmarish first-lap accident in last year's Indianapolis 500, followed by months of recuperation from serious burns and injuries.

"I've matured since then," he said. "I found out when you're hurt the whole world doesn't stop.

"Sure I love racing, but I'm developing other interests.

"Eventually, I plan to go back to school for some business courses," added Walther, who spent two years at Miami of Ohio, University of Dayton and Sinclair Community College in Dayton.

"While I've always been business-minded," he said, "I'm even more so now."

For seven years Salt managed a Dayton firm for his father, George Walther. Now he's the president of the company.

The younger Walther already is back racing the big, Indytype cars less than a year after his "500" accident. And he has every intention of competing at Indianapolis in 1974.

Walther is driving a 1972 McLaren, updated with a new Eagle wing. The chassis has been made two inches longer. The suspension has been changed, too.

Walther was running 10th in his first 1974 start in the Ontario "500" in California when a bad oil leak developed in his car. He was forced to quit after 130 laps.

"Both Ontario and Indy are 2½ mile ovals, but that's where the similiarity ends," the Dayton driver said.

"Indy is probably the most difficult race track in the world. Every turn is different," said Walther.

"On some of those corners you have to ride six inches from the wall," he added.

"What happens then if a gust of wind comes up, which it does at Indy? Man, you've got no place to go except into a cement wall," said Walther, answering his own question.

Still, Walther loves all types of racing. After Indy, he will start getting ready for the unlimited hydroplanes, moving his quest for speed to water.

Canine graduation ceremony

22 dogs receive obedience degrees

COME-ON DAD, NO PICTURES — John Craig's dog, "Ragun," shouldn't be so upset with publicity after taking second place in competition and receiving her obedience degree.

AM I DOING GOOD? — A little positive reinforcement is given to "Buffy," the senior citizen of the dog obedience class, by Mrs. Elmer Haymaker. Buffy, who is owned by Mrs. Rollo Marchant, is 8 years old and completely disproved that an old dog can't learn new tricks.

BY MARK THELLMANN

The only appropriate comment upon receiving a degree in obedience is "wow," or in this case, "bow-wow!"

Twenty-two dogs received their obedience degrees in a graduation ceremony held in the Fine Arts building on the Fayette County Fairground this week.

Mrs. Elmer Haymaker, instructor of the 10-week course which began Feb. 4, said she is proud of the 13-dog turnout — she confided that some people were too embarrassed to come to the graduation — and pleased with the performance of the dogs ranging from 4 months old to 8 years and encompassing 11 different breeds.

Mrs. Haymaker was assisted in her course instruction, conducted Monday evenings from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m., by Mrs. Robert Burnett.

SHE EXPLAINED that the first five weeks of instruction were primarily aimed at the dog owners. Owners were taught how to work with their pets and, thus, were trained in training their dogs.

"Almost any dog can learn his stuff in roughly 80 hours of training, but if the dog owner isn't sure what to do and how to go about it, the dog isn't going to learn anything," Mrs. Haymaker explained.

Mrs. Haymaker got her start developing canine know-how when her children grew up and left for college.

"I was alone and purchased a poodle for company and a book about training dogs," she said.

SHE MUST have had the knack, because the very first dog show in which she entered her poodle allowed her to walk away with the highest score and the accompanying first place title.

Results of the competition between the dogs during the graduation ceremony were as follows: First place - a German Shepherd named "Brandy," owned by Diane E. McFadden, Greenfield; second place - a German Shepherd named "Ragun," owned by John Craig, Rt. 6; third place-a Basset Hound named "Moses," owned by Ann Polk, Rt. 2, and fourth place - a Border Collie named "Dolly," owned by Joyce Curran, Lakewood Hills.

Top dog of the evening was "Tigh," owned by Mary Acton, Rt. 2, who was disqualified because of previous course training.

The competition was judged by Nick Nichols, a trainer from the Columbus All-Breed Training Club.

DOG OBEDIENCE classes will resume in September. The cost is $20 for the 10-week instruction, sponsored by the Paint Valley Kennel Club. Club President Bob Schneider, may be contacted for information as can Mrs. Haymaker, who will once again be instucting, at 335-3092.

Any interested person, whether or not he owns a dog, may join the Paint Valley Kennel Club by contacting Schneider and Mrs. Haymaker for information.

HAPPY AND CONTENT—and all smiles about the dog obedience lessons from which she just graduated is "Dolly," a Border Collie owned by Joyce Curran, Lakewood Hills. Dolly took fourth place in competition.

LOOKING CONFIDENT AND SCHOLARLY—is "Moses," Ann Polk's Basset Hound, who took third place in competition.

Hope fades for missing 11 persons

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Coast Guard says it has given up hope for the lives of 11 persons missing after an oil tanker exploded and burned at its mooring on the Delaware River.

Included in the missing are a mother and her three daughters who were visiting the Greek registry tanker Elias when it erupted in a ball of flame late Tuesday.

One man is officially listed as dead and 26 others were either injured or treated for exposure. Most of the 26 leaped from the blazing vessel into frigid water. A search for the missing was suspended Wednesday night.

The wreckage, still resting near the mooring, is reportedly too hot to be entered. A search of the ship is planned for Saturday, the Coast Guard said.

The cause of the explosion which split the 650-foot vessel has not been determined.

Among the missing are the ship's captain, Andreas Antoniadis, who at the time of the blast was dining aboard with his cousin and her three daughters.

The missing cousin has been identified as Mrs. Matina Mentis, 50, of Baltimore. Her missing daughters are JoAnn, 18; Maria, 19; and Georgeen, 13.

The tanker was unloading crude oil at Atlantic Richfield Company's South Philadelphia terminal at the time of the blast. A spokesman for the firm said that 202,700 of the 216,000 barrels of oil had been unloaded.

Vietnam aid stirs fight in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Armed Services Chairman F. Edward Hebert says he will try to help get up to $266 million in extra U.S. military aid for South Vietnam. But he acknowledges the move "could be interpreted as a subterfuge" by some people.

The Louisiana Democrat told the House Wednesday he believes its vote last week rejecting a $274 million increase in U.S. aid to South Vietnam was a mistake.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., accused Hebert of indicating he will go along with what Giamo charged is an attempt by the Pentagon to subvert the House vote against the aid boost.

"The American people are watching to make sure there is no hanky-panky to subvert the will of Congress...The American people have made it clear we are tired of this endless involvement in Vietnam," Giaimo said.

"I do not believe that vote reflected the will of the House," Hebert said. "More than 100 members were absent."

Hebert's announcement that he hopes to correct the "mistake" indicated he will go along with a bookkeeping measure, already approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee, that would permit the extra $266 million for South Vietnam.

The Pentagon would be permitted to charge the $266 million off to ammunition and other stocks supplied to South Vietnam in past years and thus give itself an extra $266 million above this year's ceiling of $1.126 billion in U.S. aid to South Vietnam.

But the full Senate could still reject that authority, which has been approved by its Armed Services Committee.

If melted at a uniform rate, the Antarctic icecap would yield about six million cubic miles of water — enough to feed the Mississippi River for 50,000 years, all United States rivers for 17,000 years or all rivers in the world for 750 years.

Pinworms Touch All Classes

We were shocked when our doctor told us that one of our children has pinworms of the intestines.

We pride ourselves with the cleanliness of our home and the hygiene we've taught our children.

We thought, too, that this condition occurs only in warm climates where malnutrition is rampant.

Can you throw some light on the subject of pinworms?

Mrs. D.P.B., Wis.

Dear Mrs. B.:

It is astonishing how frequently pinworm infections of the intestines do occur.

The condition is not limited to people who live in warm climates nor to people whose hygiene and nourishment are substandard.

Undoubtedly, the incidence is higher under such conditions, but even in families whose education is high, whose nourishment is above standard and whose social and economic positions are elevated, pinworm infections do occur.

The oxyuris vermicularis responsible for pinworm infection has no special regard for social status.

The condition may occur in camps and in schools as it is passed from one child to another. Poor bathroom hygiene is entirely responsible.

There are many new excellent, safe and effective drugs used to clear up the condition. Rigid adherence to meticulous sanitation is imperative if recurrences are to be avoided.

Hands and fingernails must be thoroughly washed with soap before each meal. Active scrubbing of the hands after going to the bathroom is important. Separate towels should be used by each member of the family. Trading of towels at school should be avoided.

I was a boxer and developed a cauliflower ear in one of my college contests. Is it possible to correct this by operation?

Mr. C.L., Texas

Dear Mr. L.:

A cauliflower ear is the result of a severe blow to the outer ear. The seepage of blood in and around the cartilage of the ear is responsible for the scar tissue and the misshapen appearance.

It is for this reason that such injuries should be treated early, in order to evacuate the blood as quickly as possible.

The surgical cosmetic repair of a cauliflower ear depends entirely on how much scar tissue has formed and on the severity of the distortion.

While drinking water, a young turkey may become hypnotized by the movements of his own head and drink on until he drowns.

Three auto mishaps checked by officers

A Jamestown woman swerved her car to avoid hitting an animal and wound up striking a fence and a Jeffersonville man had a blowout which caused him to lose control of his vehicle and hit a fence, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported today. City police reported a minor parking lot accident at the J and J Restaurant. There were no citations.

Minor damage was incurred by a car driven by Anita Fay Applegate, 20, Jamestown, in an accident at 5:40 a.m. Thursday.

Ms. Applegate was traveling east on Ohio 734, seven-tenths of a mile west of Jeffersonville, when she swerved to avoid hitting an animal and traveled off the right side of the road, striking a fence owned by Carrol H. Ritenour, Jeffersonville.

She was not injured.

The right front tire blewout on a car driven by Michael R. Duncan, 19, Jeffersonville, at 1:20 p.m. Wedsesday, forcing him off the right side of the road, where he hit a ditch and overturned.

The mishap occurred on the Jeffersonville-West Lancaster Road, 12 miles northwest of Washington C. H.

When the car overturned on its right side, it moderately damaged a fence owned by Karl Krieger, Jeffersonville.

Moderate damage was incurred to a car driven by Veryl D. Keaton, 20, Jamison Road, at 9:25 a.m. Wednesday.

The Keaton car was struck at the intersection of Market Street and Columbus Avenue by a car driven by Paul E. Hughes, 35, New Holland, as he backed from the J and J Restaurant parking lot.

Vandal enters garage, paints 2 automobiles

A vandal entered a Washington C.H. garage, took a can of white spray paint and a can of black spray paint and painted two cars and other articles. City police also reported two incidents involving broken windows.

The garage of Phil Tatman, 217 Broadway, was entered by a vandal who found two cans of spray paint, one black and one white and proceded to paint the doors, the walls, the telephone and cars owned by Loren Yoho Jr., and Dan Terhune. Coffee and sugar were also dumped on the floor by the vandal.

The incident occurred about 11:15 p.m. Wednesday and nothing was taken from the garage, police reported.

The window of the walk-in front door of Downing Service Station, 302 E. Court St., was broken sometime between 7 p.m. Tuesday and 6 a.m. Wednesday, police reported. The window was valued at $75.

A window pane was broken out of an overhead door on the east side of the Central Grocery, 208 E. Market St., sometime between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 2:30 a.m. Thursday.

Police Sgt. Luther Anderson discovered the damage while on routine patrol. He reported nothing missing from the building.

Troop cuts under study

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger says the Pentagon is considering possible ways to cut back the number of U.S. support troops in Europe without reducing the U.S. combat posture.

Schlesinger told reporters Wednesday "the prognosis is far more favorable than it has been in the recent past" for continued U.S political support for keeping American troops stationed in Europe.

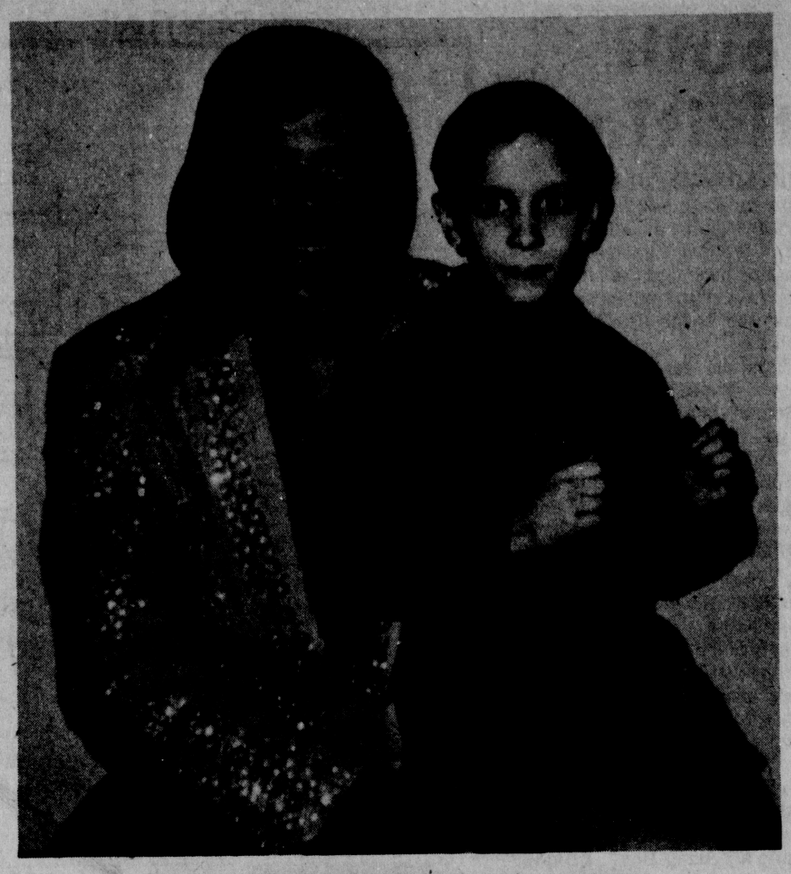

"We are examining within the department the possibility of reducing certain support elements in Europe, but no reduction whatsoever of our combat capabilities," the defense secretary said.

Schlesinger voiced the comments just before a closed meeting with Annemarie Renger, president of the West German parliament and seven other members of the parliament.

He again stressed that NATO allies must be willing to assume their own full share in defending Europe.

He did not indicate how large a cutback in support troops was being considered.

The United States has a total of some 300,000 military men in the European area, about 214,000 of them in Germany.

JOHNNY PAYCHECK AND TRENT NEWMAN

Paycheck show to benefit 7-year-old cancer victim

SABINA — A benefit country and western music performance will be staged at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, May 12 in the Sabina school gym by Johnny Paycheck, one of the nation's top recording artists.

The performance, sponsored by Sabina Loyal Order of Moose and the Women of Moose, has been scheduled to benefit Trent Newman, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Newman, of Sabina.

The boy has had two major cancer operations and is required to report to Children's Hospital, Columbus, weekly for treatment.

All proceeds raised from the performance will be forwarded to the Trent Newman Fund at the Clinton County National Bank in Sabina.

Larry Adams, of Sabina, benefit chairman, said tickets, priced at $3 per person may be purchased at the Washington C. H. branch office of the Fayette County Bank. Tickets also may be purchased at the Greenfield Police Department, the Clinton County National Bank in Sabina and the bank's branch office in the Wilmington shopping center.

Appearing with Paycheck will be his seven-piece band, "The Lovemakers." In the band are Don and Gary Adams, formerly of Greenfield, and a new addition, Dave Gray, a regular on the Buck Owens television program.

Paycheck, formerly of Greenfield and one of the top country and western performers in the nation, was a Grammy award nominee in 1971 and was one of the top five finalists for the top male vocalist in England last year.

Tom Peterson, a well-known radio personality, will serve as master of ceremonies for the performance.

Senate OKs wide-range disaster relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by tornadoes that devastated parts of the South and Midwest, the Senate has passed a bill broadening federal disaster relief.

The House, however, may not act on the legislation until it returns from its Easter recess April 22.

The House leadership has tentatively decided against trying to push the bill through today before the recess begins.

The Senate unanimously passed the bill Wednesday after Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., staved off several attempts to amend the measure.

He warned that the administration might withdraw its support of the bill if it is burdened by amendments to which it objects.

The Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., that would have made the measure retroactive to cover victims of last year's flooding in New England and Northeastern states.

At the urging of Burdick, Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., withdrew another amendment that would have reinstated a low-interest disaster loan program killed by Congress last year with the approval of the administration.

Under that program, the federal government did not require repayment of up to $5,000 and collected only one per cent interest on the balance. Current programs provide for full repayment at 5 per cent interest.

But the Senate-passed bill would provide an additional $5,000 to disaster victims who have exhausted all other forms of relief but still require more aid.

Seventy-five per cent of the money would be supplied by the federal government. The balance would come from the states, which would administer the program.

Wreck cleanup about finished

BLOOMINGBURG — Rail service was expected to be restored late today on Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks just outside Bloomingburg where 18 cars derailed Tuesday night.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson said all but one of the 18 derailed cars had been returned to the tracks by workmen shortly after noon today and it is expected that the clearing operation will be completed within hours.

Sheriff Thompson said Dickey Road is still closed, but once the one car is returned to the tracks, the road will be opened.

Coke and coal were spilled along the Dickey Road crossing when the 18 cars derailed. Railroad officials said the eighth car from the engine derailed, apparently because of a defective axle-coupling bar which holds the wheels on the tracks.

The 32-car train was en route from Newark to Cincinnati at the time of the derailment. No injuries were reported to investigating officers by the five-man crew aboard the freight train.

The tallest geyser, the Waimangu geyser in New Zealand, erupted to more than 1,000 feet high in 1909, and has not been active since 1917.

Set election in Australia

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Governor-General Sir Paul Hasluck dissolved both houses of Parliament today, and Prime Minister Gough Whitlam announced that a general election will be held May 18.

Whitlam told a news conference the main issue will be the frustration of his legislation by the opposition-controlled Senate. It has blocked several measures passed by the House of Representatives, including Whitlam's health insurance bill.

The opposition is expected to fight the election on the issue of inflation, now running at an annual rate of 14 per cent.

Whitlam, whose Labor party was voted into power 16 months ago, said he didn't expect to lose any seats.

An opinion poll two weeks ago predicted victory for the Liberals, whose leader, Billy Snedden, provoked Whitlam into calling an early election by announcing that the opposition would vote down the government's appropriation bills in the Senate.
